DUKE UNIVERSITY
DURHAM, NORTH CAROLINA

TO THE MEN OF DUKE WHO ARE SERVING THEIR COUNTRY . . .

This thirty-first volumne of the Chanticleer is dedicated. May we who are about to join those Duke graduates and our former classmates on the battlefronts of Asia, Africa, Europe, and the Seven Seas, maintain their same ideals of courage, honor, sacrifice, and love for our Country and our honorable heritage.

There is a great fight to be won, and it is an even greater fight to win the peace which will follow. To face this great test of tests we must be spiritually, as well as physically and mentally equipped. May the lessons of righteous living learned at Duke be remembered, may we have faith in the Christian and Democratic way of life, and may we sincerely use our influence in the securing of a just and lasting peace, no matter how small our influence may be.

The men of Duke who fought, died, and won the First World War were termed the "Lost Generation" after the Armistice and the Peace Treaty. The ideal for which they had fought was lost when our Country returned to materialism, isolationism, and the realization that honor and glory had had no part in the battle. The "Lost Generation" became aware of the fact that our national indifference had helped in part to sow again the seeds of dissatisfaction, jealousy, and hatred. May we fight for the right and win. May we be ready to take up arms and fight again for that which we will have won. May we become courageous and firm fighters for the just peace and survive as internationally minded citizens and leaders, so . . .

THAT FREEDOM SHALL NOT PERISH FROM THE EARTH.

FOREWORD

Herein we present the thirty-first volume of Duke University's Chanticleer. It is a war-time volume, and the finished product, therefore, is quite different from the original plans made last September. Yet, we hope that you will find in this book a portion of that spirit which is Duke and which makes us love our University. The staff has enjoyed putting this yearbook together for you, and if we have succeeded in representing the fine character of our University, then we will have accomplished the purpose for which we have worked this year. We hope that through its pages the students will find a reminder of the joys, problems, and friendships of their college life; that our readers, our imparital observers, may find in this volume an understanding and an appreciation of the devotion which we students have for Duke. This year, as an economic conservative, the staff has divided the book into two parts. The first, the CURRICULAR, has been planned to present those aspects of Duke which center around the University Administration, the Faculty, and the activities in and growing out of the classroom. The second part, the EXTRA-CURRICULAR, has been designed to present all the activities so important in a rounded curriculum which are apart from the general study aspect of college.

We hope you will find this volume a source of pleasure as the years pass by.

AROUND THE CAMPUS there are hundreds of beautful and impressive views of our College Community. The magnificent Gothic architecture of West Campus and the classic Georgian of East Campus afford the student body a home in an atmosphere of beauty, grace, and dignity.

CURRICULAR

BECAUSE OF THE ACTIVE FUNCTIONING OF TWO VITAL ORGANS, DUKE HAS BECOME BOTH A REnowned center for the acquiring of academic knowledge and a community for the building and developing of character. Duke is not a mere mass of stone, classrooms, and shelves of books. It is a living, breathing organism with the students as its heart and the administration as its brain. It is a school of preparation for entrance into the intellectual and social world, a world today in demand of the utmost effort of everyone.

The students share in making up the college community and giving their interests and enthusiasm to it. Incoming freshmen gaze with awe at the orderly-arranged buildings and the confusing sea of new faces. As sophomores the awe is replaced by a feeling of loyalty for a community which has accepted them. As Juniors, the students begin to look toward graduation. This year is vital to them, because, in it, they try to fulfill all their ambitions and to attain high honors which will inscribe their names on the pages of Duke history. Senior year finally arrives and is completed all too soon. As seniors, the future is opening wide its doors, and the dignified graduate is prepared to enter the world with all the poise and assurance he has gained in four years. He is able to face that future mentally, physically, and spiritually.

The strong foundation, the backbone of the college is its administration. These men and women are responsible for the high and distinguished position which Duke University holds in the educational world. They shape their policies to benefit us in every way, that we may graduate as better men and women, better citizens.

The students and the administration are, in themselves, Duke University. Such an integrated whole cannot fail to produce all that is fine in life and thought and character. The years spent here, although not completed by many of the boys entering the Services, will ever be remembered as some of the happiest and most fruitful in the lives of its students.

THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES

THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES IS ONE OF THE governing bodies of Duke University. Its powers include the appointment of the University President, the forming of rules and regulations for the government of the institution, and the management of the property and funds of the university. The Board consists of thirty-six members, twenty-four of whom are elected by the North Carolina conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and twelve are elected by the Alumni Association. Each trustee is elected for a term of six years, elections being held every two years so that the trustees are constantly changing but keep enough experienced men in power to guide incoming members.

WITH NEW AIMS THE STUDENT COUNCIL THIS YEAR HAS BEEN directed mainly to the adjustment of the student body to the new war-time changes which have descended on Durham. It was necessary first to guide the students into the proper attitude of reception for the Army Finance School unit located here on our own campus. In the course of time this attitude turned from a spirit of bewildered antagonism to a feeling of warm comradeship with unified purposes.

It was also necessary to devise some means of replacing the students' leisure activities which had heretofore been devoted to the entertainment places of Durham. The Council, with the cooperation of local authorities, directed these activities into more isolated areas in order to avoid the friction which could easily have resulted from unrestricted contact with the numerous strangers in town. In continuance of this plan, campus entertainment and social functions were kept under observation so that there would be ample facilities for the student body to relax. In cases where the program reached a temporary lull, the Council itself took the initiative in providing dances for the entire campus community.

As a result of an expanded program and a desire to maintain contact with each and every member of the campus, the Student Council formulated plans for a Student Senate made up of 36 representative men as a subsidiary body. The details of this plan were presented at a Constitutional Convention, and the Senate came into existence by an almost unanimous vote.

WOMEN'S S.G.A.

Karleen Cooper led the WSGA as its President this year with the assistance of these officers: Zillah Merritt, Vice President; Elizabeth Lewis, Recording Secretary; and Marjorie Lucke, Treasurer.

ALONG WITH THE AIM OF UNIVERSITY COOPERATION, THE Women's Student Government Association was founded for the purpose of securing for the undergraduates a voice in the governing of their affairs. The Executive Council for 1942-43 has had as its goal for the year a more complete fulfillment of this purpose, and has attempted to represent the students in every way possible.

Since this year's Council is the first to serve for an entire war year, many new problems have confronted it, and many new policies have had to be established. The recreational problem has been a serious one, and the Council has tried to alleviate this by contributions to the various dormitories and groups on campus for recreational activities.

This year, the Staff gave to the Council a delegation of authority in which the Council's powers and responsibilities were stated. In its relations with the Staff, the Council has strived for more cooperation not only in this phase of student-administration relations but also in the relations between the entire student body and the Staff.

The Judicial Board of the Association has as always heard all cases of infringement of student government regulations, and tried to judge them with two ends in view: the good of the University and the welfare of the individual. The privilege of being judged by fellow-students is one which the Association cherishes and endeavors to protect.

Regardless of what material things the Council for 1942-43 has accomplished, its work will not have been in vain if it has represented as best it could the interests of the majority of Association members in their own student government.

STUDENT SENATE

AS SET UP UNDER THE REVISED CONSTITUTION OF THE STUDENT Government Association, the Student Senate provides for greater student representation in the Association. The senate is made up of one representative from each of the fraternities, eighteen in number, one representative from each of the freshmen dormitories, and eleven elected representatives chosen by the independents. The Constitution provides that the vice president of the Men's Student Government presides over the Senate; however, during the temporary absence of the vice president, Fran Dale was elected president pro-tempore. Upon the return of Ray Nasher, vice president of the Student Government Association and his succession to the presidency, Fran Dale was declared acting vice president of the student government and president of the senate.

The purpose of the Student Senate is to foster and sponsor any campus student movements, and to take the lead in any reforms affecting the campus. One of the activities of this year's senate was the sponsorship of the Blood Bank. An average of four students a day gave their blood and the blood was immediately processed into the essential blood plasma which is stored for industrial and military emergencies. All the detailed work concerning the Student Government Dances was handled by committees of the senate.

Other problems presented before the senate were the revisions of the Constitution and handling of student elections. The most vigorous support of the senate was given to the suggested compulsory physical training program for all males of Trinity College. This problem was presented to the faculty and administration and was accepted and included in the curriculum for the spring semester of 1943. All male students took the commando course which included military exercises and extensive physical conditioning. At the request of Mr. W. E. Whitford, Superintendant of buildings and grounds, the Senate sponsored a campus-wide campaign to help protect the grass and shrubbery around the campus.

Thus the Senate in its first year sponsored several important campus movements and has discussed campus problems such as social facilities and blackout regulations as they apply to the campus student. The usefulness of the Student Senate has been established and new elections will certainly open up still more fields of endeavor for the student representative body.

Social Standards Committee

Seated: Helen Kindler, B. J. Seawell, Anne Lockhart, Julia Zollicoffer, Edna Sprunt, Beth Holcomb, Ann Bock, Polly Beaver, Chairman, Boots Moore, Ellen Rankin, Betty Jane Bledsoe, Julia Hedrick, Babbie Jarden, Novella Murry, Sharlot Williams, Dolores Bloom, Celia Mae Thompson.
Standing: Jean Knight, Cornelia Yeager, Sylvia Smith, Dottie Watkins, Georgia Rauschenberg.

WITH OTHER CAMPUS ORGANIZATIONS THIS YEAR, THE SOCIAL Standards Committee, arbiter of coed standards, found itself faced with many new problems brought about by the world situation. The new conditions of social entertainment were met by the committee under the combined guidance of Polly Peaver, chairman, and Miss Mary Grace Wilson, adviser.

Although the East Campus formal dinners had to be discontinued this year because of labor conditions in the Union, the committee kept its regular schedule of tea dances, formal dances, and social get-togethers.

For a week in October, freshmen and transfers from East and West were invited to a series of tea dances. Members of the committee, aided by members of the Men's Freshman Advisory Council, supervised the affairs, introducing the new students to each other and creating an atmosphere of informality and friendliness.

Next on the list of fall activities was the traditional Coed Ball, this year more successful than ever despite the lack of elaborate decorations due to priorities. Features of the ball were the promenade and introduction of the Committee members and their escorts and the announcement of the CHANTICLEER beauty Queen, Miss Mary Bradley.

On Thanksgiving night, the Committee sponsored a dance for members of the Officers' Candidate School. East Campusites who attended the affair enjoyed themselves as much as the soldiers. The success of the dance, the first official entertainment on the part of a campus group for the Finance School students, resulted in several more dances, which were sponsored by the committee later in the year.

Social Standards chose as their project this year the redecoration of the Union lobby. This took the place of the gift the Committee usually leaves the University each year.

The Committee published its first Social Standards Handbook, which was distributed to the coeds. Its purpose was to clarify the standards which Duke women are expected to uphold at all times. To add to its effectiveness, small discussion groups were held for freshman women to establish for them sound principles of etiquette and decorum.

The Committee did a good job of a difficult task this year.

ENGINEER'S S.G.A.

OVER ON THE EAST CAMPUS, THE ENGINEERING STUDENT GOVernment Association represents over 300 engineers in Duke's rapidly-growing College of Engineering. In governing students in Southgate and Epworth dormitories as well as engineering students on the West Campus and in town, it, also, is rapidly growing in this, its third year as a separate student government.

The Association came into being in the spring of 1941 to serve and guide engineering students in the newly-established college, and it has now reached the place where it can stand as an important representative group on the campus. The policies of the membership are carried out by an eleven-man council which is composed of representatives from every class. This group evolved from the council of Southgate dormitory two years ago.

Besides its regular judicial duties, which include the regulation of student discipline in cooperation with school authorities, the E.S.G.A. has been engaged in such activities as social affairs, athletics, and publications. The high points of its social season are the Engineers' Balls, which are held twice a year. This year they were held for the first time in the enlarged quarters of the Memorial Gymnasium, and both were well attended and successfully managed financially and socially.

The council widened its athletic program in an extensive intramural campaign as engineering teams in various sports won top honors. As usual, the school was also well represented on the varsity teams.

The Duke Engineer, a magazine published by the College of Engineering, was improved and brought closer to its goal of becoming a regularly-released magazine.

The future of the E.S.G.A. lies directly ahead as well as after the war. As things stand now, the Association's strength lies largely in the fact that its members are well represented in such important campus activities as the N.R.O.T.C., the publications, varsity athletics, intramurals, honorary fraternities, and many others. Whether the E.S.G.A. will continue depends entirely upon what changes are brought about to the college itself. If the school carries on, it will have a student government which has made great progress in establishing itself.

NURSE'S G.S.A.

This year the N.S.G.A. carried on its most extensive program since its founding under the leadership of Ethel Harrison, president; Charlotte Richardson, vice president; Jean Smith, secretary, and Jessie Wall, treasurer.

BEYOND THE MASSIVE EXPANSE OF THE DUKE HOSPITAL IS THE home of a few hundred energetic Duke Nurses. Among these hardworking young women functions a potent organization of students which is the Student Government Association. The purpose of this organization is the regulation of all matters pertaining to the life together of Duke Nurses not under the jurisdiction of the Education Committee, and to cooperate with the Committee for the best interests of the school and for the Nurses of the University.

Duke has been a leader in Student Government Associations for Nursing Schools, and the increased sense of individual responsibility among the students has been truly worth the effort. The monthly meetings are the one time "we all get together," and beside business discussions, we have outstanding speakers and discussion of vital interest.

An addition to the Student Government this year has been the Honor Council. The Council cooperates entirely with the Student Council, and chief contact of the student body with them has been through the "pledge" we have all given toward written work and test papers.

This has been a rocky year for the student government, with the war, the speed-up programs, and the general agony of growth. But, under the able leadership of Ethel Harrison, it has been most successful. Her coöperation and good judgment in respect to all kinds of problems have greatly strengthened the ties of the students and the school. "Dick" Richardson supervised the freshman orientation; Jean Smith supervised general business; Jessie Wall managed the finances; Lila Wells took care of a rounded social program; and Mic Farquhar really put basketball on the map.

But after all, it is the Nursing Students who make the organization, and it is they of whom the Council is proud.

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS

WE, THE CLASS OF 1943, ARE NEARING THE END OF A LONG TRAIL. At the outset of this journey in 1939, the actuality of a 1943 seemed very remote to the eight hundred and fifty members of the class. Now that the "day" is near at hand, we view the time in retrospect and realize that we have experienced four eventful years here at Duke . . . years which will always linger with us through the friendships and ideals created.

By applying ourselves to both the curricular and extracurricular aspects of college, we have been constantly striving to maintain and further the reputation of Duke University as one of the foremost schools in the nation. However, all our time was not devoted to work, as one will realize when he recalls the social activities over this period. Then, too, the progress of Duke as an athletic power was also evident during "our time" . . . we saw the erection of the new indoor stadium . . . we saw four football teams, including the Blue Devils of '41 who played in the transplanted Rose Bowl, which would be a credit to any university . . . we also saw two basketball teams and a small track team win Conference championships.

On December 7, 1941, we were shocked at the bombing of Pearl Harbor, but from that day our efforts have been directed towards helping to win the great conflict. Some of the men remained in school in order that they might better prepare themselves for later service, while others felt that they could not wait until graduation to make their contribution. The women also rose to the occasion by actively participating in their side of the war effort . . . the A.W.V.S., Red Cross, and perhaps greatest of all, by founding the College Organization for General Service, better known as the COGS.

Thus, the class of '43 goes forth, united and better equipped to fight for the preservation of the ideas and ideals that we learned here to cherish and respect here at Duke University where we have lived for four years.

JUNIOR CLASS OFFICERS

AS WE, THE CLASS OF '44, REACH THE CLOSE OF OUR THIRD YEAR, we find ourselves endeavoring to uphold our ideals and the traditions of Duke University at a time when our country is engaged in the greatest conflict of history. Under these altered conditions, we find ourselves, not the carefree young men and women who led a normal college life for almost two years, but a serious-minded group preparing ourselves for the responsibility of defending and rebuilding our country. With this in mind, a great many of us have changed our previously planned curriculum to courses of study which will enable us to aid in the all out program for victory.

Many members of our class have left for the ERC, Army Air Corps, and other branches of the service. For we who remain behind there is much to be done. Our academic program is not the only phase of our college career that is undergoing a change. In planning our social functions and class projects, we have kept foremost in our minds the fact that we must begin now to aid the war effort.

We have contributed to the War Chest drive, encouraged students to buy defense stamps by making it necessary to purchase stamps as admittance to various social functions, helped in Red Cross work, and done many other similar things. The absence of decorations and the depletion in the number of our social functions clearly reflects the fact that we have given up these things so that the extra time, money, and effort may be thrown into defense channels.

As we have worked together this year, centering all our activities around war needs, we have striven to create among our members a spirit of individual responsibility and self-reliance, to encourage the development of personal ideals and high moral standards, to strengthen the bonds of fellowship and unity, to encourage the search for knowledge, to inspire in each member a sense of loyalty to his alma mater, and finally, to endeavor to uphold the cherished traditions of Duke University.

SOPHOMORE CLASS OFFICERS

OUTBREAK OF WAR IN DECEMBER 1941, DECIDED OUR FATE BEFORE the first year was over. Although the class of '45 came to Duke with varied conceptions of what college was going to be and what was expected of students here, we were to proceed with sober determination to get the most out of what was offered here.

As we entered our second year, the traditional outward semblances of sophomoric conduct were pushed aside. We were upperclassmen, yes, but we found we had no time to settle back—put away the books, and begin to play. For those of us in the two men's classes, there was the task of making good in our studies or being disenrolled from our respective reserve corps. For the Women's class, war meant participation in Red Cross work, Civilian Defense Courses, and in general, a sincere effort to help both the war effort of our campus and our nation.

There is a somewhat lighter side to our activities as a class, however. All three branches of our class have cooperated to draw us closer together—to make us one body instead of three separate units. Part of this drive for class unity found expression in a well planned and carefully executed program to bring the three groups together by means of simple social functions participated in by all members of the class of '45. In this movement, we feel we have been very successful. The members of the various classes came to know each other better and to feel common bonds of friendship and interests.

As the year passed, we saw many of our close friends leave school to serve our country. Of these men we can feel justly proud and can look forward to the day when we all will be united once more. Perhaps we have had to suddenly become serious beyond our years—perhaps we have missed something by attending college in war time. We, for the most part, don't feel this is true, however. We do feel that we, the class of '45, are fortunate to be a part of this university and know that we have it in our power to add something lasting to Duke by our united class effort and by the example of those who have gone before us.

SOPHOMORES

The end of their second year of college life means to the members of the Sophomore class the half way point in their journey through Duke University. It means the chance to see the end for which they have been working these past two years. For some it may be the premature ending to some of the happiest days of their lives. To those of us, then, who are furtunate enough to continue with our college life, there falls the responsibility of carrying on for them as well as ourselves—in spite of any doubt and and indecision that may confront us.

Many from this class have already left the University. They may never return to continue the course that they had mapped out for their future. Therefore, our utmost energies must be expended to carry forward the ideals and standards which the war of today prevents them from doing.

In carrying forward the ideals of the University, we must not now forget that we are no longer living in the "Ivory Tower" of college life. We have a responsibility to society which is not fulfilled merely by talking about the necessity of culture and "the banners of light and learning" that must wave over the world. As we enter our third year of University life, then, our responsibility is to prepare ourselves as quickly and as fully as possible for a part in this war world. We have not the right to watch and theorize.

With this in mind the present sophomore class may decide its own future and eventually the future of its civilization.

FRESHMAN CLASS OFFICERS

WITH THE ENTRANCE OF THE FIRST FRESHMAN CLASS TO DUKE University in wartime, the seriousness of purpose which caused Dean Alan K. Manchester to term it "the best freshman class since the depression" quickly won the admiration of upperclassmen, faculty, and administration.

Adjustment of all Duke freshmen—men, women, and engineers—to the university's war effort was almost instantaneous. Approximately 125 first year men attended the summer session under Duke's wartime acceleration program. Enrollment of freshmen in the College of Engineering shattered all previous records. More than 100 cadets were enrolled in the Naval R.O.T.C. Unit; scores enlisted in navy and army enlisted reserve corps and are expecting calls to duty before graduation. The girls did their part too, selling war bonds and stamps during "Women at War Week," donating blood plasma to the hospital's blood bank, making dressings for the Red Cross and defense courses.

Social events, though curtailed sharply, were not forgotten altogether. Both men's and women's classes enjoyed their own private dances, Trinity and Engineering frosh scrapped their age old rivalry momentarily at a stag smoker, and individual freshmen houses entertained at cabin parties; of course, normal dating activities went on as usual. A big bee in the bonnet of freshman girls was the announcement of Mary Bradley as CHANTICLEER beauty queen, first freshman to win the coveted honor since 1937. Freshman men equally showed their superiority over upperclassmen by soundly thrashing the sophs in BOS' first annual Frosh-Soph field day. Also in scholarship the Freshman Class ranked second in class standing.

Freshmen by the score have entered the armed forces since September, and no one knows how many will stay here until 1946. However, it's a safe bet that those who do remain will carry on in the same spirit of determination and loyalty to Duke which labeled the class of '46 "one to watch."

This is the end of the first year for the men and women of the Class of 1946 at Duke University. One fourth of the job is finished. What the chances may be for the completion of the four year course, or the speeded-up three year curriculum, only time will be able to tell us. These young men and women entered college with ideas of planning a future when there is scarcely a future to plan. It has been mapped out for us; we are going to war when our Country thinks we are ready. But even during and after the war, we have a great future to plan for and to make sure it is realized. We must not become another "Lost Generation" which emerged from the last World War.

Our fathers and our uncles were those who have been classed in that "Lost Generation," for they are the ones who went to Europe to fight for an ideal, a better world, glory, and honor. However, they came back and there were no stories of honor and glory and an ideal. There was no comment. Our Country turned its back on the aftermath and slipped into a routine life concentrated on materialism. We had won the war, but we had lost the peace.

All thought was centered around that which was paid, and not that which was gained. The real issue of 1918, a German-dominated Europe, was overlooked. Time and space seemed the only thought in the minds, and consequently we fell into isolationism. But both time and space are illusory circumstances.

If we win this war, we must not fall victims again to the opiates of time and space. We must recognize our strength as individuals. We must believe that man is intelligent, and that he can surely learn that the only way for him to abtain his personal freedoms, security, and happiness is through cooperation.

Likewise we must become internationally minded, based on cooperation. In order for us to have liberties, we must see to it that everyone else has those liberties which we desire and must have to be happy.

We must plan for international cooperation, and we must realize the consequences. We must be willing to bear arms again to fight when our world's way of life is threatened. We must not again forget what we have been fighting for.

There may seem to be no future to which we can look forward. But we have a great one, a magnificent one, a world-wide one.

We have our college course, in hectic and uncertain days, before us. But we must not forget the lessons of the past. We must plan our future and the world's future together. We must not become another "Lost Generation."

DELTA EPSILON SIGMA

A SMALL GROUP OF STUDENTS IN THE COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING founded Delta Epsilon Sigma, local honorary engineering fraternity, in 1930. Its chief objects are to promote interest in engineering, to recognize superior scholarship, leadership, and character, and to some day petition for a chapter of Tau Beta Pi, national honorary engineering fraternity. Membership has become recognized as the highest honor obtainable by students in the College of Engineering. In addition to the scholarship requirement, a candidate must have achieved distinction in unselfish service to both the Engineering college and the University.

Delta Epsilon Sigma has increased its activities to a great extent since its founding. The members of the Society work with the orientation of new engineering students during Freshman Week; they sponsor the Annual Engineer's Show; and at the end of each year the members honor the outstanding student of the Freshman Class with a prize. In short, D.E.S. endorses and supports any project that, in the eyes of its members, will help to make a better College of Engineering.

ORIGINATING NEAR THE END OF THE LAST CENTURY, 9019 IS THE local honorary fraternity for juniors which recognizes outstanding scholarship during the first two years of college. It is the oldest honorary in existence at Duke, having initiated over 600 members. Since its origin, many of its functions have been taken over by other campus organizations.

For example, social fraternities had been banned at Trinity College in 1899, and the social activities of 9019 played a large part in inducing the administration to permit their return. Its influence was also felt in fields which are now controlled by such organizations as O.D.K., Red Friars, Tau Kappa Alpha, literary societies, and the various publications. Furthermore, in the late 1880's it adopted Washington's birthday as its special holiday and made it the occasion each year of bringing some outstanding lecturer to the campus for "the civic celebration."

The underlying purpose of the organization, however, has been to promote scholarship on the campus. This year, it was greatly handicapped by decreasing membership due to the draft and hastened graduations, and also by the fact that its president, Ray Nasher, was called into active service in the Navy for over a month. However, the group finally initiated a large number of new men late in the spring to assure its continuance as an organization and to recognize the superior students of the campus.

The requirement for membership is an average of 2.25 quality points for the first two years of school. Since this is the average required by Phi Beta Kappa for three years, it serves also as an incentive to spur a man on to his best efforts during his sophomore year.

It is hoped that after the war, the fraternity will regain its former active position on the campus, where it will carry on such projects as sponsoring debate tournaments, holding literary contests, publishing a quarterly publication, and sponsoring open forums with celebrated speakers. All of these were carried out at one stage or another of 9019's development, and this will be the goal of its members in more stable times to come. Then, again, they will carry forward high standards of Duke scholarship.

PHI ETA SIGMA

The officers who so well carried out their tasks this difficult year are: President, Milton Weinberg, Jr.; Vice President, Richard L. Gilbert; Secretary, Jesse Proctor; Treasurer, Harry Wechsler.

WHEN THE DUKE CHAPTER OF PHI ETA SIGMA WAS ESTABLISHED IN 1931, it set its requirements for eligibility at an average of 2.25 quality points per semester hour. This average formerly had to be maintained for one semester or the entire year, but this year, due to the accelerated program which gave a new emphasis to summer school attendance, freshmen who attended the 1942 summer session and earned at least twelve hours credit were admitted to the society on the usual grade basis.

In an endeavor to promote scholarship on the campus, Phi Eta Sigma presents awards each year for freshman attainments of scholarship. At the end of each semester and midsemester, the Society presents a scholarship plaque to the freshman house averaging the greatest number of quality points per man. Competition in the race for the plaque is keen among the houses, and the freshmen look forward each time with interest to the results. Phi Eta Sigma's second award is a cup presented to the fraternity pledge group with the greatest average increase in quality points. Winning these awards is considered a distinct honor by the various freshmen houses and fraternities, and the prizes serve in this way to raise materially the scholastic standards of the whole campus.

The greatest service rendered to Duke by Phi Eta Sigma is that of scholarship aid to freshmen. This year, the Society functioned with the cooperation of the Freshman Advisory Council to assist a very large number of freshmen having difficulties with their studies. Its members have devoted a generous part of their time to scholastic aid, and the results this year have been more than satisfactory.

Membership into Phi Eta Sigma is a goal for every freshman to work and study for. It represents an achievement in itself, and the Society holds a high position of importance and respect on the campus.

IVY

Officers of this honorary society are: President, Martha Nicholson; Vice President, Ruth Kansteiner; Secretary, Sharlot Williams; Treasurer, Betsy Rankin. They were advised by Miss Natalie Smith.

BECAUSE OF A DESIRE TO OFFER AN ENCOURAGEMENT TO HIGH standards of scholarship, Ivy, the freshman honorary society for women, was founded at Duke in 1939. While Ivy has been given the honor of marshalling at formal functions of the Woman's College, it is essentially an honor organization rewarding and encouraging excellence in studies.

To be eligible for membership a freshman must make an average of 2.25 quality points for the first semester or for the entire year. Each year in February new members are initiated into Ivy and assume the duties of the retiring members. Twenty-seven freshmen, an unprecedented number, were taken into Ivy from the class of 1945 in February of last year, and in the fall of 1942, four additional women who had qualified at the end of the second semester were elected to membership.

Ivy endeavors to raise a goal towards which all freshmen women will strive and which will be a stimulus to the student body as a whole. In the fall and spring after midsemester examinations freshmen girls making a B average are entertained by the society. Also in the interest of promoting scholarship, Ivy members have, for the past few years, offered their services as tutors at examination time. The members of Ivy and their adviser, Mrs. W. S. Persons, however, regard Ivy as an honorary society rather than a service organization.

In the words of the initiation ceremony, "Ivy strives to stimulate intellectual curiosity in freshmen women and to foster a well-rounded personality. In attaining this goal it urges each member to value the gaining of knowledge and the building of character above the mere earning of grades. Election to Ivy is at the same time an honor and a responsibility towards the scholastic life of the college."

SANDALS

The leaders of Sandals this year have been President, Lee Howard; Vice President, Methel Greenwell; Secretary, Barbara Jane Mayhew; Treasurer, Thalia Bell. Advising was Miss Arlene Ditlevson.

WOMEN WHO WERE OUTSTANDING IN THE PREVIOUS FRESHMAN class are elected to Sandals, the sophomore honorary society recognizing service. Its twenty members worked together this year to accomplish their objectives which are similar in many ways to those of Beta Omega Sigma on the Men's campus.

The group is composed of twenty girls whose appointment depends upon excellence of leadership, scholarship, character, and service. They are chosen at an impressive tapping service in a special spring assembly. Inherent in the organization is the idea that membership is more than a mere honor, a reward for past accomplishments; it carries with it a pledge of service for the future.

Freshman Week opens the year of activity calling for guides for parents and new girls, proctors for placement exams, and helpers in registration. After this week, the responsibility shifts to the upkeep of the Ark and regular campus duties. The Ark is opened and supervised each night by a Sandals as a recreational center for dancing, playing games, reading, or writing letters. Saturday afternoon open-houses are also held here, as well as special receptions of various kinds which Sandals sponsor.

Sandals acts as an assistant to the Student Government Association, being an intermediary between the Council and the student body. It also assists socially by holding an annual Sandals-Student Government banquet in honor of the new members of each, and cooperates with B.O.S. in holding an annual dance, which this year was one of the most successful in history, both financially and socially.

Under the stimulus of changed and changing conditions, Sandals is becoming more and more a progressive organization, ever alert to new needs arising on campus.

BETA OMEGA SIGMA

Officers, advised by Dean Manchester, well carried out their tasks this year. They are: President, Charles Blanchard; Vice President, Sam Gantt; Secretary, Bob Lipe; Treasurer, Kenneth Gable.

BETA OMEGA SIGMA, ONE OF THE OLDEST HONORARY FRATERNITIES at Duke University, continued its record of service to the campus community this year. For twenty-four years, Beta Omega Sigma had served as a service and disciplinary group until last spring when its charter was amended and it was re-established as a strictly service organization with the power to establish freshman regulations, but not to directly enforce them.

Each year. B.O.S. selects the thirty outstanding members of the previous freshman class to serve as sophomores in the organization. They are selected on the basis of one or more of the following: leadership in activities, athletic ability, and scholarship.

This year, B.O.S., under its president, Charles Blanchard, did an excellent job. To start off the year, freshmen were acquainted with regulations and traditions of the school at assemblies, and were oriented socially at openhouses held on the East Campus. To instill in the class a feeling of unity, a Sophomore-Freshman field day which included track events, a push-ball contest, and a football game was held.

Then B.O.S. volunteered 100 per cent to take the O.C.D. air-raid warden training course, receiving at its completion official certificates, arm bands, and the authority to enforce campus black-outs which were held periodically during the year. To take the place of the regular homecoming float prizes, B.O.S. gave awards for outstanding decorations of freshman and fraternity houses, and finally, it constructed the annual bonfire for the Carolina game despite a shortage of material, and protected it efficiently against would-be arsonists from Carolina. In its newly-defined function, B.O.S. did even better than expected in a difficult wartime year. It has clearly shown its adaptability to the changing conditions of college life in war time.

TAU PSI OMEGA

Dr. and Mrs. Neal Dow led Tau Psi Omega through a successful year as advisers with these student officers: Dave Gaillard, president, Leo Wrench, vice president, Ann Davis, secretary, M. S. Rae, treasurer.

First row: Ronk, Wrench, Gaillard, Rae, Kindler.
Second row: McCall, Brand, Stackhouse, Micara, Samovitch, Pinsky, Thresher, Zirato, Horton, Ward.

As the home chapter of a national honorary French organization, Tau Psi Omega was founded and developed at Duke. In former years a local organization, Tau Psi Omega concentrated on a two-fold program of expansion to other schools and continued furtherance of interest in the French language on this campus during the course of the year.

Dedicated to the recognition of scholastic excellence in the study of French, the fraternity has as its principle object the bringing together of French-speaking students for conversation and amusement whether they have continued their class study of the language throughout college or not. This year, for the first time in the history of the organization, the group cancelled its annual French play in Page auditorium as a necessary war-time measure.

Despite the war-created shortage of West campus members, however, the society has continued most of its other traditional activities unimpaired. Regular biweekly meetings were held throughout the year. Many of these meeting were conducted in the form of open houses which the various French language classes were invited to attend. From the visitors at these open houses were chosen the individuals to be honored by initiation into the society at the semiannual initiation ceremony.

In regard to the fall of France, Tau Psi Omega has consistently approved the policies of the Free French as detailed by General De Gaulle, and its major war aim has been the restoration of the French Republic, freed of German military domination.

Present plans call for the continued expansion of the society in spite of war-time difficulties, and a return to the dramatic emphasis for which the group was known as soon as the war shall be terminated. In war and always, they emphasize French culture.

CHI DELTA PHI

Officers of Duke's national literary society, Chi Delta Phi, this successful year were Marjorie Collier, president; Boots Moore, vice president; Virginia Ward, secretary; and Marian Eder, treasurer.

First row: Phipps, Nichols, Succop, Merritt, Bulter, Wheatley, Wrenn, Moore.
Second row: Kindler, Goodnow, Jansen, Hughes, Collier, Thresher, Bailey, Fries, Hoover, Barry.

OUTSTANDING GIRLS IN THE FIELD OF CREATIVE WRITING are chosen for membership in Chi Delta Phi, national honorary literary society on the Campus. Some of the members of Duke's Zeta chapter go in for journalism, and they are well represented on the Chronicle staff; others prefer the Duke 'n' Duchess and the Archive as the outlet for their talents; from still others, as yet unknown to the campus as literary writers, we expect great things, for we realize their growing potentialities.

The meetings of Zeta chapter are somewhat peculiar. Too often, in spite of the secretary's best efforts, meetings remain a dark secret, known only to the president and the aforesaid secretary. They consist mainly of cookies and discussions, or as Oliver Wendell Holmes said of similar functions, "Gabble; Gobble, and Git!" Back in December, we had a series of teas for prospective members, and a few weeks later, we initiated a talented group of girls. Our March meeting brought the usual cookies, discussions about our latest "works," and plans for our part in the National Prose and Poetry contest.

Included in the various activities of the local chapter is the extremely interesting function of the social hour. Every well-planned meeting is centered about this. The rest of each meeting is spent in discussions—affable argumentation, we call it—during which members may sprawl, crawl, or bawl according to the individual's impulse of the moment. The minutes are usually read, but the secretary this year has never managed to bring the list of members.

During the few serious moments of the conclave, the president leads a discussion on short stories, poems, or other literary forms. But no matter what the book or discussion is, the Zeta Chapter of Chi Delta Phi finds its group life great fun.

PRE-MEDICAL SOCIETY

This year the Pre-Medical Society enjoyed one of its most successful years under leadership of Lanny Ogburn, president; Leon Feldman, vice president; Annette Hineley, secretary; Jim Golden, treasurer.

BECAUSE THIS YEAR THE CLUB WORKED IN THE INTERESTS OF its more active war-time policy, the Pre-Medical society has more than ever sought to promote the original aims and purposes of the society: to serve as a cooperative center for intelligent pre-medical thought; to establish a close relationship between the pre-medical students and the faculties of both undergraduate and medical schools; to develop among the pre-medical students an ever-increasing sense of the high standards of character and responsibility embodied in the medical profession; and to stimulate within the minds of the Pre-Medical students the correlation of a general cultural background with the more specific Pre-Medical training.

The membership, which is based on scholastic achievement, personality, and interest, was the largest in several years with a total of seventy despite the loss of many of its members to the draft and to various medical schools. Transfers and second semester Freshmen were admitted for the first time in the history of the society.

Under the leadership of the Executive Committee, the Duke University Pre-Medical Society has supported the pre-medical students on the campus by promoting pre-medical preparation, development, and comradeship among its members, and by encouraging the development of the best doctors possible in the profession.

PI MU EPSILON

BESTOWING HONOR ON THOSE WHO HAVE DONE EXCELLENT work in beginning mathematics is the purpose of Pi Mu Epsilon; furthering mathematical study and research; and, in general, encouraging interest in mathematics. The qualifications for initiation to membership in the fraternity include a "B" average in mathematics plus a "C" average in all other courses.

With the help of its faculty adviser, Dr. W. W. Elliott, the local chapter is organized to fulfill its purpose. Its interests during the past year were definitely in line with the war-time aspects of mathematics, as was shown by the subject matter presented by such guest speakers as Lt. Colonel Crist, Professor Seeley, of the Electrical Engineering Department, and Dr. Maker, of the Mathematics Department.

Now that the nation is involved in totally mechanized warfare, there is unusual emphasis on mathematics. The armed forces depend upon mathematical training for advanced specialization in navigation and ordnance. Also, science has assumed great war-time importance, and mathematics is essential in the study of physics, chemistry, and engineering. In aiding students along these lines, Pi Mu Epsilon is proud to contribute its part to this program.

Besides the invitation of guest speakers, Pi Mu Epsilon held regular monthly meetings at which student members presented papers and discussed them with the group. A prize was given for the best student paper presented.

The national fraternity was established at Syracuse Univeristy in 1914, and the Duke chapter, North Carolina Alpha was chartered in 1932. Officers for the school year, 1942-43 were Margaret Ross, Bessie Cox, John Hale, and Charles Lanham, with Hale taking Miss Ross' post of president upon her graduation in February. Dr. W. W. Elliott was the adviser.

STUDENT FORUM

This year the Student Forum brought the campus community one of its most interesting and well-rounded lecture series in its history. The six hard-working girls are to be commended for their Duke service.

ON THE EAST CAMPUS THERE IS A SMALL GROUP OF WOMEN, NOT often in the limelight, but women who work throughout the year to bring cultural entertainment to the University Community. These women are the six members of the Student Forum. The Committee was established in the spring of 1935 as a subcommittee of the Women's Student Council. Under the auspices of the Women's College, the Forum executes its primary purpose by bringing distinguished and entertaining speakers to the University. The Committee also functions for the University by sponsoring open forums on the East Campus for discussion of campus problems.

Student Forum's program for this year is one of which the six senior women can be justly proud in having presented to the campus community. Last fall Franklin P. Adams, famed quiz artist of the radio, spoke on "Innocent Merriment." Jan Struthers, the genuine "Mrs. Miniver," spoke on the campus in February. Madame Nadia Boulanger, teacher of composition technique, was the guest of the committee and the Department of Aesthetics in the spring.

Chairman Audrey Bracken directed her committee enthusiastically and effectively. Each of the other five members found satisfaction in doing her particular job. Sheena Webster managed the correspondence with the efficiency of any New York agent. Shirley Bloom was assigned to the legal details of the contracts; Mary Mackall kept the committee's aspirations within the limits of her well-planned budget. Ann Tobias, social chairman, kept the famous guests in a whirl of entertainment during their visits. Boots Moore managed publicity to such an extent that the Townspeople thronged the ticket lines. All these competent senior women, however, found comforting wisdom in their new adviser, Miss Lois Raymond.

ALMOST AT THE END OF ITS TWO YEAR EXISTENCE, the Duke N.R.O.T.C. has become as efficient in its operations as any of the Nation's other similar units. Due to the gravity of the present war, it has been given added importance, and a speed-up program has been instituted under which cadets are enabled to earn an ensign's commission in the United States Naval Reserve within a three-year period. The one hundred seven freshmen and ninety-five sophomores, in accordance with the Navy Department's new college training program, will be placed on an active duty status July 1, 1943.

The activities of the Unit center about the new indoor stadium which houses both the armory and the naval administrative Offices. In the administrative offices are found a very much respected group of Naval Officers detailed to Duke for the training of the prospective reserve officers. As commandant of the unit, Captain A. T. Clay, who has had world-wide naval experience, supervises all the activities of the unit. Second in command is invaluable Lt. Commander Pierson. Lt. Commander Seagroves and Lt. Stubbs round out the officer personnel of the unit, all of which are graduates of the Naval Academy at Annapolis. Chief Petty Officers Henrich, Mason, Robinson, Douglass, and Wilde are the invaluable teachers of the practical applications of the naval theory learned in the classroom.

A.S.M.E

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF MECHANICAL ENGINEERS GRANTED ITS charter to members of the engineering school of Duke University in 1934, and since then, the local chapter has developed along the lines laid out for it by the national society. Its main purposes have been to promote the study of engineering subjects and to bring the students into closer contact with practicing engineers than they would ordinarily come in a curricular study program.

The furtherance of interest in academic studies has been accomplished to a great extent by the use of educational films which are shown at regular meetings of the group. To accomplish the second purpose, the society has had as guest speakers such outstanding men as Captain E. V. Rickenbacker, outstanding personality and authority on far eastern warfare; Professor A. G. Christie, president of the national A.S.M.E. in 1939; Lionel Marks, leading educator in the engineering field; and Major Alexander P. de Seversky, foremost authority in aviation today.

The local chapter of the society was led by Clair Gingher this year; it carried on the usual active program of academic and social affairs, as well as energetic cooperation with the campus community in such necessary wartime measures as trial blackouts and scrap drives. Present plans call for careful study of wartime developments in the field of engineering and the continuance of the chapter as long as there are a sufficient number of interested and capable mechanical engineers in attendance at the University.

First row: Mr. E. Theiss, Honorary Chairman, Rose, Massell, Lindeberg, Wolloff, Walters, Gingher, Jackson, Edens, Beer, Taburn.
Second row: Andrews, Guger, Ulyss, Wagner. Brilhart, Lyon, MacMaster, Wald, Kleinhenz, Topham, Golledge.
Third row: McClelland, Myers, Close, Metz, Hones, Hogarth, M. Johnson, Rudinoff, E. Johnson, Gile, Chapman.

The Duke Branch of the Institute of Aeronautical Sciences which was recently organized on October 1, 1941, was led this year by Spencer McMaster. In considering certain points which it was working on, the chapter invited various men to speak on various phases of the engineering side of aviation, and held moving pictures to illustrate graphically the principles involved in the problems. In these and other ways, the chapter rapidly developed its organization along lines laid out for it by the Institute.

The local student chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers gained much in the past months by speakers of experience who told the group about the civil engineering aspect of the nation's war effort. The problems of army camp construction were discussed by Bill Freeze '45, Henry Grant '43, Bill Black '44, and Joe Rugo '43. Faculty members also told the story of summer jobs. Outstanding was Miss Louise Hall who talked on aerial photography and its part with the armed forces.

A.I.E.E

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF ELECTRICAL ENGINEERS LED BY ITS chairman, Paul Sherertz, continued during the school year, 1942-43 to carry out its objectives as stated by the national organization. These purposes are to operate under the auspices of the Institute in aiding the development of the latent abilities of students both in curricular fields and in leadership.

To accomplish these, the chapter held meetings at least once a month at which specific problems were discussed and lectured upon by members of the group. In this way, a pool of information was acquired and the qualities of public speaking so essential to leadership were also brought out. An attempt was made to deal with subjects which were not a regular part of classroom routine, but which were of a practical nature, usually on the latest developments in engineering fields. The chapter considered the value of these discussion periods to be so great that all business was relegated to a minor part of the meeting, and arrangements were made by the officers of the chapter on most questions concerning money matters.

The war cut field trips down to a minimum. However, there was one very interesting visit to the Duke Hospital to study the electron microscope, the 13th to be constructed in the country.

The local chapter had its beginning in 1927 when Professor Seeley applied for the charter. Since then, it has worked thoroughly and intelligently in its planing so that there is now one hundred per cent membership in the junior and senior electrical engineering classes.

The other officers besides Sherertz were: Marshall, Hottel, Clark, and Professor Meier.

DELTA PHI ALPHA

First row: Heim, Wellnitz, Cox, Dr. Vollmer, Wrench, Minner, Beckert, O'Kane, Wettstein.
Second row: Gardner, Wallace, Ferguson.

Delta Phi Alpha's officers for this year were Lenore Wrench, president; Marcus Hickman, vice president; and Richard Long and Arthur Gardner, secretary-treasurers. Dr. W. W. Vollmer advised the society.

WOFFORD COLLEGE IN SOUTH CAROLINA IS THE FOUNDER'S chapter of Delta Phi Alpha, national German society, where it was chartered in 1929. The present Duke chapter was organized two years later, its charter members being drawn from a local German club which had been on the campus for several years.

Membership into the fraternity is only granted to students who have an average of 2.25 quality points per semester hour through the second year of college German, or its equivalent, and who have shown a sincere interest in the German language and literature.

The basic purpose of the organization is to bring together able students, providing them, through social means, with advantages not available to them as individuals, and to help them broaden their interests in German. Due to various reasons we, the Omicron chapter, have not been overly active in the past year, but a number of interesting meetings were held. Two initiation meetings, a picnic, and several cultural programs formed the main activities of the 1942-1943 season. Twelve new members were added to the fraternity in January.

The officers for the past year were: President: Leonor Wrench, Vice President: Marcus Hickman, and Secretary-Treasurer: Richard Long. Since the latter withdrew from college in January, Arthur Gardner was elected to his vacant position.

The fraternity owes special gratitude to its helpful and generous adviser, Dr. Vollmer, chairman of the German department, who has encouraged and advised Delta Phi Alpha throughout the year. It is in a large part due to his efforts that the fraternity has enjoyed a successful season during an otherwise unfavorable year and has gone ahead to encourage interest in German literature.

EXTRA-CURRICULAR

SAY WE'RE A VERSATILE CREW, WE CHILDREN OF THE FREE! WE THIRST FOR KNOWLEDGE, love the active, revel in the lightness and gaiety of life. Duke has taught us not only now to be versatile but really well-rounded. We have learned to weigh the values of things on our scales. We, the coming generation have the typically American trait of congregating, whether it be dances, football games, club meetings or old-fashioned bull-sessions. We get together at all possible times, and, what we glean from this, we take back to the four corners from which we come. This is the extra of our life and education at Duke—the Extra-Curricular. It is as integrated a part of our education as "Eight o'clocks." We come to Duke as undeveloped people, and, through our four years here, we realize to a great extent our possibilities. On Duke Campus, there is an organization for every type of interest, whether our interest be musical, dramatic, literary, scientific, athletic, social service, or purely social. We join organizations as apprentices, literally work ourselves up through the ranks until we know the organizations thoroughly, and then we are fullfledged and capable members. We paint scenery, write articles and stories, serve on committees—and like it. We do it the hard way—the Democratic way. For here, we live and work in a democracy of our own, which is woven into a much larger pattern for which we are apprenticing to be intelligent members. We find here in our organizations that ability is the factor that counts. Everyone is given a chance to develop their own latent talents. These talents are nurtured and watched, and they yield gloriously for the individual, the organization and for the colledge as a whole. Through the organizations and activities we find ourselves—and each other. We actually find each other, for we constantly work with each other individually and as organizations. We exchange our ideas among ourselves and with other colleges. If our talents are particularly outstanding, we are recognized by the various organizations on the campus. When we leave Duke, we take not only four years of learning from books, but four years of experience of jobs well done, friendships warmly and solidly won.

Y.M.C.A. CABINET

Second row: Kempton Jones, Bill Raup, Wes Gilbert, Richey Hogue, Bill Henderson, Lanny Ogburn, Sherry Sherwood, Sid Anderson, Bert Early.

BECAUSE EACH YEAR A NEW Y.M.C.A. CABINET FINDS ITSELF confronted with a myriad of new problems, this 1942-43 "Y" year was indeed no exception. The work of the Cabinet is most aptly summed up in the word "adaptive" . . . a program adapted to a campus gone to war.

Conducting inspiring devotionals at the numerous Council and Cabinet meetings, the Chaplain was able to make a most valuable contribution. There were many baffling and ofttimes discouraging complexities that were only surmounted by such unforgettable moments of inspiration.

Under the guidance of another Cabinet member, a new feature, student-faculty study groups, was introduced. With the aid of interested members of the faculty, informal groups met in student halls and rooms to discuss problems foremost on the minds of the average college student in wartime. Another new feature of the "Y's" program was made possible by two men who published an informative pamphlet, "The Activities of the Duke University Y.M.C.A."

The Social chairman cooperated fully with the W.S.A.B. The Christmas party again stole the show, amidst a barrage of campus Yuletide gatherings. Able leadership made possible a welcomed expansion of the Boys Club in more than a dozen City grammar schools.

Another cabinet member headed a large group of students interested in directing recreational activities at the Edgemont Community Center in one of the most needy sections of Durham. Dad's Day had to be called off for the duration for obvious wartime reasons, but the Club proved itself a self-perpetuating and active organization as the Dad's Day Scholarship Fund mounted to a sizable sum—an attestation to the unselfish and loyal spirit of all Duke Dads.

Religious Emphasis Week was a huge success with its two speakers, the Reverend Mr. T. B. Cowan and the Reverend Mr. E. E. Aubrey. Freshman Week, which went smoothly and efficiently, proved itself to be a good omen. Typical indeed of a year's working and enjoying work, which was aimed at promoting Christian ideals and principles on Duke Campus, was the active result of the Y and its Cabinet's program.

Y.W.C.A. CABINET

The Y.W.C.A. Cabinet was supervised this year by these officers; Helen Brinson, president; Betty Hutchison, vice president; Nancy McKission secretary; Shirley Shive, treasurer; and Miss Farrar Babcock, adviser.

AN ORGANIZATION ALWAYS FUNCTIONS BEST WHEN LED BY THE ablest leader. This year Helen Brinson, president of the "Y," transferred her enthusiasm and novel ideas to an excellent "Y" cabinet. Several necessary new posts were added to the cabinet: Karleen Cooper representing the W.S.G.A., Julie Dysart, Conference Committee chairman, who keeps the "Y" in contact with all "Y" conferences in the country and arranges conferences at Duke, and Audrey Bracken, head of the newly established Edgemont Community Center Committee.

The cabinet returned to school in high spirits for Freshman Week. Sara Vandergriff and her social committee gave a tea the first afternoon, followed by parties in the dorms and picnics for the freshmen. Throughout the year the social committee helped with many social functions. Betty Hutchison, the vice president, conducted a very successful membership drive. Luane Adams, chairman of the Social Service Committee, started girls working early in October at the nursery school, spastic clinic, Wright's Refuge, Duke Hospital, and Girl Scouts. The Worship Committee, under the leadership of Margie Stark, started extremely well on the first Sunday of the year by holding a very impressive vesper service at twilight on the Auditorium steps. During the year she and her committee held other vespers and also discussion groups. Kathryn Gilliam, chairman of the Student-Faculty Relations Committee, arranged parties and discussion groups with students and faculty in order to get them acquainted with each other. Jane Curry, publicity head, used her pen and initiative ably to make a very clever pamphlet describing the work of the "Y" to freshmen. Her committee handled all the publicity for the "Y" throughout the year.

SOPH "Y" COMISSION

Ruth Kansteiner led the Sophomore Y Commission this year as its president. The other officers were Thalia Bell, vice president; Anne Hillman, secretary, Virginia Totman, treasurer; and Miss Farrar Babcock, adviser.

AN ACTIVE ORGANIZATION OF SOPHOMORE GIRLS INTERESTED in "Y" activities makes up the Sophomore "Y" Commission, which united to better initiate and carry out projects it deems necessary for campus welfare. A voluntary group of 85 girls, the commission also acts as an assisting body to such other of the campus organizations which might need its help. The rapid growth of the commission, which was made voluntary only last year, and the wide scope of its activities is in large part due to the enthusiasm of its members and also to its fine leadership.

Improvement and augmentation of the facilities of the Ark, campus recreation center, so that it might better offset the need created by war exigencies on campus and the crowded conditions in the town itself, was taken by the commission, in cooperation with Sandals, as its main project of the year. Arrangements were made to keep the Ark open at every possible time and entertainments were planned such as dances, parties, and open houses. The most successful of these were girl-break dances for sophomore girls and especially invited West Campusites. These dances were planned not only to increase recreational activities but also to further intercampus social relations. The commission with help from the Women's College Student Government bought ping pong equipment, victrola records, cards, and games.

In the first complete Women's College participation in the annual Religious Emphasis Week, the group sponsored all programs, gave luncheons, teas, and planned the discussion groups held on East campus, and cooperated with the Y.M.C.A. in sponsoring all inter-campus programs. In addition to these activities, the commission helped the Y.W.C.A. put on the "Y" Fair.

FRESHMAN "Y" COUNCIL

First row: L. J. Berngard, J. F. Waters, J. H. Hickerson, S. H. Marsh, H. M. Richman, J. H. Hattaway, L. J. Windham, D. S. Forlees, R. R. Washer.
Second row: H. E. Beaudouin, L. E. Rosen, D. B. Buckley, T. E. Rowan, C. W. Gilbert, H. S. Pablo, W. Elam, R. F. Murray, L. S. Magbee, R. A. Johnson, P. W. Layden.
Third row: R. L. Sulzer, D. D. Millard, J. R. Huntley, R. J. Oder, A. G. Talley, T. E. Sandberg, A. Miller, P. H. Spence, H. L. Simpson, D. K. Tally.

OBJECTIVES WHICH HAVE BEEN THE AIMS OF PREVIOUS FRESHman "Y" Councils were much the same this year also. These objectives included three points: to acquaint freshmen with the ways of the campus; to have them meet each other; and to help them to form a truly religious attitude in their everyday life.

In doing this, the council trained men for future positions in the "Y" and carried on the bulk of detail work required by the senior cabinet and the sophomore "Y" council.

The council was open to all members of the class and included over 80 regular members. Its officers were Wes Gilbert, president; Joe McAlister, Sec.-Treas.; and Joe Riley, vice preisdent.

Probably the most worth while work of the council was in connection with downtown boy's work and with supervision of the Edgemont Community Center. Almost every member had some part in these undertakings. Another work closely allied with this was campus service which took place in the Duke Hospital and other places where help was needed.

Other than constructive work outside, there was much time spent on intellectual stimulation in forums with professors, and in lectures by other prominent campus speakers on current problems. One of the finest programs of the year took the form of a smoker held in February for entering freshmen.

Meetings were held regularly every two weeks at which time other activities were planned and scheduled.

Although Dad's Day as an actuality was made impossible by transportation difficulties, the committee continued and was aided by the freshmen in securing contributions for the scholarship fund.

At Christmas time, the Council took traditional charge of decorating the Men's Union building with suitable ornaments for the Christmas season. Of course, this year was a very abnormal one, and consequently many of the former arrangements had to be cancelled in favor of simple decorations.

The war prevented various features of the "Y" such as retreats and trips, but it encouraged fellowship and greater internal unity. As a campus service unit, the Freshman "Y" Council performed an important function efficiently and unobtrusively.

SOPHOMORE "Y" COUNCIL

First row: Gray, Landesberg, Davis, Sherwood, president, Johnston, Gable, Powell, Brand.
Second row: Brinkley, Hybert, Buckley, Merill, Berkley, Dillen, Mac Whiter, Windberry.

BECAUSE THIS YEAR AS IN PAST YEARS THE SENIOR Y.M.C.A. CABinet looked to the Sophomore Council for its future members, it became necessary, however, due to the national emergency and the drafting of college students into the armed forces, to institute a training program which would familiarize the members of the Sophomore Council with the duties and responsibilities of each member of the Senior Cabinet as quickly as possible. The program was set up thus; two or three boys were placed under the cabinet member in whose particular field they wished to be trained; each cabinet member had his own group to whom he taught his own specific duties, and each boy in the group was responsible for some definite share of the work in which his group was engaged. In this manner the sophomores acquired the qualities of leadership, while at the same time the cabinet member was relieved of much of the work and responsibility of his position.

The campus Lost and Found department was begun anew and featured a more extensive system of collections, made at various collection stations on the campus. Also inaugurated were two new systems; one being that of filing cards for the "found" articles and also for those articles reported lost, and the other a service by which articles containing identification were promptly returned to their rightful owners.

As is customary, the Sophomore Council was again in charge of the annual Thanksgiving Service in the Duke Chapel. This year's speaker was Dr. Kenneth W. Clark of Duke. The efforts of the Council were more than rewarded by the size of the congregation; which was one of the largest ever to attend this service.

The short bi-monthly business meetings of the Council were enhanced by joint meetings with the Sophomore Y.W.C.A. Commission, by programs put on by Council members themselves, and by talks given by members of the faculty and athletic staff.

In addition to the afore-mentioned duties, the Council also cooperated with the Senior Cabinet by providing canvassers for the Y.M.C.A. membership drives and by giving valuable aid to the Boy's Work Committees.

MEN'S FRESHMAN ADVISORY

Absent: Dale Eaton, Charles Hamilton, Bud Ketchum, Dick Harrell in the Armed Forces.

One hundred twenty boys carried on the gigantic job of orienting freshmen this year through the F.A.C. under these officers: John Hanford, president; Dale Eaton, vice president; and Charles Hamilton, secretary.

BEGINNING WITH ITS INCEPTION IN 1937, THE FRESHMAN ADVISORY Council has steadily grown in personnel, efficiency, organization, and fields of endeavor. This year it is felt that it reached an all-time high in effectiveness and achievements, and this success is attributed mainly to one factor—the whole-hearted interest and endeavor of each of the one hundred and ten men who made up the personnel of the Freshman Advisory Council. These men, who accepted their responsibility and who served as true Duke men, transformed what was once an ingenious idea into what is now a deep-rooted, genuine tradition.

From the time in the preceding spring when the Council voted almost unanimously to become financially independent of other organizations of the campus, it was evident that here was a group which thoroughly understood the importance of its work and which was determined to fulfill its duties in a conscientious manner. It realized that reward would not come in the form of blaring recognition but would consist of a quiet personal satisfaction that a job had been well done.

The purpose of the Freshman Advisory Council has been to make available to the freshmen the select upperclassmen's knowledge and experience of the many phases of college life, so that his adjustment to that life might be made easier and his enjoyment fuller. Freshmen must grasp that indefinable "feel" of college life, make mental, scholastic, and social adjustments, and come to respect the customs and traditions of Duke—the result—a better man and a better University.

The Council crystallized its organization scheme into a simple pattern. Each upperclassman was assigned to a small group of four or five freshmen. The individual adviser kept a check on the development and progress of his advisees, offering per onal suggestions in many problems. A house captain acted as the executive head of advisers in each freshman house.

Women's Freshman Advisory

Second row: Bankhardt, Knight, Griffin, Vandegriff, Frantz, Price, Hutchison, Bock.
Third row: Campbell, Trudell, Cox, Beattie, Spencer, Jeschke, Stark, Miner, Knowles, Woolley, Peeler.

Jane Hall, Chairman of the Women's Freshman Advisory Council, and her committee of hand-picked upperclass girls enjoyed a very successful year in their task of helping with the orientation of new students.

ALTHOUGH A SMALL ORGANIZATION COMPOSED OF APPROXImately thirty-five upperclassmen, The Freshman Advisory Council has the definitely important task of helping freshmen to adjust themselves to life in their new environment. The advisers are selected because of their scholastic ability, qualities of character and leadership, and interest in the work which is required of them. In addition to their qualities of character, they have also had a month of special training, which, along with their own experience as freshmen, aids them in understanding and solving many of the problems. It is the primary aim of the advisers to help freshmen in their adjustments to college life, scholastically and socially, and to make each freshmen feel that she is an integral part of the college community. Under the supervision of Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson Persons, and in cooperation with the freshman office, this work has been ably furthered. From the time of the arrival of the freshman at Duke, the Freshman Advisory Council begins to play an important part in her life here. During Freshman Week each adviser has frequent meetings with the members of her group to explain the regulations and customs which make for congenial and purposeful group living, and the aims and ideals of the university. As the freshman becomes more adjusted to college life, she becomes more independent and able to solve her own problems. However, she is aware that she always has a true friend and counsellor in her freshman adviser to whom she may go at any time with her problems. The Freshman Advisory Council not only guides and advises the freshmen, but it also serves as an effective medium for bettering relations between the faculty and the freshmen.

MUSIC STUDY CLUB

First row: Gilliam, Bunker, Rudisill, Zinner, Snyder, Martin Gilliam, Herring, Baylin, Woody.
Second row: Foulk, Mayhew, Grant, Turrell, Black, Hughes, Shore, Barnhardt.

The Music Study Club this year was under the leadership of these officers: Beverly Snyder, president; Dora Zinner, vice president, Lenore Wrench, Secretary; Jane Rudisill, treasurer; and Miss Evelyn Barnes, adviser.

ALL THROUGH THE TEN YEARS OF ITS EXISTENCE, THE MUSIC Study Club had done much to create and to promote interest in music on the Woman's College Campus. It has an enrollment of sixty girls, all of whom are chosen by vote of the Club, either because of outstanding ability or keen appreciation of music. The Club has emphasized the fact that a candidate for membership who does not actually perform musically does not keep her from membership, for the Club considers her interest in music as well as her accomplishments.

We meet on the second and fourth Fridays of every month. Interesting programs are planned for these meetings. Half of the programs are devoted to student talent, and at the other half, guest artists appear. We have had interesting programs from Mr. Bruinsma, Mr. Broadhead, and Miss Eidam, all members of the music faculty, and from people outside Durham.

Every year the Club sponsors one of the artists who appear on the University Concert Series. This year, we had the good fortune to be able to sponsor Miss Astrid Varnay, the Swedish-American soprano of the Metropolitan Opera. The members of the Club were delighted with the opportunity of meeting Miss Varnay at a reception which followed this concert. We also had the pleasure of assisting in the sponsorship of the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra.

The Club usually gives one big recital each year, which this year was composed of all the members of the Duke Music Faculty.

The Club was ably led by Beverly Snyder, President, and Dora Zinner, Vice President and Program Chairman, who were assisted in their duties by Leo Wrench, Corresponding Secretary; Margaret Rose Bussell, Recording Secretary; Jane Rudisill, Treasurer; and Kay Gilliam, Social Chairman, to say nothing of Miss Evelyn Barnes, whose help as Adviser to the Club has been most valuable.

DUKE BAND

The officers of the Duke University band this year were President, Harvey R. Bullock; Business Manager, Clarence E. Kefauver; Student Director, Francis Dale; and their adviser, Mr. Robert Fearing.

AND THE BAND PLAYED ON! ALTHOUGH THE ACCELERATED program of war-time education greatly reduced the enthusiasm and the size of the Duke Band, it still carried on in fine style. Sixty per cent of the members of the band during the year were members of the freshman class, but they were all good musicians. As in previous years, the band drilled under strict military procedure, and it constituted an alert and snappy drill unit.

The Duke Band acted as host to all home football games, but, because of transportation difficulties this year, the band did not attempt to follow the team to any games played away from Durham except the Carolina game played in Chapel Hill, twelve miles away. The transportation for this game was provided by the Durham Chamber of Commerce.

Although trips to away games, homecoming parades, and similar opportunities for service have been taken away, the band replaced these in a way by playing for university lectures and discussion groups. It also played several concerts for the soldiers at Camp Butner.

The officers for the band were Harvey Bullock, head drum-major and president, Clarence Kefauver, business manager, and Fran Dale, student director. Mr. Fearing is director of all instrumental music on Duke Campus. As usual, keys were presented at the annual band banquet to those upperclassmen who were most faithful in band activities during the year. They were especially deserving this year because of the leadership they had to show in moulding the many new freshmen.

Kappa Kappa Psi, the national music honorary fraternity on Duke campus, decided not to take in any new pledges from the band this year. Realizing that the members of the band would all soon be in the armed forces, Kappa Kappa Psi voluntarily returned its charter to the national fraternity headquarters where it will be held for the duration of the war.

MEN'S GLEE CLUB

Leading the Men's Glee Club in their 1942-3 season were President, Franklin Ruark; Vice President, Robert Fuqua; Business Manager, Francis Dale; Treasurer, J. Holliday Veal. Adviser was Mr. Barnes.

ALTHOUGH THE GLEE CLUB HAD TO RELY MORE UPON INEXPERIenced underclassmen than in the past, J. Foster Barnes, director of the Men's Glee Club for the past sixteen years, guided the organization to the completion of one of its most successful years. The club this year continued the growing reputation which it has gained not only in the South but throughout the nation.

The Men's Glee Club is part of the Duke University Chapel Choir along with the Women's Glee Club. Besides the regular Glee Club, a smaller group of singers within the club comprise the double quartet which, besides being featured on regular concerts, sings many engagements during the year for banquets, luncheon clubs, lodges, and church groups.

Because of the fine rendition by the Glee Club of Brahm's Requiem with the Women's Glee Club of Farmville State Teachers College, Farmville, Virginia, and Princeton University Men's Glee Club last year on a national broadcast, the club was invited again to New York this year to repeat the performance on Palm Sunday, this time with the choir of St. Thomas Episcopal Church of New York City and the Women's Choir from Farmville. This was the seventh annual tour to New York.

This year the combined Men's and Women's Glee Clubs joined with Duke Players in the production of Hayfoot Strawfoot by Jerome Kern, Otto Harbach, and Oscar Hammerstein, II, in its southern premiere and on Sunday, January 10, Mr. Harbach, the directors, and the cast were presented from Page Auditorium in a coast-to-coast radio program over Columbia Broadcasting System.

WOMEN'S GLEE CLUB

Head songstresses of the Women's Glee Club this year were Mickey Macalister, President; Shirley Spencer, Vice President; Kathryn Gilliam, Secretary; Novella Murray, Treasurer. Their adviser was Mrs. Barnes.

BEAUTIFUL MUSIC IS A TRADITION AT DUKE, AND AMONG THE MANY musical organizations on campus which uphold the tradition, the Women's Glee Club is one of the most active. Under the enthusiastic and inspired leadership of Mrs. Barnes, the Glee Club contributes frequently to campus programs.

This organization is one of the largest and most democratic on the entire campus. It is composed of sorority and non-sorority girls—166 in all.

Perhaps the greatest incentive and honor of the club is to receive membership in the chapel choir. Seventy-five top voices were chosen for the group this year. Forty voices were picked for the concert work on the women's campus, while other voices received special training with the idea of progressing and advancing to fill these places.

The schedule for this year included Handel's Messiah and Brahm's Requiem, the regular Sunday morning church services, and a concert combining the men's and women's groups in the spring.

The Glee Club presented its annual dance on November 27. Members of all the other musical organizations were issued blanket bids to the dance, held in honor of the new members. Various social "get-togethers" were held with the combined Men's and Women's Glee Clubs.

The officers for 1942-43 were as follows: Mickey Macalister, president; Shirley Spencer, vice president; Katherine Gilliam, secretary; and Novella Murray, treasurer.

DUKE PLAYERS

Duke Players enjoyed their most successful year this year—both financially and dramatically. Able officers who led this energetic group were Joe Gutstadt, president; Doris Lavington, vice president; Shirley Dickson, secretary; J. A. Baer, business manager; and A. T. West, director.

"ALL PROPS IN PLACE? STAGE TRIMMED? EVERYBODY ON stage? Places everybody! O.K. Let's go!" And then the gong rings once and the house lights go down; twice, and the footlights go up; thrice, and the curtain goes up on another Duke Players' production. Mighty simple, these few short signals, and a pull of the curtain. But little does the audience realize how much is involved in the production of one of these plays. Do they really know what goes on behind the scenes of a play, especially one produced with peace-time care and elaborateness in war time, when workers are burdened with the extra studying and laboratories and other difficulties that come with an accelerated program of study?

After a set has been designed on paper and then put into three dimensions, on cardboard, then it has to be built of wood, nails, glue and hard work. And then it must be painted, square foot by square foot, on a paint frame thirty feet above the floor of the stage in Page Auditorium. With all this hard work, there is the humorous side of the work. Try, for instance to get a timid girl to climb a ladder thirty feet into the air. Timid girl, did I say? I've seen some boys who weren't so anxious to go up these, either. And then there's the classic tale of the window for "Arsenic and Old Lace," the lower sash of which somebody suggested be made a half foot larger so that it would be simpler to carry a corpse through it. The construction crew, which of course must have been right on the ball, proceeded to follow that suggestion, only to find that with the window opened the space was a half foot smaller than it would have been ordinarily.

The technical side, of course, has its difficulties, big and small. But the director also has his troubles. Put yourself in the predicament of Mr. West, our director, who with a sweet wife and wonderful little boy at home, must spend all his afternoons working on the play and directing its cast in rehearsal five nights a week. Great life, isn't it? But after all, it seems worth all the work and heartache, somehow, when after two weeks of rehearsals on a play like "Eve of St. Mark" with a very discouraging outlook as to the whole production, we have two pretty bad dress rehearsals, and then—Thursday and Friday nights we put on one of our best shows to date. Small wonder that the Duke's Players director Mr. A. T. West and President Joe Gutstadt were feeling mighty elated at the stage party after the second night's performance.

This year the Players enjoyed one of their most successful seasons, not only with capacity audiences, but with plays which are the current choice of Broadway. The Duke Players played to their first Duke audience in "Arsenic and Old Lace." The play was exciting from the first curtain, and there was no momentum lost during the whole show. Later in the fall, Director West and the players presented "Eve of St. Mark," an extremely difficult play for any cast. With Stan Barkan and Doris Lavington in the leading roles, the Players added another laurel to their hit series. "Hay Foot-Strawfoot," Sponsored by Theta Alpha Phi, together with the Duke Glee Clubs, was given its Southern Premiere by the Players. The musical show met with terrific appreciation from the student body and the book-writer, Otto Harbach, who was on the campus for the Premiere. "The Man Who Came to Dinner," starring Chuck Oestman, packed the house for two nights and gave the second semester its dramatic touch—professionally—in March. May Day saw the presentation of "My Sister Eileen" and the end of the Players undoubted most successful season in their long history on Duke Campus.

"Arsenic and Old Lace" was an "ailse-rolling" hit. Kindler calmly mixes up another dose of strychnine and arsenic, while Hurley and Oestman shudder at some dead bachelor . . . Invaluable to any production is the stage crew; Steve Mills and assistants place scenery for "Hayfoot Strawfoot."

Duke Players from the standpoint of business has taken a turn up the scale of success. We totalled more people in our audience for our first two plays than in any one year of being active. The totals were slightly more than 3,500 people for "The Eve of St. Mark" and "Arsenic and Old Lace." The new advertising point of "come and see a legitimate show instead of a movie, and come for the same price" may have accounted for some of the drawing power, but we feel basically that it is attributed to a new and more distinctive style of advertising in the way of posters and enlarged newspaper advertisements. This year, hardly a Chronicle issue was published without a good article about the next production. Much credit can be given to Cubby Baer's "Campus time," weekly radio program.

Our program this year was in style with that inaugurated the latter part of last year—longer than the past single sheet-cast model and an attractive gloss paper with a picture of the show on the front cover and interesting articles inside. It was paterned after the New York Playbill. Advertising in the Playbill for the first time proved not only to pay for the program, but also to hand the Duke Players a net profit besides.

Both the East and Wext Campus staffs were exceptionally efficient and handled their ticket selling jobs on time, so records were always in order.

For the first time in the history of the players we had an accountant handle our books, and a complete change in staffs was made at the beginning of the year with a real working organization set up by the time "The Eve of St. Mark" appeared.

Our extra added attraction for 1943 was the premiere of "Hayfoot Strawfoot," a play with book by Oscar Hammerstein and Otto Harbach, and music by Jerome Kern.

We did the production with the Glee Club and the Hoof and Horn Club. Throughout the year contact was kept with Captain Hurst of the O.C.S. to keep the boys amused to the best of our ability.

From a business man's standpoint Duke Players was a definite wartime success.

Curtain-call brings to the stage the huge cast of Hayfoot Strawfoot. The magnificent West Point setting and backdrop was designed and painted by the director of the play, A. T. West. In the foregorund is the chorus of thirty-five singers and two pianos, which subbed for the orchestra.

ARCHIVE

THIS YEAR THE ARCHIVE HAS BROKEN AWAY FROM THE "LITERARY" TRADItion that has characterized its past. The first issue surprised the campus with a pictorial cover, the first in the history of the Archive. The cover was indicative of a change in the content of the entire magazine. The highlight of each issue was a feature article on some phase of our college life that was particularly important this year. Naturally, great emphasis was given to the changing aspect of student life under the present war conditions. These articles covered a broader field than actual student life at Duke; articles were included on other North Carolina colleges and the Army Finance School, located on the campus since August, 1942. Duke professors were featured in several articles which brought the attention of the entire campus to their achievements. The articles were illustrated by photographs taken by the staff photographers for the Archive. For each issue of the magazine, a particular phase of Duke life was evolved.

After the initial shock of a popularized literary magazine, Archive readers found that there were still good stories and poems. The stories were varied so that many different literary techniques and viewpoints had an opportunity for publication. The poetry department was largely inspired by a member of the freshman class whose poetry was astonishingly good. With the continual depletion of the student body, the Archive staff naturally was small. But the cooperation of the senior members of the staff with a group of enthusiastic and aspiring freshmen made the job of publication lighter.

The business staff began the year with a record number of ads and continued to bolster the financial condition of the magazine, making it possible to have more illustrations in each issue. Their brainwork was also helpful in composing covers and pictorial make-up in the Archive. In fact, business and editorial staff members were constantly crossing the line, and several members changed about or remained on both staffs at the same time.

The personnel of the Archive was Marjorie Collier, editor; Ran Few, business manager; Dudley Moylan, associate editor; Tony Baca, assistant business manager; Virginia Deming, coed business manager; Bud Ketchem and Russ Allman, junior business managers; and Hartsell Cash, circulation manager. The editor and business manager of the Archive were the only two publication heads to remain as a unit, all other student editions being changed in their executive personnel by retirements to the armed services.

With a modern make-up and a progressive editorial policy the Archive became more popular than ever before with the students of Duke University.

Duke 'n' Duchess

Ralph W. Starr, Editor; Joseph S. Harrington, Business Manager.

IT IS DIFFICULT TO DESCRIBE IN A FEW WORDS THE CHANGES AND DEVELOPments that have taken place in this year's Duke 'n' Duchess. From the first issue to the last, the D 'n' D has been an interestingly different and a refreshingly new magazine. The Duke 'n' Duchess now has a personality all its own and for the first time in the young history of the magazine its monthly publication was anticipated with eagerness by the student body. But let us tell you a little about the magazine and its personnel.

The magazine was edited by Ralph Starr and Co-ed Editor Toni Salley with Elliot McMorries serving as Associate Editor and Lyle Allen, Paul Horton, and Harry Love filling in as Assistant Editors. The life blood of any magazine, the business staff, was also in on the big show and its members certainly deserve more recognition than is usually awarded them. With Joe Harrington as Business Manager assisted by Co-ed Business Manager Carol Bassett, Associate Business Manager Cliff Blackwell and Assistant Business Manager William Gates, the Durham merchants were hounded to death by an efficient group of Duke students who by their untiring efforts made the magazine a financial success.

Now let us thumb through the pages of this year's Duke 'n' Duchess and recall some of its features. First of all, photographic covers gave the magazine new sparkle and the feature "Getting to the Bottom of Things" gave all of us an opportunity to catch up on the activities of many campus personalities. Then there was John Baldwin's Campus Quiz which painlessly taught us a little about our school and don't forget the D 'n' D's Love Graph and its accurate rating of the finer things in life.

Then we had Norris Crigler as the D 'n' D's selection for the newly created "Most Beautiful Football Player Award," and also the exposure of "Duke's Mixture," the regular "dirt" feature of the Chronicle, not to mention an anonymous article on "Bench Art." Sororities were characterized by Artist Dave Fick, giving us a down to earth description of coeds, and the D 'n' D's All-Girl Football Team composed of a hand-picked group of outstanding East Campusites caused much comment, as did the "Photo Crime" in Look magazine style, depicting a famous Duke Murder . . . all these features and more, colored with cartoons, photographs, jokes, and ads made up this year's Duke 'n' Duchess.

CHRONICLE
EDITORIAL STAFF

Harry W. Treleaven, Editor.

CARRYING ON DESPITE THE DIFFICULTIES CAUSED BY WAR, A SERIOUSLY short-handed Chronicle staff has continued its duty of giving the campus a newspaper worthy of a great university. Two editors, two business managers, and a feature editor were called into active duty with the armed forces during the course of the year, while the draft and imminent reserve calls hung heavy over the few remaining men on the staff, but the Chronicle kept on reporting the momentous news of a memorable period in history.

Ambitious coed staff members helped fill the gaps left in the ranks of the West Campus staff, and one of the smallest groups of writers in the history of the paper maintained publication, willingly working long hours to maintain the paper at its traditional high level of journalistic excellence. Aiming at repeating or surpassing last year's First Class rating in the competitive National Scholastic Press Association survey, the editors played up their innumerable big stories and scoops and artistically spattered each issue with pictures until the budget could stand no more.

The editorial policy of the paper has been consistent in its effort to provide leadership to a campus confused by the uncertain conditions of education in time of war, as well as to consider all campus questions of importance and offer advice or criticism where necessary. In the realization that nothing, no matter how powerful or important, is perfect, no vital phase of university life has been free from the scrutiny of editorial writers, whose main object has been to eliminate incompetency, inefficiency, and hypocrisy in the interests of progress towards the goal of a greater university.

Helen Kindler, Doreen Walker, Bill Schuchardt, Paul Snodgrass, Donna Hughes, Joe DiMona, John Baldwin

War has hit the Chronicle hard, but an ever-willing and self-sacrificing staff has continued to record the ever-changing life of the campus in its semi-weekly stories and has left a record for posterity of student life, thought, and reaction during the uncertain year of total conversion to war following Pearl Harbor.

The paper was edited in the fall semester by Harry Treleaven, during the month of February by Mathew Rae, and for the remainder of the school year by Donna Hughes, the first coed editor in the paper's history.

CHRONICLE
BUSINESS STAFF

DESPITE NUMEROUS CHANGES AND GENERAL UNCERTAINTY CAUSED BY the war, the business staff of the Chronicle did its job well this year. Its purpose was to provide experience in business and leadership for themselves, and at the same time, help the university through the financial control of its newspaper.

The organization was necessarily made more flexible so that each member of the staff assumed new and varied duties. Among the many obstacles which had to be overcome were the difficulties in selling advertising and the depletion of the staff by the calls of the armed services. The first was met by obtaining diversified types of advertisers who were not entirely affected by the war, and the second, by securing the services of more girls and by giving freshmen boys more responsibility.

Under the excellent leadership of Don Perry, the Chronicle started the year in sound financial shape. A very successful subscription campaign gave the paper circulation throughout the country. In late October, Perry entered the United States Army, and Paul Snodgrass assumed the duties of business manager. For the first time in history, selected freshmen boys were given the important work of helping Charles Blanchard and Roger Primm, the new advertising managers, who did an excellent job of keeping up the various advertising accounts.

A useful system of reports by staff members provided the latest information on each advertiser. An associate business manager, John Hartman, took over much of the responsibility for work in the downtown office. Co-ed business manager, Elsie Crone, did much to secure more active participation of girls in the work of the campus office and the advertising staff. To complete the succession of changes John Mills took over the post of business manager when Snodgrass was called by the Army. John Hartman served as Associate Business Manager.

EDITORIAL STAFF

THE STAFF OF THE 1943 CHANTICLEER WORKED UNDER DIFFICULTIES brought about by the war, and under resulting changes in all conditions, to produce the volume which is now in your hands. It is the result of much labor on the part of Editor Dick Leuthold and his staff.

The year began with a 25 per cent cut in engraving which reduced the number of pictures drastically. This situation, added to the numerous students dropping out of school and the staff members who were missing because of war-time pressure, made the task a far more difficult one than usual.

The work, however, still held fascination for the staff members. Alex Radford and Dick Miller, the two assistant editors, worked with Joyce Thresher and her coed staff in following Editor Leuthold's plans.

Radford and junior editor Henry Nicholson arranged for most of the photography with photographic editor Hulet Burnette doing the actual lens work with the help of Chick Hadlock. Miller handled the organization and class sections of the book. The sports pages were handled by Chronicle sports editor Bill Schuchardt, Art Jaffey and the sports staff. The book's literary content depended on the coed staff for its quality and consistency and the girls handled much of the administrative detail work.

Despite difficulties, the staff worked for wider student representation, greater student interest, good photography, and good make-up, all of which are important factors in good yearbook production.

Mr. Jordan, the faculty adviser, was able by his collective experience of many years' publications to aid inestimably in guiding the editor and business manager in their editorial and financial decisions.

Gordon Brightman, for many years Jahn and Ollier's engraving representative, Joe Hardison and John Minter, Edwards & Broughton Co. printing experts, the Merin Baliban photographic studios, and S. K. Smith and Co., cover manufacturers, were all instrumental in giving professional quality to the publication.

The Chanticleer staff worked doubly hard this year, realizing a possibility of the book's eventual abandonment for the duration, but hoping that by ever better quality of work and resourcefulness to keep it going as long as possible, and then, make the parting shot a good one.

BUSINESS STAFF

TODAY WE CLOSED OUR ACCOUNTS AND SO ENDS A HECTIC YEAR FOR THE CHANTICLEER Business staff. It was a year which saw the war make more difficult the usual routine of our staff. But we may say with pride that even in a year of such uncertainty, we surpassed all previous records in a shorter length of time.

First, we made more individual sittings than ever before, then the advertising was increased by twenty per cent, and finally, the books were delivered to students who had been forced to withdraw from school. A great deal of praise is due Warren Grob who assumed the position of business manager when Strouse Campbell was called into the service. By hard work, he was able to catch on quickly to the excellent system of accounts which had already been set up.

What memories . . . that hectic freshman week of photographing . . . with able assistance from Merin-Baliban's Ethel, Mac, Paul, and dark-eyed Irene . . . "dear" Jean Woodhull, our very capable coed-business manager, misplacing the receipts again . . . bills . . . more bills . . . the editorial staff is having trouble with the photographer, as the Army takes over their studio . . . what next? . . . Herb Horwitz, the best salesman in Durham, gets some more ads, and we are within the budget again . . . Bill Gulley's girl gets married . . . another one . . . Mary Bankhardt, our most faithful worker is campused . . . Wes Davis, Bill Gulley, Charley French, good old "Herb," and Bill Horrell working to make the book a financial success . . . Spring . . . Soupy is called . . . Jean leaves to get married and Warren Grob and Mary Bankhardt take over . . . they are all leaving . . . but there isn't much to do now . . . all accounts closed . . . our thanks to all the staff members, both men and women, who worked so hard to make this book what it is, we think, an editorial and financial success . . . we hope that you may find much pleasure in reading it and keeping it.

PUBLICATIONS BOARD

THE PUBLICATIONS BOARD FACED MORE SERIOUS PROBLEMS THIS YEAR THAN ever before. This was evidenced by frequent call meetings at which vital questions were considered.

To begin with, several editors and business managers left school, which necessitated the election of new men and women to take their places. For the first time in its history, the Chronicle was edited by a coed, Donna Hughes, who did an excellent job. However, the question was constantly being raised as to whether underclassmen and coeds were capable of carrying out the necessary work, and along with this, a deeper problem arose, of how long the publications themselves could continue. New men were quickly installed in office as the need arose and a committee was formed to collect information and advice on the future of student publications.

One of the plans considered was the feasibility of combining the Duke 'n' Duchess and Archive into one publication for next year. Then, too, there was the question of how far any publication might go into its sinking fund before it was stopped for the duration. These and other problems are as yet unsolved at presstime and will occupy the thoughts and energy of the new board which was recently elected.

The board consisted of the five members of the faculty-alumni committee, six men and four women elected by the undergraduate student body, and the editors and business managers of the various publications who served in an advisory, but non-voting capacity.

Mr. Charles E. Ward continued as chairman of the board, and Donna Hughes served as secretary. Other faculty members were Dean Wannamaker, Mr. Henry R. Dwire, Mr. Charles E. Jordan, and Mr. C. B. Markham. The other students were Dick Leuthold, Tim Moore, John Hanford, John Carr, Dick Miller, Donna Hughes, Cit Rupaugh, and Mary Bankhardt.

ALL-AMERICAN CHANTICLEER

THE 1942 CHANTICLEER, EDITED BY JOHN P. D. KAUFFMAN, GAINED ALL-AMERICAN recognition last year as the sixth consecutive All-American CHANTICLEER.

The judging, which has been carried on by the National Scholastic Press Association for the past 22 years at the University of Minnesota, takes into consideration such factors of yearbook publishing as make-up, theme, editing, financial status, and mechanical details. It classifies each of the books which are submitted into five groups: All-American, First, Second, Third, and Fourth classes which are equivalent to ratings of superior, excellent, good, high average, and no honors respectively.

Duke won the coveted All-American award in the first year of her entrance into the competition in 1935. Since then, she has failed only once to receive this honor; a complete record of the All-American books and their editors is as follows:

|---|---|
| 1935 | Martin B. Williams |
| 1937 | James E. Lambeth |
| 1938 | Tom Jones |
| 1939 | Hill Hudson |
| 1940 | Neil Blanton |
| 1941 | Henry C. Brown, III |
| 1942 | John P. D. Kauffman |

Duke thus holds the longest record of All-American ratings in the country in this competition, having been judged "superior" in seven out of eight years.

The 1942 book was edited by John P. D. Kauffman, assisted by coed editor Sarah Booe; and it was managed by Menese Gardner, assisted by coed business manager Kay Harpster.

The judging by the association commended Kauffman's book for its editing, especially in the writing of its copy, headlines, and captions. The main criticism was the poor quality of its photography which is one defect that this year's staff has sought diligently to overcome.

John P. D. Kauffman, Editor, 1942.

The purpose this year has been to attempt to equal the literary excellence of last year's publication and to introduce wider student representation. We salute our predecessors for showing the way, and we hope that in some way we may be able to measure up to the standards which are the examples of our University's character.

THE SELECTING OF # THE BEAUTY QUEEN

WITH HUSHED VOICES AND EAGER ANTICIPATION, THE DANCERS AT THE ANNUAL FALL COED BALL gathered around a dais at intermission. They were awaiting the appearance of the CHANTICLEER Beauty Queen for 1943, who might have been dancing among them a few moments before. The secret of her identity had been carefully guarded, as is the custom. Early in the fall, the students of both campuses had cast ballots for the twenty-one Duke coeds whom they considered as representative of feminine beauty. These twenty-one coeds were photographed and the photographs sent to Walter Pidgeon, who, this year, was appointed to the difficult task of selecting the Beauty Queen and nine other beauties.

The long-awaited moment had arrived as CHANTICLEER editor Dick Leuthold stepped to the dais to announce the selection. The lights were dimmed, and spotlights illuminated the silver frame on the dais. At the proper moment, from behind a black velvet curtain stepped tall, dark-eyed freshman Miss Mary Bradley. Her appearance was greeted with "ohs" and "ahs" of pleasure from the well-satisfied dancers.

MEN'S PAN-HEL. COUNCIL

The Pan-Hel. Council functioned this year under the leadership of these officers: Clarance Kefauver, president; Charles Burrows, vice president; Richard Leuthold, secretary, and Ray Nasher, treasurer.

Standing: Branscomb, Byrn, McMorries, Korowicki, Withington, Varney.

BEING A REPRESENTATIVE GROUP OF EIGHTEEN FRATERNITIES ON the Duke Campus, the Council set out this year with the purpose of mutually benefiting the fraternities on this campus and of bringing about a better cooperation among the group.

Due to the war, the Council took steps to see that fraternities prepared themselves for the dark days ahead. Stress was put on the lowering of fraternity expenditures, mainly by abolition of individual fraternity dances and curtailed rushing expense. A bond-buying plan was encouraged for use by the individual fraternities in order to build up their reserves for the future, and, at the same time, have fraternities take some part in the war effort.

Along social lines, dances were given after each home game during the football season. These dances were given on a low-cost basis, thus opening them to everyone on the campus; and the dances were given in cooperation with the W.S.A.B. in trying to solve the recreation problem of the Campus in this war-affected city of Durham. The proceeds of the dances were used for a freshman handbook, making a generous donation to the Student War Chest, and for the purchase of a flag for the Army Finance School as a gesture of goodwill on behalf of the student body.

The Council changed its organization in the Spring semester by introducing the "President's Plan" which gave more potent powers to the Council and secured the representative seat of each fraternity president on the Council.

Fraternity scholarship was encouraged in these war days, and an award was set up for the individual fraternity pledge class making the largest percentage improvement in grades.

The Council again supervised formal rush week, and through cooperation with the Administration, C-average and non-C-average freshmen were rushed at the same time.

Summing up the activities of the Council this year, we feel that the activities have covered many fields and have proved very successful.

WOMEN'S PAN-HEL. COUNCIL

Officers of the Women's Pan-Hellenic Council this year were Dorothy Royal, president; Alice Booe, vice president; Sara Vandergriff, secretary; Kathleen Watkins, treasurer; and Miss Baldwin, adviser.

First row: Jeschke, Crone, Medlicott, Bell.
Second row: Brown, Beaver, Kirkmeyer, Overstreet, Gordon, Curry.
Third row: Flentye, Lake, Johnson, Frost, Baylen, Tobias, Watkins, Royal, Armstrong, Bock, Adams, Duncan.

ADDING STRENGTH TO AN ORGANIZATION WHICH IN FORMER years had been criticized for its weaknesses was the main purpose of the 1942-1943 Woman's Pan-Hellenic Council. Officers and members of the Council felt that it had been disregarding the active and influential role that it could play in campus life. As a representative body of about half the women of the University campus, the Council felt that it could act as a clearing ground for many of the problems which arise during the school year. This year's Council has endeavored to create a closer cooperation both between sororities and between sorority and non-sorority women.

Chief among the endeavors of the past year has been the revision of the constitution, taking out defunct rulings and creating new ones which would satisfactorily meet and solve current-day problems. An attempt was also made to eliminate many of the ills of rushing by making past rules more explicit and creating new rules where it was deemed necessary from past years' experiences and practices.

Emphasis was also placed this year on the improvement of the individual chapters. Inaugurated were a series of open forum discussions on individual problems. These discussion groups, led by sororities who had something worthwhile in the way of pledge training, scholarship improvement, chapter organization, meeting personnel problems and the like, were open to all those interested in attending.

The Pan-Hellenic Council this year followed its usual leadership in social functions with its fall open houses for the freshmen women and its annual Pan-Hellenic dance in the Woman's College gymnasium at which time the beauty section for the CHANTICLEER was presented. Breaking precedent, this year's dance was semi-formal to meet war exigencies.

In addition to its usual University community service of giving a hundred dollar scholarship to the junior woman with the highest standing in her class, this year's Council took on the added duty of selling war bonds during "Women at War" Week.

A UNION THAT KNOWS "NO NORTH, NO SOUTH, NO EAST, NO West"; a brotherhood rich in tradition, high in ideals, where the wearers of the Maltese Cross join in fellowship and spirit; a band that has become an inseparable and unequaled unit—that is Alpha Tau Omega.

From Red Friar to just plan Alpha Taus—that's the way the roll runs in House C when the ATO's convene. Add another group—the list of Alpha Tau Omega that has left to do its part to fight—and the roll will be complete.

There are such campus notables as our Red Friars—Stew Johnson with his Y.M.C.A., and Moff Storer with his performances as Blue Devil halfback and captain of the track team; O.D.K. men Johnson and Don Perry, yanked by Uncle Sam, and John Carr of the engineers and the Chronicle; Y.M.C.A. Johnny Powell; football men Harry Troxell, Bobby Rute, Henry Smith, Charlie Davis, Charlie Hood, Gordon Carver, and Leo Long; Delta Epsilon Sigma with its honored engineers Chuck Mapp and Carl Metz and Carr; Carver, star forward on the basketball quintet; Mapp and Metz, secretary and senior representative to the E.S.G.A.; the Ambassadors' delegation of Weidman, Thue, Goddard, and Baugh; Byrn and Tucker of the Pan-Hel. Council; Metz as A.S.M.E. president; Roundtree, managing editor of The Duke Engineer; Rute and Carver of the baseball nine and McLaughlin of the half-mile; wrestlers Smart and Nicholson and Haines—but the list could go on forever.

Then there are the boys who went South to Miami and to "keep 'em flying"—Rokos and Ozment the lovers; Weidman of the slip-horn; Bittle of boundless energy and endeavor; Spieth who left behind Rauchenberg as a reminder of the days of the Rauchenspeiths; Mr. Smoot; Patterson, tip-top intramural manager. and "Gilch" Gilchrist. There was the E.R.C., with "Goat" Long, who kept coming back for week-ends and Betsy; and "Hodie" McAllister, who will have the world as his oyster; Haines, who broke his leg for a short furlough; Paul German, the last of our smoothies; Bob Sheldon, red-headed and baseball player deluxe; and Ken McCormick and Willoughby and Jim Dalton and Chuck Johnson and "Foosky" Moorhouse and Lew Bosson—all of whom left at different times throughout the year.

Back home, the chapter goes right on ahead, with Holly Veal, formerly of the Chronicle; Wright Dixon, who boxed and acted with "The Man Who Came to Dinner" with equal success; Joe Lyon, wolf supreme; and Buzz "14-pin-up" Chapman; Bill Lambeth, with Julie as life's center; "Sir Cedric" Roundtree of party fame; Bentley and Goss; and "Angelo" Alexander who sang "Because" (we know not why); and Dave Beary with his ultra-high "Bearytron"; and Ginny all mixed up; Gil Brandon with his storied background of Myrtle Beach; McCuiston of the haircut; "Black Moox" Moore, who now hates all WAACS; the Mapper still without a date; Troxell, whose mood towards women has its ups and downs; Browning, always with the younger Rankin; Izlar, "Gargantua the Great"; Green the Smitheal from far-off Dyersburg; Marshal Barrett with his new version of "Hiawatha"; another Marshall—Courtney—as "Fump," a brain of the first water; Hockenjos, who made out better where Bill Karl lost to the Army.

WE BELIEVE, CONTRARY PROTESTATIONS OF THE CHAPTER CYNIC to the contrary, it is entirely within the realm of possibility for two or three of our members to reach the comparatively advanced age of forty. And if they do, we feel sure that someday, somewhere, somehow, they will chance to meet—perhaps over a glass of Vodka—and reflect on the happy, carefree antics of their college days. They will enjoy remembering names and the pictures those names conjure up. They'll be sure to remember, for example, the democratic policies of president Buck Branscomb and the calm, self-assured reports of historian Stan Howe at the meetings. Ed Cunliff and Jim Smith will be recalled for the thumping they took at the hands of brother Bob Neal. And when mighty men are mentioned, Czar Robbins, the marine, will be immediately thought of. Curlylocks Allman will be remembered for his generosity with cigarettes, as will brother Bott for his carefree attitude on fraternity policy. The magnanimous prodigality of treasurer Hinshaw could never be forgotten, nor the pathetic spectacle of weakling Bud Sterner. Silver-tongued, conservative Bob Morrison and quiet, unassuming Joe Grossenheider exchanging subtle banter across the bridge table will at once be thought of. The Lanahan brothers and Jack Eastman—renowned lovers of classical music—will be remembered for their renditions of "Celeste Aida" every weekend in the Goody Shop. Bashful Bertels will always be recalled for his shy, genteel approach to the feminine sex while aggressive, forceful Bill Marshall tried to give his a few tips. The Gruesome Twosome in D-201, Jenkins and Beckle vied with each other for the honor of keeping the room straight, though they never had any visitors to enjoy it. Aggressive John Livingston, dynamic Hank Swope, and vivacious Calvin O'Kane were always urging shy, quiet-spoken, soprana Hedine to speak up. Reticent, unsophisticated Foster Ingalls will be remembered for his quiet suggestions in the fraternity meetings. The peaceful pair, Robinson and Coyle, will be recalled for the party girls they dated and their determination not to let football interfere with their studies. Brothers Gillen and Ben Branscomb were always suffering with their inferiority complex about things educational and cultural. Rebel Ballard never had any difficulty making the brothers pay up or with his girls. All these things will stick in the memory—as will reflections on the dispute between Stu "I'm fryin', Bryan" Smith and "Minuet" Mize—to say nothing of the spirited discourses by Weimer in favor of the army and against the navy—or Fluffy Porter's numerous talks against being a party boy and dating at Duke. Many more will be the incidents recalled and personalities discussed. But one memory, we feel sure, will stand out above all the others: that as undergrads and Beta's we enjoyed some of the happiest experiences of our lives. Working together, sharing each other's successes and problems, moulded us into a strong and everlasting friendship, united us as brothers in Beta Theta Pi.

ONE OF THE MOST UNUSUAL YEARS FOR THE STUDENTS OF Duke University, the current school year finds the Chi Phis carrying on with the high ideals of lasting friendship and brotherhood on which the fraternity was founded over one hundred years ago. Though the armed forces have taken its toll of members in both undergraduates and alumni, those of us who did come back to school settled right down to face the many serious problems that all college students have to face in war time. But, of course, the various campus activities were not be neglected and in our spare time we could be found in the chapter room working on a program for the year, and figuring out, in arm chair general fashion, the best military strategy for the war.

We could hear Warren Blake insisting that he is not "Bleak" (as his economics professor thought) and constantly reminding us of our financial obligation to the fraternity. As treasurer for two months he swelled our coffers a great deal, but Uncle Sam wanted Warren and in a short time we were reminding him of his subservient obligation to the army. Our knowledge of horseracing has increased greatly since Snowden Carter returned to our ranks after spending a year at Maryland University and the various race tracks in its vicinity. Big Tom Clayton, another one of our brothers to leave early in the semester for active duty, seems to be enjoying army life as well as he enjoyed college life. Alpha Mu's Poet Laureate, Sparks Memorial award winner, and history scholar, Bill Entrekin is still amazed over the fact that no one but Ph.D.'s, Phi Betes and mad men can understand his masterpieces. Tom Hayes after struggling with Naval Science, wonders if it was worth the trouble he had trying to convince his draft board that he is in the N.R.O.T.C. Cheerleader Ted Holmes looked forward to the Hoof and Horn Show and even led a cheer to have the piano tuned again so he could practice some of his new numbers. Jerry Lombardi spends all of his time on three major offensive moves, 1. a move for earlier graduation, 2. a move toward a bridge table for "only a few hands and then I have to 3. move move toward Erwin Road." Bob Nanni still wants that old fraternity pin. When Warren Onken isn't in the Chanticleer office he can be seen somewhere in Brown House vicinity. What's the attraction, Onk? The $64 question: Why did Bill Rankin's maid threaten to leave the house? Just to look at Bob Ryan you wouldn't know that he is "Punchy." Joe Shockey did his usual big operating and even had the help of extra ration coupons, that is, until the draft board wanted those walking papers returned with Joe. That dating bureau that Glenn Welsh ran for the open houses worked out very well for some of the brothers. Number one bridge kibitzer, Ed Zengel can't understand why we don't open with four no-trump with "that three and one half honor count." John "lemme see your hand I wanna finesse" Bryan (to quote Blake) the number two kibitzer, makes sure he is the fifth in any bridge game if he is unable to be a fourth. We still can't figure out why Bob Parkhurst wants to room in 102 after the army took Clayton and Shockey from its portals.

And so the Alpha Mu chapter goes on with renewed effort to bring those tributes of praise to Chi Phi.

BECAUSE THE ARMED FORCES HAVE TAKEN A HEAVY TOLL IN the Delt chapter this year, almost a dozen of our boys who might yet have been with us have gone to serve their country. We miss every one of them, but we are proud to see them go for this reason. Although the following boys are missing from our active roll book, they have earned space in our honor roll. Dick Haines and Joe Pansing have left for the Navy Air Corps. Will Pattridge, Bob Stenglein, and Hank Sobell prefer the Army Air Corps. Jerry Smith, our ex-president, has received his commission in the amphibious corps of the Navy. Two of our fiery freshmen of last year, Herb Murdey and Bruce Dodds, have gone out there with the Marines. Bob Brown and "Killer" Kough are in the Army now. The "Killer" was in officers' training—should have his commission by this time.

Dick Haines, our president elected for this year, left school last November for the Navy Air Corps. Dick really gave the fraternity a good start this year. Boyd McKinney—and a darn good engineer too—took over Dick's duties in the fraternity for the remainder of the year.

We have our own little officers' club among the seniors still left in the chapter. The three engineers from Southgate, Boyd McKinney, Rod Hottel, and Tom Miller, have all been commissioned in the Navy. Steve Berte and Tom Moore have received their commissions with the Army Medical Corps. Both Steve and Tom have been accepted in Medical School.

During time-out from writing Peggy, Bud Hill manages to win bridge championships and play lacrosse. Johnny Mills is going to leave us this June for the Navy. Johnny, our treasurer, has joined the ranks of V-7.

We have a small contingent of boys from good old N. C. this year. You might have seen Jim Coman and Bob Myatt parading around campus in the blues of the N.R.O.T.C. Bill Dackis still has that uncanny habit of knocking down all "A's." Oh yes, Dave Morton from Charlotte—Dave's our one-man donkey club. We love him, but you just try to beat him out in an argument any night in the chapter room.

Way up from that country called Michigan, we have Al Farley and Spence Henry. Al and Spence are probably still on the "ball." Morrie Pitts and Snuffy "Hayseed" Smith were both roommates this year, and they both upped and got in V-1 together. Morrie drives the chapter nuts with his bell lyre and his classical records.

And there's one other guy we just can't miss—good old Dick Sanborn. You might remember Dick's brother Charlie. Charlie is with the Army Air Corps, and Dick is only one step behind him. Dick is really our go-getter. You couldn't have missed him during the football season. He was that tall, handsome cheer leader.

The Delts seem always to engage themselves in diversified activities. Al Farley and Dick Sanborn are more at home in the water. Dick helped us win high points in intramural swimming. We believe that Bud Hill gets an awful lot of pleasure out of bashing heads with his lacrosse stick. Steve Berte is our wrestler; he has won the intramural championship during his stay at Duke. Dave Morton and Snuffy Smith plough the cinder track for the Delts. Dave was not contented with track alone; so he took to the cross-country course also. Morrie Pitts has been following the football team around with the Duke band. You can't escape hearing the bell lyre he bangs away on.

Our boys have developed their interests in a dozen or more organizations on the campus. Delts have connections with various publications on the campus, and our membership includes many honorary societies, such as: Pi Mu Epsilon, Kappa Delta Phi, Pre-Med. Society, American Society of Mechanical Engineers, American Society of Electrical Engineers, Freshmen Advisory Council, Beta Omega Sigma, and Phi Eta Sigma.

Delta Tau Delta is again completing a memorable year. Our seniors are leaving a chapter of which they have been proud, and to the undergraduates they leave a heritage. They take with them fond memories of lasting friendships, carefree hours, and the knowledge that they have been an integral part of what is one of the few remaining democratic institutions—their fraternity.

There is no typical Delt, for each man is an individual man in our unit of characters. Yet each such unit is incomplete without the whole in which he figures, for each is a complement to the rest. Delta Tau Delta, home of friendship, bond of brotherhood.

A MORE SERIOUS ATMOSPHERE SURROUNDS THE KAPPA ALPHA'S of 1943, but of course there is still the old congeniality and brotherhood of our fraternal order. As we walk into the chapter room a typical scene confronts us. "Prexy" Withington is tacking up twenty more fines on the bulletin board while Hanford walks by muttering about a certain someone in Salisbury. As Sid Gulledge figures out on the slide rule his chances for a date. Stroupe collects bail for jailbirds "Gang" Green, Ferguson, and Leonidas C. Vaughan. "Rock" Dennis goes to brush his teeth and returns two days later as "Double Trouble" Hubbell dictates plans of our next social function to Sinclair. "Doc" Campbell exhibits his new Souer pipe to "Steve" Ducker. "Angel" Young and "Bread" Wright await their daily orders from East Campus; "Hose-nose" Bynum leaves for his semi-annual date just as Kurtz carts another load of lumber to his room. "Varsity" Hoover and "All-Intramural" Kale discuss football strategy. The argument for a two ocean navy is advanced when Gladstone and Hinnant leave for the Army. "Errol Flynn" Rand bums a cigarette from golfing Garrett. Switzer and Ivey compare cuffs on their zoot suits. "Fruitful" Willis and Grady Stott rush for the phone, but "Mr. Five-by-five" Jeter is already there. "Brick" Chapman complains to Sie Thorne over limit of seven social functions a week. Bailey Gulledge complains about language around section, causing Newhall to laugh in his usual subdued manner. "Nigger" Bristow murmurs something about horses to McKay, who has just blown in. Garth Walker attempts to decipher Lewis Walker's Brooklyn accent as Jim Davis instructs Bobby Lipe on the finer points of dating and Wooten and Vining bet who will make Duke's Mixture next. "The Hat" Cash and Evan McWhirter demonstrate to Sink the fine texture of their new Stein suits; Manley Fuller borrows a bottle of Brock's hair restorer. Mountain boys, Herb Smith and Noah Pitts, leave for the weekend as Dillon and Newcomb discuss plans for cornering the dating market. Joe Lee bumps his head on the ceiling for the fifth consecutive time today, just as Bill McCracken decides to trot over to a Chapel Hill movie. Charles Blanchard rushes madly out into the quadrangle to shake hands with two potential voters.

Such are the memories that every K A will cherish; memories of fun and frolic and worries, and best of all close friendship and brotherhood that make the Grand Old Gang live forever in the hearts of its members.

ALTHOUGH A GREAT NUMBER OF OUR PLEDGES AND MEMBERS have offered their services to our country, many of the old crowd returned to Duke to carry on the name of "Kappa Sigma."

The future officers of the navy, army, and marines are now found sitting in the chapter room discussing topics of national importance. Walt "Gripe" Curtin claiming that he and his sweater girl make the best couple on the campus . . . Buonocore and Wakeling are throwing fists at each other over that age old question—which one of the two is the blacker? Into the scrap enter the gold dust twins (somebody else is taking my place) Davis and his chum "Beautiful" Pettit. "Little Caesar" Wheeler, also known as "The mystery man" is trying to fereree the brawl. Jim "Emily Post" Tompkins, not taking part in the discussion of the day, claims that the chapter room drapes hang too high. Meanwhile, "Want-Ad" Hand, and "Commando course" Turner are entertaining Lennox, Kiniery, Guiliano, "Big stoop" Larkin, and Doyle who have just returned after an exciting trip to the fair grounds . . . Oh, by the way, Wakeling just received a bid to the Andy Kirk dance. . . .

Jebb "Horizontal" Stewart is still giving orders to the Charlotte bombshell, Jake Poole . . . Ed (give me your cooperation) Moppert informs DeReamer, alias "The beast" that it is time for ged . . . Huber, Lambert, and Bowman of cafe society fame, have had two dates this year—both at the same time . . . Is Powell being true to his pin-up, or can't he get a date? . . . Pan-Hel. representative "Deacon" (who will go to the meeting for me?) Holt still insists those letters from Greensboro were a gag—whoever thought they were otherwise? "Zoot-suit" Bethune is still trying to teach Felty, Specht, and "Break my leg" Leckes to dance. Our married man, Malcolm, drops into the section for a few minutes and is greeted by "Junior" Christy, who still claims that he is over sixteen . . . "Punchy" O'Donnel missed making O.D.K., but was promptly elected president of

O.C.K. . . . his own society.

Varney and "Pop" Plaze are using their special press box seats at the football games as a means of luring dates . . . Benavedes opens his delicatessen shop, but 2nd Lt. Anderson refuses to patronize it, he prefers the home made Union meals . . . "Pleasingly Plump" Hessler had a good reason for getting that basement room . . . if the chief only knew . . . Beebe Baradel was certainly playing hard to get this year . . . Tom Ahlers insists on singing a solo to Missbach's pin-up . . . Clark seems to be taking over Anderson's place . . . Senator Westover's plan for a longer Christman vacation was blocked by Speziale's speed up program.

All in all we have had a fine year. Many of us will not return next year, but we will always carry with us the memories of Kappa Sigma. To the seniors we wish the best of luck in their new lives with Uncle Sam. Here's hoping that some day, we will all get together again.

OVER IN HOUSE D, A DIFFERENT FRATERNITY RECONVENED THIS year. There was an air of grimness, of determination, of realization that time was running out. Graduation had taken its inevitable toll, and the armed services had called away other men that the chapter had counted on, Those who returned, however, rolled up their sleeves and went to work, resolving that Lambda Chi Alpha should keep up its good name and reputation on the campus. A closely-knit and proud group of men worked for three common ideals: country, school, and fraternity.

Transfer rushing was brief and vigorous. Under the leadership of Rush Chairman Gerber, five new men—Warren Twiddy, Milt Arneson, Jim Warren, George Kennedy, and Joe Presslar—joined the lodge. Bob Whitehead returned unexpectedly, was repledged, and brought the fall total to six.

Chapter business went steadily ahead. Larry Maynard turned over the treasurer's books to Dick Allsopp, and Al Page became Vice President and as intramural manager produced some crack outfits. A fraternity bond-buying campaign was instituted, and new furniture and a new paint job kept the chapter room looking at its best.

In the field of activities outside of study, Prexy Leuthold worked at his editorship of the CHANTICLEER, buzzed around the campus for the W.S.A.B. and the Pan-Hel., and managed to keep the lodge rolling. Paul Snodgrass took over the business managership of the Chronicle in October. Rocap tried to fight off three graduate courses, hold his place in a downtown choir, and still star in intramurals. Kandel became a physics lab instructor, Henderson worked in the psychiatric department of the hospital, Herter continued his experiments in psychology, and Cottle slipped easily into his old places in the choir and glee club. Phillips became one of the first platoon leaders in the S.R.T.C. Intramurals groaned, sparkled, and came through on top with Welton, Draper, Grover, and Bumgardner.

Other activities called, also. Brooks divided his time between war problems in need of solution and East Campus. Ex-prexy Crane rode his motorcycle, bravely upheld his standing with the ladies, and finally planted his pin. Wilbur, twice burned, tried to combine a geology major and frequent dating, and somehow succeeded in keeping up his standing in both. Sowdon when slowly blotso trying to keep the furniture polished and the record stand filled.

Through all of the work and the race against time, the chapter still found time to laugh and play. Stauf pounded the piano day and night, and Whitmarsh turned on his record player with the first day of school and left it on for the year. Stoddard brought forth his rare humor, and Secretary Fiske chimed in with sardonic touches while trying to figure out the fraternity filing system. There was a dance in November, not such a lavish affair as in former years, but nevertheless very satisfying and successful. The brothers lived college life eagerly, storing up memories against future discomforts.

It was a good year—for all of its trials. The wearers of the jeweled crescent seriously felt the effects of living in wartime, but there was a gleam in their eyes and pride in their hearts, and we led the campus with thirty-three pledges. No fraternity could have asked for more.

ONE OF ACHIEVEMENT AND BROTHERHOOD IN THE FRATERNITY was the school year of 1942-43. There was a bond of friendship which will be remembered through many hard years to come. The characteristics which typified North Carolina Alpha at Duke were balance of interest and achievement. The fields in which the chapter participated and excelled were athletics, scholarship, publications, social life, and student government.

In publications, Phi Delta Theta dominated all it surveyed. Harry Treleaven and Ralph Starr were editors of the Chronicle and Duke 'n' Duchess; and Strouse Campbell and Ran Few were business managers of the Chanticleer and Archive.

In athletics, Jim Smith and Frank Bond were captains of football and soccer. Bob Gantt and Tom Davis were outstanding lettermen in football, with Gantt doubling in basketball and track, and Davis in baseball. Other stars were Chapman in golf; Smith and Ketchem in lacrosse; Schuman in swimming; Russ Rose in track; and Cook and Buckle in soccer. Eliot McMorries was head manager of basketball, and Dick Miller, of soccer and lacrosse.

In student government and miscellaneous offices, Ran Few was president of the senior class, Steve Rusk was head cheerleader and president of the Trident Club, Allan Grayson was president of the Engineering sophomore class, Sam Gantt was cadet captain of the N.R.O.T.C. unit, Grayson was editor of the Dolphin, and Miller was a member of the publications Board. Few and Treleaven were Red Friars; Few, Treleaven, Campbell, McMorries, and Jim Smith were members of O.D.K.; Treleaven was Phi Beta Kappa, Cook and Allen were members of 9019, and there were ten brothers elected to B.O.S.

Dealing with the lighter side of the chapter, a word in passing on the seniors: Cavorting in the newly decorated "hunting room" could be seen Prexy Campbell, with dilapidated shoes and tattered sweater, undoubtedly due to the current checkup on Chanticleer finances . . . the "Rabbit," Rusk, head pepman, jitterbugging at the thought of seeing Missy again . . . "Shootin' " Starr driving home the rushing rules for the "uninformed" sophomores . . . the "face," Jim Smith, taking time out from his chapter room spell-binding to dash to East for a date with Elsie . . . Porterfield, showing the brothers how to massage a broken back. Jack Patten, red-cheeked boy from out Cleveland way, takes dynamic Oestmann, popular lead man for Duke Players, away from the Youngstown Vindicator long enough to catch the last show at the Center with Meyer . . . Treleaven, of Jarvis fame, lets loose a volley of words against the Administration, argues himself out of it, and then composes himself to write an editorial for his next issue . . . Few makes one of his few appearances in the chapter room to see that everything is running smoothly . . . Galt, the "stork," sees that friendly relations are maintained with the Engineers in deference to "Guppie" . . . the "death," McMorries, lost in his tower suite of editors and B.M.O.C.'s, begs for companionship as Starr, Treleaven, and Campbell are all going to press . . . "Dumpy" Alexander, with zoot suit and a new line, strides to East to catch a date with the latest Kampus Kraze. . . .

There they are, the greatest collection of real guys in the world—Phi Delta Theta.

WITH THE PROOF THAT A FRATERNITY IS IN ITS LIVING, THE Phi Psi's of House F have this year more than ever asserted that it takes more than just living to be worthy of the name fraternity—it takes living together as Brothers. This relationship, successfully acquired by our group, is a rare flower in these times of strife. As do all the other chapters of our fraternity, we invite into the bonds of brotherhood, young men from every section of the country, from every station of society, and from every economic level—encouraging their individual personalities and aiding their social and educational development. We have become true Brothers, one to the other, thus we have attained the ideal of all fraternal groups. This year, in spite of the war, we have striven to maintain a solid scholastic life; therefore, through our brotherhood have served ourselves and our country. We are Phi Psi's and thus fundamentally alike, yet we maintain our individuality by our varied activities.

Although house facilities were limited, our social life was not curtailed, for our ingenuity presented many phases, we sullied forth to meetings, picnics, hay rides, bike rides, dances, and walking dates. Yet our glory was all in ourselves. Mouse Thomas, breaking all records, dating four weekends in a row while Dennis squeezed wit out of an already too squeezed frame. Henshaw Keeping Mgr. Meixner from studying in bed, with the book under the bed—"Arno" Fick dancing with his favorite cartoon. Norris is "keyed" to the situation, but Montgomery would not talk while the third of this room, Doc Spitler, was reaching for his star. Spurgeon stooging for Anderson's card trick—a full time job—Clow gloriously hobbling everywhere, and not much caring where while "slinging Sammy" Nantin is still the only sophomore not dating the "tahition". . . .

Randel and Johnson are dating her as a twosome. Ah! for some sleep without Eml's Boleros acting as Morpheus stimulus . . . the terrible, grotesque, menacing Sales not conducive to sleep at the shack, yet Mannings's boisterous farewell put many to sleep . . . Coutant sleuthing down noise . . . the main noise being the the constant clink of Dale's keys.

In the luxurious lounge we find the house manager, Baird, complaining about Hunter's im"pregnated" dog while Wright slips in with twenty football players. The engineers take over in explosive style with Haines and Moss leading the attack—followed by silent Jim Laros as Anderson, J.F.P. swoons at seeing ten debtors together at once. Clad, Asst.P, is chilled, but not soon enough as Reese escapes. "For the man who leaves" Huntington selling white seals while O'Mara is crowned new king of the Tavern.

With unbowed heads we look forward to carrying the ideals and traditions of our beloved fraternity to all corners of the earth. Steeped in fond memories we leave our alma mater and to our brothers wherever they may be "Frater Ave Atque Vale."

Dear to the heart of every Phi Kap are the words:

> Then pledge with our voices and hearts in accord
> To Phi Kappa Sigma as one,
> The loyal and heart-felt devotion of all,
> As years to eternity run.

BOTH IN COLLEGE AND IN THE SERVICE, BUT UNITED EVERYwhere, the Phi Kaps are still marching. Our chapter room, new to us last year, has now become home—and looks it. After two days of continuous rearranging, our amateur interior decorators arrived at a decision, one approved by all. Last year's nerve-center, the telephone, was promptly installed—with the extension to Giles instead of the old Phi Kap (groove) (rut), Aycock. The loss of several one-woman would-be Cassanovas put an end to midnight calls, and also to those ever-accompanying voices in the background.

Our social life was not neglected, and there were the usual picnics, hikes, open houses, bowling parties, etc. However, a serious and earnest attitude invaded Nu Chapter; we realized that now we were confronted with a much greater task than ever before. We faced the future with apprehension, wondering what it held for each of us. Before the Christmas vacation every Phi Kap enlisted in some branch of the Armed Forces, little knowing when he would be called to the service of his country. Each "OBT" (on borrowed timer) put in many long hours on the drill field and at military lectures.

To mention some of our typical Phi Kaps, Prexy "Smokey" DeLong is finishing his senior year at the Nurse's Home, while Rog Blight vainly seeks to rid himself of that half-baked look—due partly to the community sun lamp. Cal "Senator" Yelverton and Bob "Pope" Bloxom constantly express their diametric views upon the finer points of honesty and legal larceny. (No conclusion) Don "Juan" Finch has definitley proved that two can play the same game, and Bud Wilson, after losing his "O & O" to the Army, enlists in the Army Air Corps. Our engineers, Bean, Wall, Hutt, Andrews, and French, seen altogether too seldom, constantly complain of over-work, although we know better. Bob Bingham, seen often in Duke Gardens, has taken up the study of angles and curves, and has established himself as the Phi Kap anchor man in the Nurse's Home. The "Cardshark" Jonny Malone is still holding the hearts on the East Campus. Jack Harvey and Robert Berlew are still campaigning for Mayor Hague and the Yankees. Jack is the key man on the fraternity bowling team, which still holds the university championship, and Bob, in his spare time, collects "Q. P.'s." Bill Joy, resident of the grad dorms, has had a tough year with pre-med chemistry courses and in organizing a "Pacifist Movement" which met with no little opposition. "Rufe" Hambright, a Phi Kap athlete, has starred in bowling and basketball circles. Congratulations to Jack Summey, newest pledge, who is an ideal Carolinian, and keeps Mount Holly on the map. The "Vanishing Virginian," Jim Barrow, frequently consults a slide rule in order to see how he stands with the Navy—and with "Oh Boy" Thacker. Pete Rinaldi's right-hand man, Ed "On-again-off-again" Morrison still isn't getting anywhere except through college, and Bill Eitner has at last found true love, but he still can't play hearts. Our intramural manager and team captain, Mort Bloxom, has now pulled out his last three curly locks in trying to get Phi Kap parlor athletes on the playing field, but meets with the usual response "Why Mort, at best we're mediocre."

Thus we have passed the year, working and playing in typical Phi Kap tradition—nonchalant, perhaps, at times, but always with an undying sense of loyalty and true brotherhood. Our past has been eventful; we eagerly await the future.

BOUND IN THE BROTHERHOOD OF PI KAPPA ALPHA ARE UNITED the men who strive to exemplify the ideals of the founders: fellowship, friendship, faithfulness, leadership, and truth. The achievements of the men of Alpha-Alpha chapter who have been leaders in the fraternity and on the campus illustrate the powerful influence of those ideals. The selection of men for the chapter is activated by real worth rather than show; the guage of excellence and promise is applied to all invited to fellowship. The fraternity recognizes that the present is the beginning of the future; that scholastic achievement and development of character are the student's chief objective in his college preparation for the years to come.

This year was one of the most successful that the chapter has ever experienced. Two high campus offices, the presidency of the Men's Pan-Hellenic Council and the Men's Student Government Association, were held respectively by Clarence Kefauver and Kempton Jones. Frank Ruark was president of the Duke Glee Club. Alex Radford was an Assistant Editor of the CHANTICLEER. Ben Smith was president of the Pegram Chemistry Club and manager of the Wrestling team. Emory Honeycutt was Secretary-Treasurer of the junior class. Ben Parks was president of Tau Kappa Alpha. Art Tuscany served on the Y.M.C.A. Cabinet, and Vann Secrest served as manager of the baseball team. The fraternity was well represented in all extra-curricular activities, and also in Red Friars and Omicron Delta Kappa.

In keeping with the patriotic spirit of the times, Pi Kappa Alpha purchased a War Bond twice monthly with money voluntarily contributed by each member.

An excellent social program was maintained throughout the year. Members entertained their dates at numerous cabin parties. The house was open for dating each week-end. Familiar sights at these open houses were: Hutchings and pin-up Bettie

Alexander greeting guests at the door; Prexy Kefauver longing for Dot; Radford and Bobbie planning something different to do Mac Secrest and "Chin" McClenaghan literally knocking each other off their feet; Davis and Lineberger looking for a quiet corner; Schirmer urging Mary Ann not to eat so fast; McGimsey talking about prospective Silver Wings; Friend-of-the-People-Jones dancing with Eunice, while Ruark gazes longingly at the space where our piano once was; Vann Secrest showing Jane the card room; Chandler and Paige finessing a queen from Moore and Campbell; Bauer analyzing a new disc while Wiggins pounds out the rhythm for amused Lee; Ben Smith displaying his latest trophy to Watts; Earnhardt and Mary Louise chatting with Gilbert and Hyland while Evans and King listen in; Luther Smith, Sheridan, Honeycutt, Cittadino, and Borberly discussing Saturday's game; Miller trying to keep Taylor in the family circle; Tuscany and Stark making another date; Lyons waiting for the letter; Weir singing the "Dream Girl" to Yvonne, while Fancher adds his high "C"; "Colonel Annie" Parks recruiting and hypnotizing his Duke Junior Commandos. The party is over; each member leaves feeling that another rich experience has been gained by his association with his fraternity, Pi Kappa Alpha.

WITH THE BUFFETED EXIGENCIES OF WAR, PI KAPPA PHI HAS drawn her brothers closer to her that they may more fully enjoy what may be the last year of the life for which she has so long stood. Our social activities, because they were the last for most of us, were warm indeed. Frequent Saturday afternoon open houses, an annual harvest hop conforming to wartime demands, Homecoming activities which refused to be dampened by restrictions, a spring formal dance, the stag parties at Rogge's and the Goody Shoppe, all will be hard to forget. The week ends, of course, are the easiest to remember. Brother Herder, our social chairman, saw that we were well satisfied at Saturday's open house; drum major Ivan Hawn saw that we were well entertained at Saturday's game; and the fraternity as a whole saw that our dates were well-taken-care-of at Saturday night's dance. Some of the brothers, of course, needed no help on that score. Among these were Brothers Maines, Myers, and Dunn with their pin-ups. Sunday night saw nothing but memories and bull-session accounts of a well-spent week end.

Looking back, however, we were liable to forget the interludes between the week ends. It was then that the reputation of Pi Kappa Phi was established. A scholastic fraternity, we maintained our average of placing one in every three brothers on the Dean's List. During the week also the brothers who were, over the week end, so much a part of the fraternity became part of the University. Archon Dud Moylan, our "key" man helped to edit the Archive; Art Vann combined football with scholarship and politics; John Cline presided over the town boys; Nelson Stephens handled the affairs of the junior class from his seat as vice president; and Harris Proctor hid the responsibilities of the presidency of the North Carolina Methodist Youth Association behind his personality.

Participation in intramural athletics was limited this year by the number of brothers unable to be present due to added classes in the afternoon. Athletic manager Brinkley took time off from his "Y" work, however, and we all appreciated the effort he devoted.

Early in the year we lost another of our brothers to the armed services. Engineer Ed Jones left to join the marines. His loss was made more painful by the knowledge that on our next meeting some of us, at least, would have to salute him. Brother DeWitt Nunn also left early this year for the United States Military Academy at West Point.

As spring approached and the reserves began to be called, more Pi Kaps left for the service. Brothers Vann, Johnson, and Hawn left with the Army Air Corps, Brother Ken Starr went to the Government's Japanese-language school in Colorado, Brothers Dunn and Brinkley were called by the Enlisted Reserve Corps, and Brothers Proctor, Burnett, and Smith were drafted.

Of all the activities in which Pi Kaps participated during the year, none was more successful than rush-week. Pledging twenty-six men, we concluded the best rush-week of our history. The ensuing "hell week" was marked by the usual mayhem.

As the year draws to a close we are certain, for a while at least, that there will be no more like it for any fraternity anywhere. Regardless of the situation, however, we are determined to uphold Pi Kappa Phi's high standard of scholarship.

WE OF SIGMA NU TAKE PRIDE IN INTRODUCING TO YOU THE PERsonalities of our chapter, with the calm assurance that you will see in them the embodiment of our fraternity's motif—the most complete personal development of its members.

Not limiting our extra-curricular interests to any one field, Sigma Nu has loyal devotees to almost every activity on the campus—whether it be intellectual, athletic, social, or political. To coin a phrase, let's take a look at the record.

Intellectual . . . in the fields of pure science, John Stuart and Bill Osborne have set their minds to the test-tubes and retorts of the chemistry laboratory. Mr. Osborne (or should we say "Ensign" Osborne) was with us this past year by the grace of the United States Navy, which somehow sees in him a future ordnance officer. Dr. Stuart is relying on his wide knowledge of chemistry to inject him into some lucrative position in a vital industry. For pure surprise we have Prof. Sheldon Vogel, who, after frittering away three years with an amazine paucity of quality points, has made the administration reverse its opinion (the first time in history, we believe) with a Phi Beta Kappa average. Commander William Vanderpool, Richard Baker, Columnist Fenton F. Harrison, and Judge Jackson De Weese Hawkins have all devoted their intricate brains to the law. Maestro Bruno Zirato, beside keeping up a rather enviable scholastic record, insists on spouting fragments from Beethoven and Brahms at any moment. He, with Roger Sticht, remain Sigma Nu's lone disciples of the fine arts—both are English Majors. Drs. Robert Keller and Guy Walter Schlaseman have taken the diseases of the human race to their bosom and dispense medical advice at a nominal fee. Lieutenant Commander Howard Walker, equally adept at sport and brain-work boasts a Phi Beta Kappa key to crown his Charles Atlas body.

Athletic . . . Coach Edward Kirsnis seems to find a masochistic pleasure in getting his shins shredded and holds down a key position on the soccer team. Robert Arnold has carried on the Sigma Nu tradition and is an important cog in the Tennis Team. For lack of any definite pigeon hole in which to catalogue Air Cadet Tom Shuler, we include him here under Athletics . . . here is our excuse. Yogi Shuler has been known to deal one pack of cards, shuffle another, play three bridge hands, fade seventeen separate dice games, hold hands in four poker games, and write a letter home all within three minutes and thirty-seven seconds. C. Kofoid Winter, unattached, and Engineer Louis Close, follow those precious white pellets around the golf-course. Intramural manager MacInnes coordinates all Sigma Nu Olympic games and for extra calisthenics waves his arms to lead our songs in precise beat. Robert Hillier trains for his gambolling on the lacrosse field by toting pounds of shirts, sheets, and socks to and from the laundry. Donald Mundie and Robert Ambrose. Open forum for hand-stands and somersaults every night in the chapter room.

Social . . . Eric Dougherty and Fenton Harrison are married. Elucidation at point of origin only. Dr. Schlaseman is still missing his pin, while Bruno Zirato dabbles in rings. Warren Rudolph Hess pits Long Island against the Nurses' Home. Contrary to popular opinion, the Freshman class discovered John Stuart, definitely not vice versa! A press pass and a Ford convertible has made William Schuchardt a formidable man on East, while Elmer Tabor exploits possibilities within a fifty mile radius.

AS HAVE THE OTHER FRATERNITIES AT DUKE, SIG EP HAS ASsumed a somewhat martial atmosphere this year. Every day someone joins a Reserve or is "selected by a group of fellow-citizens" to represent them in the Army, and he has to submit to the usual "Congratulations, Admiral!" or "Ten-shun, Private Harrington!" Outside activities have been subordinated to S.R.T.C. work in which S. P. E. has close to 100 per cent representation. Social life, however, has not been totally neglected. The pre-game Open Houses were extremely successful during the football season, and the same may be said for the parties at Piney Mountain and Lassiter's Clinic. With many of the Seniors leaving for active duty in January and the rest doubtful of another year in school the boys have been bringing their college and fraternity careers to a glorious finale. Let's meet them individually in one of those nightly 305 bull sessions.

Our President, Bill Gosnell, wreathed in smiles after a couple of weeks with his girl in Arkansas and still grooming for a "stand-in" for MGM's Leo; Dick Ford, Ford of Haverford, and self-appointed Beau Brummel plugging exceptionally hard this year; Bob Miner of the Army Air Force with his hobbies, cross-word puzzles, repairing flit guns, and his main hobby, Varnes; "Wild Bill" Bates—Scott Field with the Air Force this January and finally dating after three years; Bob Lassiter of the Navy—hoping for flight or submarine duty—still cavorting on East Campus but refusing to get "hooked"; Joe Harrington and his fan mail—dreading those 25 mile hikes with full equipment; then there are those outdoor men Johnson, Blackwell, and Skarstrom living rugged lives up at the Law cabins; Gates, Harmes, and Prytherch all on edge wondering when the Army Enlisted Reserve myth is going to blow up in their faces; "Junior" Allen—seen any night or day behind a pack of cards; Norman Lawlor—very popular lad because he has one of the two cars in the fraternity this year—and beloved by the women because of the part in his hair; Jack Jenkins—son of an Admiral, he says, still trying to get in the Navy himself; Walt Stamm—knows so many women he's going to open a dating bureau; and bringing up the rear we have Jim Stow—entrepreneur extraordinary edging out other Durham racketeers and so innocent looking that he gets away with it.

Well, those are the fellows individually. As a group they are typical of Sig Eps of other years, of the days of Bill Whitford and Meredith Moore, when Sig Ep was coming into its own. The parties are smaller, but just as gay. We are putting away lots of memories this year to think about on the high seas and tropical jungles next year. We have found that Duke and S. P. E. will mean a lot when we are far away. We can tell by the letters from our boys in Africa, Ireland, and Iceland. They are telling us to get the most out of Sigma Phi Epsilon's brotherhood this year. Today there is a new spirit in the fraternity, a spirit of appreciation for what the fraternity has done for us while we've been here. We have suddenly caught on to the true meaning of friendship and realize that our fondest memories will be those of the warm handshake, the late bull sessions, and the unmistakable feeling that we are marching along the road to victory together.

The vine-covered section which houses the fellows of Sigma Phi Epsilon harbors behind its gothic entrance an atmosphere which is dissimilar from the outward appearances as laughter and frolic tightly weld this jolly group into a friendly brotherhood. Every member has filled his own nitch in the lodge with his own personality, making the fraternity a closely knit group whree individuality contributed to sew a bed of never-to-be-forgotten memories.

ON THE DUKE CAMPUS ZETA BETA TAU HAS SKYROCKETED SINCE its founding in 1935, and this year the general opinion is that it has reached a zenith. Not only has Alpha Upsilon its largest membership in history, but it is also much more widely represented in college activities.

In this great war crisis, we all realize our tremendous responsibility and desire to live college life to the fullest. It has been hard, grueling work for us, so in contrast we shall look upon the brighter side of fraternity life for a while. The "Zeta Betes" surely will remember this year as being an intensely interesting one. Open houses, football week-ends, boisterous banquets, dances, picnics, and lively fraternity meetings are only a few of the outstanding events which will follow us in memory throughout a lifetime.

Our S.G.A. president and tennis captain, Ray Nasher surprised everybody by continually haunting the East Campus. Les Pinsky, F.A.C. man and Associate Business Manager of the CHANTICLEER, kept everybody in fine spirits with his unique smile and good nature. "Chuck" Hoffberger, past prexy, returned from Baltimore with "that certain look" which resulted in a pin-up to Frances. "Cubby" Baer in the role of campus producer and Business Manager of Duke Players announced his engagement to Connie of St. Louis. "Red Dog" Backer returned from Miami with enthralling tales and served efficiently as fraternity social chairman. Leon Feldman was the capable vice president of the Pre-Med. Society. His Med school problem solved, Jay Maxwell just glided along. Felix Kurzrok busied himself with Duke Players and continual "hiking." Seymour "Bo" Green sung loudly the praises of his branch—the U. S. Marines.

Terry Brenner gained his football reputation this year—finally. Though occupied with his Campus Time Program, Don Littman found time to be a good fellow. "Mush" Rauch, our prexy, forgot Jeanne long enough to lead our football team through a "terrif" season. "Wild" Bill Levy continued to make "A's" despite bridge game entanglements. In addition to an enlistment in the Marines, "Morrie" Brandt sported his lacrosse letter. Joe Gutstadt became president of Duke Players and continued his hard work with the Thespians. Much credit goes to Art Jaffey, our sports columnist for the Chronicle. In addition to worrying over the Playbill, Al Bernikow added words to the Z. B. T. vocabulary.

The Baltimore lovers, A. J. Wolf and "Miv" Rosenthal were occasionally thwarted. Thespian Stan Barkan spent much time searching for a girl with a "character." Clive Steinman was elated over his election to Theta Alpha Phi and rightly so. Wally Goldhill, the "Admiral" paraded about in his N.R.O.T.C. uniform, while Larry Schwartz concentrated on handball. Don Kartman took a part in a play as Jerry Miller tried to get over those week-ends. "Rosebuds" go to Larry Simons who assisted in the production of Campus Time, and to Harry Wechsler who put his mind to making grades —and did it.

Although successful in meeting the problems of collegiate life, the brothers of Z.B.T. have dedicated themselves to a far greater task—that of winning the war.

ALPHA CHI OMEGA

AS I RUMMAGED THROUGH MY DESK THE OTHER DAY, I PULLED out an old issue of the Alpha Chi Omega Chronicle! The front page of this particular issue had more headlines than I have ever seen on a front page before. I have always been a great believer in headlines, but this 1942-43 issue was a honey!

A big streamer headline blazes forth with news of our famous actress. "Cast Selected For Duke Players Production. Helen Kindler, co-star of 'Arsenic and Old Lace,' to play lead in 'The Eve of St. Mark'." (We all remember how Helen brought tears to our eyes in the dream scene.)

Right below is a picture of the first January graduating class. I can pick out Jeano, Ida Mary, and Betty Bishop. (How can they look so happy when they know they are leaving us?)

Then turn to the society page for more exciting news. Say, that's a beautiful picture of Sally, and there's Ginny's picture, beaming away just as if she were looking right at Cookie! (We were all thrilled when those gals announced their engagements. And what a wonderful surprise when Tacy's ring came all the way from Texas, in a "Rip"ping hurry.)

Here's something I don't want to miss, "Alpha Chi Couplets." (We never did find out who wrote it.) "At last, she's wearing 'the sword and shield,' our Carol who's now Pete's Carol, officially."

"Kappa Alpha serenaded Peggy Rake last Monday night. Now Stan's here this week, serenading her under the infirmary window." (Peggy loved it all—except the measles. And roommate Harriet did her best to console Stan.)

"Seen strolling with one of the best looking finance officers on the campus, Rosemary who's singing, 'He's just my Bill—'."

Here's a familiar item. "The Pi Kappa Phi's are having a cabin party this weekend. Among those present will be Mildred Shulkin, Cam Grebe—" (Hmm, wonder which Pi Kaps it might be.)

Enough of this frivolity! I'd better turn the page

First row: Woods, Lake, Bishop, Collier
Second row: Grose, Stowe, Schule, Cline
Third row: Seay, Johnson, Osborne, Labs and find out what's really going on in '42-'43.

Elections! "Carol Johnson Elected New Alpha Chi Prexy." (Always knew Johnny would make a good boss, the way she could handle Bob.)

Oh, oh, here's another Archive review. "Editor Collier puts forth her best efforts, Archive hits new high in student appeal. (Well! but I did read it once or twice myself, that year.)

"Hoof and Horn show too put on a 'Show Down' this year. Leading the chorus, Ruth Seay—(Whee! there's Seay again. Don't know what they'll do for dancing talent when she leaves.)

"Items: Winner of sorority bridge tournament announced. Grace Moore walks off with top honors —Jackie Barthen high scorer in basketball tournament. Plays final game with a sprained ankle. (We never could make Jackie sit still.)——Everyone is dropping in up at Duke Hospital this week. The center of attraction is Bobby Ramsey who is recuperating from the loss of an appendix."

"Notices: Remember to give Maggie your picture for outstanding Alpha Chi's in the next issue of the Lyre. (I wonder if she lost mine. I missed it in the July Lyre.)—Phyllis has run out of printed bills, but she'll be glad to write a receipt any time you find it convenient."

This is what I've been looking for. "Pledge class completes their training period. Under the direction of Dorothy Labs, all passed with flying colors. Congratulations to Nancy Butts, Louise Moseley, Lois De Long, Alice Lawler, Bobby Roberts, Amy Franklin, Frankie Wright, and Muriel Buck, all grand pledges."

"Alpha Chi's Have Had a Successful Year."

ALPHA EPSILON PHI

WE'RE ALL GATHERED IN THE SORORITY ROOM. THERE'S A BIG year ahead, lots of plans and aspirations, socials and coffees. Maybe it's Founders Day or perhaps it's just supper in the room; nevertheless, we find the Greeks straying into Faculty Apts. amid a chatter of gaiety and sisterhood.

Dean Bloom raises the gavel, silence falls—as she requests a fourth for bridge. Volunteers are numerous, cooperative spirit pervades the room, the cards are dealt, and the party is in session.

Isn't that Ruth behind that stack of books? She tells us she just missed her A average by one five hundredth of a quality point. Now here comes Ernie with a pile of bandages. Is anyone hurt? No, it's for the Red Cross.

Won't someone please tell Dolores to stop staring at my legs! Since when are hose required in the sorority room? Our abashed Social Standards member quietly retires to a corner. Above the din, Zelda asks if anyone can make costumes for Duke Players. After a unanimous agreement that no one present can sew, the party proceeds. One minute of silence is observed as Leona describes her case of poliomyelitis of the hip. She and Harriet adjourn to a corner to compare operations.

Sub-dean Blume excuses herself to attend a Student Forum meeting, a Duke Players meeting, then a house committee meeting. Lilly and Myra leave next as they have a little packing to do before departing for Chapel Hill. Mickey, as usual, has a toothache that only one dentist can cure.

Oops! Doris just fainted. They say she made a seven no-trump hand doubled and redoubled. I thought something exciting had happened.

Why, here come the pledges. Now things will really begin to happen. Merle looks rather white and she's trembling. It's nothing serious, a soldier just said "Boo" to her—but she has "Gobs of Love for the Navy."

Anna Lou's coat catches every eye. "Eleven stripes," she says, "Count 'em." And Betty is still our idea of what a southern belle ought to look like.

Harriet is all set to leave for the weekend—if only that permission from brother Bo comes through. Barbara looks a little unhappy. She just can't wait til next year when she'll be able to go to house parties.

Planning for the year makes interesting conversation. There'll be student-faculty coffees—only we'll serve tea without sugar. War work will take a lot of time too. Of course we're going to roll bandages and attend USO dances as a group. Someone suggests, "Why don't we write letters for the patients in the wards of Duke Hospital?" The idea is promptly adopted.

The annual cabin party is going to be a problem. What will we ever do for transportation—and as for the customary steak—well! Ideas enough will come to us when the time actually comes though.

Well, we don't know what to expect for this year. Some things won't change, we know. Sisterhood won't, for example. There will always be the room to date in on cold winter nights, with it's bright cheery lights and comfortable chairs. The records will still be the latest we can find in town, and poring over the scrapbooks will occupy many happy hours. We won't buy many new things for the room. That money is going to go into war bonds.

The girls of the Green and White link arms and sing one of the sorority songs. It's one that reflects everything precious we know of sorority—the warm feeling of sisterhood, the good times together, and the feeling of being a little part of something big.

It's almost ten-thirty now and time to go. The pledges strike up with "Why Don't We Do This More Often?"—and don't think we won't.

ALPHA PHI

ALWAYS IN PREVIOUS YEARS THE FIRST SORORITY MEETING OF the new year would be characterized by laughter and furious talking. This year was no exception, but the laughter was more subdued, and the talking included more important subjects than pin-ups, et al. These still have their place in sorority life, but everyone is now aware of a tremendous change which has affected all phases of college life.

As we enter the room, Caroyl, our esteemed president, is busy leafing through her notebook, glancing up every few minutes to greet her sisters with that Van Kleeck smile which even the war can't dim. On her left is Stackhouse, our little efficient secretary, who in spite of her size, commands our attention as she reads the minutes. Annale, more quiet, yet still barely able to keep those dancing feet still, completes the trio which presides at the far end of the room. Leddy still has a sparkle in her eyes, in spite of a long summer school session and a heavy program which enables her to graduate this January. Kay, taking time out from her nursing duties, holds us spellbound with tales of her patient in Room 109, while her last year's roommate, Susie, still as vivacious as ever, helps Sylvia, our new, but oh so efficient Rushing Chairman, with her ever increasing problems. That glow at the other end of the room encircles our two engaged sisters, Ludt and Friesie. Connie and Henri have their heads together over the latest Pan-Hel. news, while Alice, appearing "calm, cool, and collected," dreams up bigger and better social activities for the coming year. There's Fran, cutting capers in the corner, while her "Roomie" Claire does her best to keep her from turning the meeting into a Huemer (no pun intended) session. Libby, in the far corner, is busy deciding which would be the best angle in which to catch her sisters off guard in one of her famous candid camera shots.

Pete, Froass, and Andrews are discussing their "unknowns" and an afternoon spent in Lab., while Maggie pours over innumerable upholstery samples, in hopes of a renovated chapter room. Ione is busy passing out those little yellow slips which will make us dig deep into next month's allowances. Dag rushes in after attending one meeting and gets ready to fly off to the next, while Jackson gets an inspiration for that new Alpha Phi song that she and Meister are going to collaborate on.

Our pledges are lively Dottie, fun-loving Howe, and Alice, busy getting latest news for the Chronicle.

A peek at a much later meeting gives us a glimpse of our new members, still green but catching on fast, grouped together waiting anxiously for the meeting to start. Pat Ward, Betty Smith, Judy Smith, Jane Merriweather, Jan Bell and Charlotte Allaban are the new initiates that everyone is gazing at so proudly! And don't think we're not all just as proud of the pledges: Mary Lou Norris, Joan Gaudynski, Alice Heygel, and Elsie Ward.

Both old and new members of Alpha Phi this year are bound together, not only by parties and meetings, but by a feeling that in their unity they have an ever-present strength and support behind them to help in the troubled days still to come, so ours is an all-out effort this year to preserve this unity.

AS WE TURN THE PAGES OF OUR MEMORY BOOK, LOOKING BACK on the year 1942-43, our thoughts of section life in Alspaugh, roughing it at cabin parties, bull sessions, midnight feasts, swaying to Tri-Delt Waltz, cramming for exams in smoke-filled rooms, knocking ourselves out with excitement over engagement rings, remind us of happy days at Duke . . . may we never forget! And how could we forget Prexy Toby, one of the main COGS in the wheel . . . Audrey, whose school work interfered with her extracurricular activities, yet whence came those A's? . . . Honey, who played "Night and Day" night and day . . . Cooper discovered the chemical ingredients of SGA and that isn't all . . . Dale turned in her silver wings for a pilot, our loss . . . Dottie decided to Knuckle down, while roommate Margie transferred for variety . . . now we know who sings the harmony with Kingy to "Tell Me Why" . . . Lukens is "Keeping the Home Fires Burning" till "Johnnie Comes Marching Home" . . . "Looks Like a Holliday" for Ben . . . there was Conor, absolutely Shocked with it all, but Rappy . . . Bev, our Alspaugh Prexy, singing "I'm Saving Myself for Bill" . . . We saw Lucke balancing the books to the tune of the Air Corps song . . . Tessie waiting for her Arkansas Traveler, and keeping herself slim by bike riding . . . teaching Mary Neel to laugh without a Southern accent . . . Jean Horsely waiting for a pair of silver wings . . . Leigh yielding to the sword and shield while suitemate Dottie balanced the books and played the field . . . the Red Head cut strings to make rugs for a future efficiency apartment . . . the wide open spaces kept calling back their adopted daughter, Axton . . . Janet, pulling in A's behind a camouflage of glamour . . . Bayes, who always knew what was "Broughing" . . . Ella Mae's interest moved from Chapel Hill to Miami, and she wondered where it would be next . . . Max, an unexpected gift, left us just as unexpectedly . . . Allard, with her nicknames and her latest Vogue haircut . . . having tackled Durham and conquered, Pat turned to greener fields in New York and points East.

To complete our memory book, our pledges came in . . . and we were proud as punch of them. They were: Dreama Bottoms, Brentwood, Pa.; Virginia Lee Brown, Washington, D. C.; Ruth Ann Duffy, Mt. Olive, N. C.; Jean Flaherty, Swarthmore, Pa.; Margaret Gobbel, Suffolk, Va.; Beverly Hudlow, San Marino, Calif; Harriet Hylton, Welch, W. Va.; Henrietta Lorentz, Clay, W. Va.; Ann Reynolds, Ft. Myers, Fla.; Elaine Stride, Biddeford, Maine; Betty Ann Taylor, Tampa, Fla.; Doris Todd, Alexandria, Va.; Elfrida von Nardroff, Durham, N. C.; Nancy Wenger, Catonsville, Md.; Mary L. Wilson, Mobile, Ala.

So we'll close our memory book on another unforgettable year, knowing that we can look forward to a promising future. We will miss our four seniors, small in quantity but large in quality. Our juniors will step up to take their places and lead Tri-Delta on to greater heights. As our sophomores become juniors they will take their stand joining the ranks of the upper classes. And the freshmen, our insurance for the future, will step in to become worthy members of Alpha Omicron. So ending our pleasant memories for now, we can look forward to an equally happy future in Delta Delta Delta.

DELTA GAMMA

WITH THE PASSING OF FOUR YEARS, WE SENIORS HAVE FOUND a feeling in Delta Gamma which we can't express, something intangible, yet something very real. Association with the sorority, we know, has added something to college that it otherwise would never have possessed. Perhaps more than anything else it was a feeling that there was something and someone on which we could count, no matter what went wrong. It was a feeling that someone was rooting for us, urging us on in a world where everyone else seemed to be so much for himself. If it never had any further significance, the companionship and close comradeship of a group of girls who were so like us and yet so different from us, would have been compensation enough for that fifty or so odd dollars we parted with rather reluctantly way back in the dim dark ages of our freshman year.

We can't help feeling that without the sorority we would have slid right through college clothed in the meager insignificance in which we came into the Georgian court and the Gothic arch. It gave us friends, it gave us courage, it gave us backing, it gave us suggestions. It criticized us, it praised us. It laughed with us, it cried for us. It gave us a feeling of belonging at a time when we felt most alone. It enriched our college life to a degree that it could never have otherwise possessed. And more than that, it has given us memories.

Memories of tiring rush parties, of heated meetings, of smoky coffees and even more smoky teas, of before-dinner get-togethers, of toasting marshmallows in front of our fireplace. But even more than these it has given us memories of the girls who we have come to know and love, in spite of, or maybe it's because of, what they are.

It seems to us that we will always remember Dot wielding the gavel, demanding order, her New England accent, smiling, rushing about . . . Annie Laurie, curly-headed blonde, from Memphis, excellent in chemistry and training pledges, but terrible in singing Camp Laurel Falls songs . . . Charming, cordial Nancy, working hard as rush chairman . . . Bess, B.W.O.C. and Phi Beta Kappa, bringing D. G. through to become tops scholastically . . . Dot, Pan-Hel. president, talking over the latest A. T. O. steak fry with Eleanor . . . Jodi, whose loyalty is torn between Duke and Brown . . . Chronicle Editor-in-Chief Donna, rushing to make that fatal deadline . . . Bobi, Brown House prexy, and her eternal roommate Ginny, always writing to Wayne . . . Our musical personalities Dora and Sally . . . Highsmith with a sparkler, third finger left hand . . . Smooth Shirley with that devil in her eyes . . . Durhamites Ann, Sybil, and Billy, southern femininity at its best . . . Lee, leading Sandals to new heights of success, Jane, always keeping men guessing . . . Kay, always rushing to "Y" meetings, and Ruth, upholding the honor of Sophomore Commission President . . . Likable B. J., taking Ivy and Sandals honors . . . Harriet keeping the D. G.'s charming . . . Decker keeping the D. G.'s popular . . . Friendly Betty and dazzling Ginny . . . Inseparable twosome, Gilliam and Ramsburg . . . Mary Ann and Nancy, making West run East . . . Pat always dating, you know who.

It's the little things that count. We'll remember the pledges: Mary Alice's pug nose . . . Infallible McGriff with her "Gossip Column" . . . Secretary Lois' distress over the Fountain twins—was Jean present and Joan late or . . . Undaunted Trixie . . . and Thea, always in an argument . . . Nicki with that devil in her eyes . . . Bennett and her red gown . . . Harriet and the pledge quiz . . . Needham and her Red Cross Helmet . . . and smiling Wilma.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

OE THETA GIRLS HAVE HAD ONE GRAND AND GAY TIME THIS year. Despite the conditions of war and the great effect they have had upon the campus through 1942 and 1943, all of us have found true happiness in our efforts to attain the most from our college days. There was fun to be had in winning the "race" for War Chest Contributions; there was amazement felt when our outgoing and in-coming prexies, Jackson and LaVine, respectively, won the "Y Fair" Cookie Contest for Theta. It was most enlightening to have open discussions during Religious Emphasis Week. In all our experiences, we sincerely feel that this year has been an important one to each and everyone of us.

To picture what we are like when together, let us pretend that we Thetas have gone to the State Fair, which we would not be allowed to go to, and which we did not go to, but which would have been fun if we had. Leading us through the gate would be golden-haired Helen, and close behind, with a friendly word for all, comes Hutch of White Duchy. The rest of us follow. Sally stops to buy some violets, thinking of her S.A.E. Janet and Harwood hurry her along for they are anxious to see what the fair has to offer. Mary Mackall, tending to all those little but significant details, reminds us to watch our purses. Mary T. chats about her trip to New York; photogenic Marilynn, just back from modeling for Vogue, chats both about modeling and John.

Coming to the Ferris Wheel, we all decide to take a dizzy ride. Blonde Mary B. and dark Marjorie get stuck at the top and sit there worrying about those important meetings they should be attending. Jolly, looking like a Dresden doll, and afraid to ride, waits below with vivacious Georgia, who uses all her spare time knitting socks for A.T.O. Spieth. We all miss the presence of that grand old gal, McKisson.

Off the Ferris Wheel, we spy the Distorted Mirrors Gallery and our dramatic Betty Long is the first to reach it. As she laughs hysterically, exotic, but gay,

First row: Macalister, Mackall, Hutchinson, Taylor
Second row: Ambrose, Jossman, LaVine, Jolly
Third row: Jones, C., McKisson, Bankhardt, Lewis

Josie joins her and we all laugh with them as sparks of wit fly. Darling Jeschke thinks about a soldier-boy in spite of the many distractions. Then, all of us dash off to ride some more. Soon divine LaVine gathers us together for the picnic supper. Still dizzy from their whirl, popular Cynthia and pretty M. D. come quickly, keeping Carolyn J. in stitches with their tales of the freaks they saw. Ginny tells of her "bang"-up good time. Versatile Julie talks with attractive June, and since they are both potential Phi Betes, the conversation is quite high and above our heads. Interested in what it is all about, our good-looking Ebie starts to enter the conversation, but decides to enter the race for food instead. Chipper Mickey leads us in song, with Social Standards Ann B. at her side. Dream-girl Shirley sings a lovely obligato. Sweet Vivette and thoughtful Carolyn Young furnish the harmony. We all join in the singing, just as we all join in to laugh and play and work together in a most wonderful fellowship. Welcoming Nacy Donavan, transferred from far off Kansas, we sing in honor of Theta's national name.

It would have been a wonderful afternoon, had we been at the Fair.

As we look forward to good times in the future, we think of our lovable pledges. Every one of them are fine Thetas in every respect. We know them as: Dee Abe, Jo Ann Anderson, Bill Church, Alice Cline, Kay Elmore, Gloria Fletemeyer, Pat Hanson, Pat Kelly, Es LeVan, Dotty Lewis, Jean MacArthur, Kay Mayers, Patty McGowan, Bobby Mill, Nickey Nicholl, Peggy Otto, and Liz Prather. We hope they will attain the feeling for Theta that we have found.

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA

BECAUSE THE PLACE OF KAPPA'S KEY ON CAMPUS IS THE CONSUMMATION of the key-places, it holds each of us in Kappa:

For the epitome of loveliness, poise, and efficiency, we turn to Flentye, who could be called Empress rather than president, so regally is she regarded. And again we may record a Phi Bete in the annals of Delta Beta . . . For the counterpart of sophistication and charm, we offer Boots' thoroughbred qualities . . . Sheena lends us proud, companionable friendship, combined with a disarming smile and twinkling eyes which have not gone unnoticed on "West" . . . In Joanne, one of our married contingent, we find intelligent domesticity and the apex of charming hostesses . . . To out-mode the glamor-girl of the pre-war era, we offer vita-lure as found in Helen Miner . . . Varnes' fetching feminity rang the church bells for a beautiful January wedding . . . With the embellishments of Lavington's witticisms and rollicking antics, together with brilliant stage performances, these seniors proudly leave precision-cut niches in Delta Beta chapter.

Keynoting the Junior class is a spirit of unity laying claims to: Strible's trim temper, good-sportsmanship, and expert directing of the songbirds for the "Sings," year in and year out . . . Beth's serene position in the Beauty section and precise division of leisure between Kappa and the Phi Delt . . . Little Betsy's effusions of excitement and attacks of "yipes." . . . Koukol of the intelligentsia with a delightful sense of humor, plus a husband leaving an irreplaceable gap in the class of '44 . . . Mary Nelson's blonde beauty and attractive smile combined with an admirable method of balancing the budget for the Junior class . . . Audrey, forever *Chuck*ling with the S.A.E.'s, yet playing a vital part in Kappa and winning the respect and admiration of all.

In the younger half of the chapter is great versatility: There's Peggy Bacon, another member of Beauty Row, whose charming naïvete brings out protective instincts from the entire west campus . . . McClenaghan's Southern tactics are worthy of scientific study. A Beta diamond is safely "Laucked" by her Kappa key . . . Geneva personifies the charming simplicity and reserve of New England and ably represents us in W.S.G.A. activities . . . Baumgartner's laughing eyes and warm personality are being monopolized these days by a Kappa Sig hailing from Chapel Hill . . . Mary Ann's infectuous giggles and gaiety accompany dependability which is necessary to W.S.G.A. . . . The quick smile of Jinks continues to keep up morale on west campus . . . And then there's perky Polly, playing her part in the Butner activities and being indispensable to serenades . . . Likable Lee, who lifted the scholarship rating to the skies, made a life-long alliance with her Captain in February . . . There's Mary, who has "something there that seems so square," grooming her tallness to a "T" . . . Thalia's thoroughness and wonderful way of getting things done wins the admiration of both East and West . . . Conscientious Luessenhop, taking time out from the "flickies," plays the part of banker for Kappa . . . Randy's enthusiasm and loyalty to the Finance School keeps us beaming . . . Tearse's gift of entertaining gab trills from every nook and corner and cheers us on to bigger and better scholastic standings . . . Three complex personalities here: Dill, with orchids dripping over her expert knitting, keeps Harvard first in her heart . . . Groome, taking her freckles into the Beauty Section, confuses all with the two "George's" and a string of male admirers making us green with envy . . . and, finally, Carolyn, who puts a cheery note into every crowd.

And so, with pride in all these keys, we lock another year's achievements in the annals of K.K.G.

PHI MU

OLACK MONDAY NIGHT, THE ROOM WAS DARK, THE NOISE was terrific; but suddenly all was quiet, for there on the screen, flashed in beautiful color, was a panorama of the many good times had by the members of Gamma Epsilon Chapter of Phi Mu.

The first scenes were of our overnight cabin party on Crabtree Creek. This film could well be entitled "Ah Wilderness" or "How to Avoid Poison Ivy." "Hey, that was taken at the docks," hollers Prexy Curry, forgetting her dignity for a moment. Just then Susan Kearns, our double-talk specialist, shoves Marianne McCoy (dreaming of Don, no doubt) ever so slightly, but just enough to cause quite a splash (not in the room, on the screen, of course). Action swings to Margaret Obermaier, looking smooth even with hair braided, who is snapping Zillah, W.S.G.A. vice president, in one of her more undignified moments away from the college. The scene moves up the hill to the "Better-than-world-series" ball game with Mary Turner swinging aimlessly at Chunk's curved ball (almost as fast as her speed-up program). Two outs, but "Casey" Alden didn't let us down. Here she comes sliding in to home to win the game.

"End of reel one, reel two coming up," shouts Fay as she quickly changes the film in the dark. "What's coming next?" Peggy Aeugle asks as she puts the final touches to those Chen-Yu fingernails (Yes, even without light!).

Here we are back on campus again. Looks like our two-somes on the Chapel steps, for there are Ella Mae, our Southern belle, and her ever-faithful follower, and isn't that Phyllis and Jack, the couple who clinched it with a pin in summer school? Wat and Rosie beaming now that they're Mrs. and Mr., and saying this time it's for keeps. All Permenter can say is GeeGee, and there he is coming to meet her. There's Willy, with a pile of books under her arms, coming out of class with Norris as usual. Now a close-up of Pete and Johnny reminiscing of the day they took it from the Chapel steps to the Chapel altar.

Reel three moves to East Campus, where we get a bird's-eye view of Haines field and the sun-bathers now that warm weather is here. There's Augusta, dreaming in the sun. "Bet she's thinking of Davidson dances," pipes Walker, doing a little dreaming herself. She is relaxing from her duties as house president. She looks happy—could be those officers. Those backs to the camera are letter writers—Leila to that Captain at Fort Benning, Eder to California, and Bunker keeping up her correspondence with the Air Corps still. Away from the crowd is Barrie studying Economic Geography in her attempt to find the shortest distance to Oregon.

Close-ups and odd scenes around campus come next. There's lovely Novella descending the library steps and humming all the Air Corps songs under her breath. Jinny, the skilled zoo illustrator is close behind. Coming out of Giles we see Bessie Cox, the choir's indispensable accompanist, and Shirley Helmich—both true to the Lambda Chis. Ibby goes hurrying by (hard to believe—Southern, you know) to the Union (harder to believe). Inseparable Burchett and Lewis, now Lewis and Lewis Incorporated, argue with Citadel Jimmy and Tommy Bell as to who is to ride the Tandem next around the campus.

The scene quickly changes to the Pan-Hel. house where our pledges have gathered for a meeting.

The lights go on amidst much confusion, but a rising vote of thanks is given to Fay for bringing back the happy memories of the many good times shared at Duke by the members of Phi Mu.

PI BETA PHI

ONCE AGAIN THE WEARERS OF THE WINE AND BLUE HAVE PASSED another milestone in the chapter's history. The Pi Phi arrow has scored another bull's-eye as this school year draws to a close. Remaining the largest chapter on campus, the group is bound together by a loyalty and comradeship that arise from forty-one individual personalities and ambitions. Although each of those forty-one possesses a singular aim in life, each is constantly working with the other forty in furthering the progress toward the goals of the fraternity.

With a seeminglcss endless supply of "wim, wigor, and witality" these sisters can be seen dashing busily around campus all day long and well into the night. Prexy Babbie frantically tears her hair out by the roots; between managing the COGS, attending to presidential duties, and seeing that roommate Nina got pinned up, she has had a busy year. Big Mixson struggles along, keeping the mailman busy with correspondence to and from Ox, while Julie does the town with Soupy in his last stand at "Dear old Duke." Glamour-girl Deaton manages to pull down four A's and still trot off to a show frequently with Blount and Tave. We find Kitty and Carol discussing the merits of the name Smith, as Gloria sandwiches a few daydreams of her home town man in between Moff and Dick. There are Toni, Virgie, the Missuses D'n'D and Chronicle respectively, pining for Ralph and Harry, also respectively. Brooksie was Maltesed crossed by Atcow prez, Chet Byrn. Upshaw and her Angel were on the in-and-outs most of the time. Christmas bells weren't the only bells that rang December holidays for DeMerci. Cit rules her pledge class with a strong arm, and Brooks with not-so-strong an arm—June will change all that. Roomie Roess coolly juggles the duties of rush captain and Pan-Hel., while ex-lil sister Succop continues to look Beta and Beta. Doyne and Sampson discuss the affairs of the Junior class, and Pelletier looks bewildered over losing side-kick Stoever. Merfel receives a mighty response with her cheerleading in between cases of measles and Hoof and Horn practice. Bev rushes by to one of her numerous meetings, as Annette and Coggin make plans for winning the horse show . . . again. Tarp's back, whacking golf balls, riding like a vet, tanned, and looking good as ever. Kathleen presides gracefully over Pegram with an eye on the mailbox for Earle's letters. Nancy Lee and Betty Lee keep first floor Bassett in an uproar, as Piney trots off to Chapel Hill or Annapolis . . . again. Searight came home for Homecoming and what a treat! Mercer revels in summer school memories, and Warren sits in a fog over Garland as Keys dashes off to a lab or Frank. Kirkmeyer gazes fondly at her miniature, while Murdock and Whitney keep things humming on Jarvis third. O'Neal and M. J. Clark find plenty of devilment in Alspaugh besides helping Buttle think up novel responses for her unique Phi Delt serenade. Peg Taylor finally fulfilled all requirements for Ivey in her sophomore year. Doreen can be found running for offices and engaging in any number of activities. The pledges, frantically learning their provinces and questions, are Ann Andrews, Mary Bradley, Ada Jane Buford, Sara Clarkson, Joyce Dean, Bobbie Garrison, Mary Jane Gott, Dot Hyland, Betty Jewell, Betty Mixson, Mary Lou Mulligan, Jonny Norman, Virginia Peace, Ginny Suiter, Ethelyn Upshaw, and Julie Zollicoffer.

Those are just a few of the links in the chain of Pi Beta Phi at Duke. Each one is a symbol of the unity in friendship and love for one another.

SIGMA KAPPA

AFTER YOU HAD GRADUATED LAST YEAR, NOT MUCH HAS CHANGED, Jody, in the old chapter. It was a little hard to get used to not seeing some of the old faces around, but as a whole things are the same. The girls change from year to year, but the spirit of Sigma Kappa remains constant.

Herm, in spite of her busy social life, finds time to fill her office as president efficiently; Jane is eternally trying to keep up with her job as chairman of the F.A.C.; Mary Lib is getting quite proficient at giving Pan-Hel. reports in a minimum of time with a maximum of information; Hilda is still bubbling over with her swell ideas; Donna Claire is now Mrs. Allen, and Knight is still knitting, but this time it is for that man back home. You should see Pipper trying frantically to get all those new records for the "Vic" in on time, Jackie trying to keep up with her exciting social life and the California correspondence at once; how smooth Shan looks this year, Yvonne working hard for Duke Players and seeing Alex constantly, and Babelle's frat pin. Blinky has taken up knitting when she can find time to stop talking about why she wants to go to Ala. for a visit. Eunice, still as popular as ever, is very much in evidence about campus this year; Anna has quite a following of attractive its.; Little Thacker insists that she is no longer LITTLE Thacker now that Page is married; besides, that miniature isn't exactly "little." Elmore is still looking for a fourth for bridge, and Pricey, always busy with meetings and weighted down with keys, is as charming and popular as ever. You just can't imagine how enthusiastic Coco gets over all our proposals, the way Bunny pleads for money and still manages to look so smooth, how cute Peggy's Virginia accent is, Tanny's wild tales, and Cam's good disposition. Our four new girls are just about perfect; Pat is always doing something around campus, and always thinking of Gene; Agnes, always beaming, has wonderful ideas to offer; Ginny is always willing to help with anything, even the Triangle, and is as cute as a bug's ear. Eunice looks at that ring and smiles with a far away look in her eye.

We wish that you were here to see our wonderful new pledges; there's "giddy Gilda" whom we always find with Tommy, "The Terror of Town," and Cora Lyn and her measles and Earlyn and her thoughts of Wayne. We are fascinated by the Massachusetts accents of Ann and Helen; and oh yes, we have another of the Lawrence clan with us; this time it's soft-spoken Teeny. Two of our pledges are already pinned-up; there's Mike of the W. A. A. O'Malley's and Ginny who is getting in form for her duties as a house-wife by doing the actives' laundry. Almost anytime you can find Shirley dreaming of those wonderful times at Annapolis while Room-mate Trish, tears home for a "vacation." We enjoy hearing Betty Sue drawl that she's really not related to those two football players. Then we have those two Harper's Bazaar addicts, Homer Dell and Dot Turner, clothes conscious plus, both of them, and they really know their fashions too. Even after Nina is initiated, we still expect to have her ask, "Can't I do something for anybody, please? I need pledge points." We're mighty proud of these brand and grand new pledges, not to mention how fond we are of our vivacious red-haired associate, Lois.

Of course, we miss all our old girls who left last year, but we still see Passmore and Hazel, so we feel better. Then, too, we hear quite often from our two WAVES, Dot and Peggy.

Well, Jody, now you have all the dope on all the girls, and you know that we Sigma Kappas all have that sense of loyalty and sisterhood that lives on from year to year among us in spite of the changing groups of girls. Love, Alpha Psi.

ZETA TAU ALPHA

ALTHOUGH THE FACES WILL BE NEW, AND THE ROOM WILL change through the years, Zeta spirit will still be shining in our eyes, and in our memories will linger the refrain of, "May I go on believing, in this love I'm receiving, from these Zeta Tau girls of my heart":

Our prexy, Dunkie, having a hard time dividing herself between Tom and Zeta so that no one feels slighted . . . And the pledges of the year—all prides of our Zeta hearts—Aria, and her love at first sight helping to keep the section in an uproar . . . Sara Jordan, Ivy grades not hindering her social life . . . sweet suitemates, Betsy and Grace, real jitterbugs extraordinaire . . . Pinkie, our literary light, always hard to find as she dashes from one activity to another . . . songstress Charlotte is well above the average in more than height . . . while cute li'l Bunk has lots of spunk . . . our Georgia peach, Terry, and roommate, Carol, with "those cool and limpid blue eyes" are hard to beat . . . # W.S.A.B.

FOLLOWING ITS INAUGURATION LAST YEAR, THE WAR-TIME SOCIAL ACTIVITIES Board went to work in the fall in an attempt to provide the University Community with a well coordinated and a well balanced social program with the war-time facilities which were at campus disposal. The committee this year was made up of four students, John Hanford, Dick Leuthold, Polly Beaver, and Kathleen Watkins, and Dr. Alan K. Manchester of the Faculty, all of which were appointed by the University Social Committee. These five heads worked in cooperation with a group of twenty-odd students, who were chosen for originality of ideas and social interests, and the heads of the various student orginizations. As a result various novel week-ends were planned and executed, and the Campus enjoyed many and varied dance and date evenings.

At the beginning of the year, the Women's Athletic Association cooperated by sponsoring open house in the Women's gymnasium where varied kinds of entertainment were offered for students and their dates. These open houses were held often throughout the year, were expense free, and proved themselves successful.

Obliging East Campus' good portion of date-hungry coeds, the Board provided a novel "Magie's Drag Night," a date night on which coeds made all the dates, called West for their "drags," paid the expenses, and took the general initiative for the entertainment. The "Drag Night" was a terrific success, and many a slump queen started back to the road to regular Saturday night dates and orchids.

The first annual Freshman-Sophomore Field Day was instigated at the suggestion of the Board and featured a general afternoon of athletic contests between the classes. Highlight of the day was the "push-ball" clash which the Freshmen won. The entire event was sponsored by the Duke Intramural Department, the Freshman Class, and Beta Omega Sigma.

At the start of school, the Campus was faced with the problem of having no campus band to provide dance music for the many and varied Duke dances. However, through the cooperation of the Duke University Union, the W.S.A.B. was able to provide the campus with a dance band, which played for expense-free Ark dances each week and provided campus organizations with a band for their dances at a reasonable price.

All campus organizations worked in close harmony this year with the W.S.A.B., and as a result, the University Community was provided with many entertaining week-ends.

Coat rush—typical scene at dances. All tricks in trade are used to get out early enough before 12:20 dorm curfew.

With the Pan-Hel. and the S.G.A. cooperating to the fullest extent, marvelous informal dances for football week-ends were arranged and presented at minimum cost to the students. The Duke players coordinated their excellent schedule of plays so the important larger dances could be so arranged as to make that week-end a glamorous one, despite the war-time conditions and restrictions.

Duke social program was minus the fanfare of pre-war days; but the spirit was not lacking, and everyone enjoyed himself to the fullest.

Ark dances were huge successess each week-end. Jitterbugs found their paradise and kept the floor rocking at these informal, admission-free hops. Sandals are Ark's managers.

PAN-HELS.

AGAIN THIS YEAR, DUKE DANCES WERE UNDER THE CONTROL AND APPROVAL of the Wartime Social Activities Board, and they followed this committee's standard of low-cost decorations and no "name bands" for the duration. Larger, integrated weekends were planned, and frequent dances with imaginative themes were presented. Characteristics of all the dances seemed to be the atmosphere of informality and gaiety, with genuinely good music and an abundance of stags.

The Woman's Pan-Hellenic dance was the first big semi-formal dance of the social season. It started the social precedent for new war hours for the dances, which have been carried out during the entire year by all other organizations. Decorations featured around the patriotic motif, and the Council and their escorts participated in the traditional Pan-Hel. figure immediately following the intermission.

The football season featured dances sponsored by the Men's Pan-Hellenic Council as entertaining climaxes to the Saturday afternoon football games. The Council took it upon themselves to coöperate with the W.S.A.B. in an effort to provide campus entertainment now that the recreational facilities of the city had become so overcrowded.

The "Hob-Goblin-Hop," which celebrated Hallowe'en and Homecoming, was one of the more outstanding. Because of the curtailment of decorations, only the lighted fraternity seals and pins were used for decorations at the dances. The policy of requiring purchase of defense stamps as a part of the admission fee received the unanimous approval of the student body.

For the first time in the history of the Institution, Duke students spent New Year's Eve on the Duke Campus. In order to provide entertainment, the Men's Pan-Hel. sponsored the Black and White Formal Ball. The attendance was terrific and everyone on campus arrived in body and spirit and sometimes just body. Al Robertson and his Kampus Klubmen furnished the music, introduced a string section to his band, and ushered in another wartime year.

The Council sponsored the last big week-end of the year when it presented the May Day series. The week-end was a big one, for although wartime conditions had taken away much of the glamor of the Duke week-ends, the same old friendly spirit and informality has never left the campus week-ends. Every student enjoyed himself to the fullest, well realizing that this might easily be the last week-end of dances for the duration. On Friday, April 30, the Council presented an informal "Draftee Drag." Saturday, most of the fraternity sections were opened for open houses, and the May Day Formal was presented that evening. Highlight, of course, was the presentation of the May Queen, her Maid of Honor, and the Court. Because of the cut in all expenditures for social activities of the University, as last year, the formal May Day pageant was cancelled. However, the same spirit of honoring a deserving senior girl and her court of thirteen classmates remained, and May Day was a successful one. The Court and the Queen were featured in the form of a figure directly following the intermission. All the girls wore pastel dresses and carried huge bouquets of summer flowers, and the figure was both beautiful and impressive for this important day.

Everyone and his roommate were at the Fall Pan-Hel. Johnson represented W.S.G.A., Barton-Greyhound, Inc., Brown and Moylan just danced.

The social season of the Pan-Hels. was successful. Conforming to wartime standards, the dances sponsored were in strict cooperation with the Wartime Social Activities Board, and they lacked nothing in respect to good music and entertainment. In fact, there were more dances this year than ever before, and the originality of themes certainly made up for any curtailment of decorations. With work and originality, the dances have shown that the Dukes and Duchesses can have a good time "on a shoestring."

Common at intermission are the fraternity singing groups which get together to drown out their neighbors. SAE's and dates are caught straining the vocals . . . Pan-Hel.-sponsored and Dean-Baldwin-named "Flu-Cured-Frolic" was held last May. Everyone arrived strictly informal, sans coats, ties, stockings, and sometimes shoes. Spirits were high and unrationed. Lack of benches daunted no one; everyone used the floor.

COED BALLS

MANY A DUKE COED HAS DRIED-UP CORSAGES HANGING ON HER MIRROR OR pressed in a book as mementos of Duke's bi-annual Coed Balls. These formal dances, under the sponsorship of the Social Standards Committee, are among the major social events of the fall and spring seasons. Following the criterion of the War time Social Activities Board, the decorations this year were reduced to a minimum, but there was no lack of originality, despite the cooperation of the East Campus Rooming Office, and of the excellent dance music.

The night before Thanksgiving, the Social Standards Committee were hostesses at the fall Coed Ball, of which Georgia Rauschenberg was the chairman. Al Robertson and his Kampus Klubmen supplied the music for the occasion. The climax of the evening came just before intermission when lovely freshman Mary Bradley, chosen from twenty-one Duke girls by Walter Pidgeon, was presented by CHANTICLEER Editor Dick Leuthold as the 1943 CHANTICLEER Beauty Queen. She made her appearance in a silver frame on a special velvet-covered platform. Members of the Social Standards Committee in white evening dresses were presented with their escorts from a dais at one end of the gym. The figure was led by Social Standards Chairman Polly Beaver. Entering through an arch of flowers against a background of silver drapes, Social Standards members carried large bouquets of chrysanthemums.

theme of spring flowers, this dance was under the direction of Dottie Watkins, new Committee Chairman for next year; but each individual member of the Committee did her part to make the dance a success. Traditional presentation of the May Queen highlighted the evening when senior Nancy Wrenn was presented to the University Community. Following intermission, members of the Social Standards Committee and their escorts participated in the traditional figure. Each girl was presented with a bouquet of spring flowers, which she carried in the figure. The dance following the figure and the presentation of the Social Standards Committee was for the committee and their escorts only. Under a false ceiling of pastel streamers stemming from a center of flowers the Dukes and Duchesses danced to the music of Sammy Fletcher and the Duke Ambassadors. The army, as well, danced to the Ambassadors, for several officers from the finance school accepted complimentary bids.

S.G.A. DANCES

SGA's Sweater-Skirt Stomp featured informality, "Love Meter," and a Campus Sweater Girl contest. After third test, the "Love Meter" burned out.

THE FIRST S.G.A. DANCE OF THE YEAR WAS THE SWEATER-SKIRT STOMP HELD Saturday, November 7, in the Women's Gym with music from Al Robertson and his Kampus Klubmen. Rumors were so rife as to the lusty entertainment to be offered at this "Informal Informal" that Prexy "Halo-Happy" Jones found it necessary to state in the Chronicle that mass post office and Spin-the-Coed games were not being planned. The gym was decorated with over a hundred sweaters cut from newspapers with each bearing a significant shape and name of some campus personality. During the first half of the Stomp, judges, with critical eye and measuring tape, put paper debris on the ten candidates for Sweater Girl. During intermission these ten girls were presented to the multitude and a complicated bit of machinery set up before the band stand which tested sex appeal. After the third test, the gadget broke down.

The spring dance evolved as the Ration Romp, with tickets containing nine ration coupons that entitled patrons not only admission, but also to call for dates, late-dates, be a wolf, and to take a date up into the balcony. Beyond that it offered him no protection.

The gym was decorated in the ration motif. A layer of price tags over the dancers' heads constituted the "price ceiling." There were comforting signs to reassure the revelers that "There's no Ceiling on that Old Feeling," "No Ration on Passion," "No Girdles, No Gas, Just You, and Your Lass."

The last dance held was the Inaugural Ball, complimenting the newly elected office holders in campus-wide elections. Although its social sponsorship is but a minor activity of the Student Government, it has attained a reputation for presenting truly enjoyable frolics.

NAVY BALL

PERHAPS THE MOST COLORFUL SOCIAL EVENT OF THE ENTIRE YEAR WAS THE Navy Ball, which was sponsored by the Duke Naval Unit. Presented in the East Campus gym on December eleventh, the dance was the second annual affair of its kind. It was attended by approximately 800 cadets and guests.

Highlight of the Ball was the selection and crowning of the Navy Queen. Voting was confined to the members of the battalion. The winner of the title was not known until presented at the Ball.

Another feature of the Ball was the Grand March. Led by Battalion Commander Sam Gantt and his sponsor, Miss Shirley Decker, the march proceeded around the gymnasium and under an archway of sabers held aloft by a detail of cadets. At the conclusion of the promenade, Captain A. T. Clay, Commandant of the Unit, placed the crown of the Navy Queen on Miss Dottie Groome. With Captain and Mrs. Clay were Lt. Commander and Mrs. Pierson, Lt. Commander and Mrs. Seagroves, and Lt. and Mrs. Stubbs.

FOOTBALL

WITH THE WINDS OF MARCH, THE DUKE FOOTBALL FORCES received their first realization of the changes that the demands of war were going to make before they were to hang up their jerseys. Hardly had the Rose-Bowling Oregon State Beavers returned to Cornwallis before head coach and athletic director Wallace Wade accepted a major's commission in the Army. But the Blue Devils had a competent man to take over where the tall, gaunt Wade left off. A veteran of the varsity staff, Eddie Cameron began his seventeenth year at Duke by filling in as head coach and acting-athletic director. Realizing that All-American Steve Lach would not be on hand when the opening game rolled around, Cameron pulled Captain Jim Smith and senior letterman Tommy Burns out of the line to team them up with shifty Tom Davis and pile-driving Leo Long in the backfield. In off season drills, the converted backfield functioned like a well-oiled machine behind a line that had such Duke favorites as Bob Gantt, Ralph Morgan, Harry Troxell, and Bob Nanni in the starting spots.

Halfback Bobby Rute cuts sharply to avoid a Pre-flight lineman as Duke goes down fighting before a favored Georgia Navy team 26-12.

Returning early in September, the Blue Devils speedily whipped the new combination into shape and by the time the opening game with Davidson rolled around, the Cameron-coached crew was able to hang a smarting 21-0 shutout on the Wildcats in Winston-Salem's Bowman Gray Stadium. Playing in weather more appropriate to a mud battle than to football, the Blue Devils mustered enough power to slosh their way to three touchdowns.

Moving to Grove Stadium at Wake Forest the next Saturday to face the all-too Demon Deacons, the Dukes fell before the Deac's powerful attack and fast charging line, 20-7, for their first loss to Wake Forest since 1926. Two rapid touchdowns in the first quarter set the Devils back in a hole from which they were never able to dig their way out. Coming back strong in the second half, Long plunged over from the two-yard line to score the Blue and White's lone tally. With Captain Jim Smith put out of action for some weeks in the battle, it was up to Cameron to make some rapid-fire changes in the line-up in order to patch up the tissue-paper line and to make the best use of the sophomore satellites, Loop-

Moving Tom Burns back to his old guard post and inserting Carver and Luper into the starting line-up, the Blue Devil's line changed into a wall of steel when they returned home for their first battle on the local turf. But even the revamping could not stop the powerhouse attack of the Georgia Naval Pre-flight Skycrackers. Boasting a line-up studded with collegiate and professional stars, the Skycrackers had to resort to the air to topple the Dukes, 26-12. Despite an all night ride in day coaches from Washington to Buffalo and a twenty-four hour lay-over in flood infested Virginia, the Devils displayed a mighty force the following weekend as they ran roughshod over a previously unbeaten Colgate eleven, 34-0. With Benny Cittadino, Jim Wolfe, Herman Smith, Bud Luper, and Moff Storer all running wild for touchdowns, the Dukes came back into national grid prominence as they blasted the Red Raiders from the Eastern football pinnacle and kept their series record with the Kerrman unblemished.

as many weeks, the Cameron-coached eleven roared to a 28-0 shutout over Pitt's Panthers before returning home to lose a colorful Homecoming Day tilt to Georgia Tech's undefeated Yellow Jackets, 26-7. To break the jinx of the Georgia Peaches and Duke Stadium, the Blue and White held a riotous "T" party the following Saturday with the famed Clark Shaughnessy's Maryland Terps as the guests of honor. Bob Gantt and Tom Davis led the touchdown parade with twelve points apiece as the Dukes completely stymied the fledgeling "T" formation to the tune of a 42-0 whitewashing.

Then came the week of weeks when Duke faced Carolina. Travelling the long twelve miles to Chapel Hill for the classic clash with the Tar Heels, the Dukes came home with their only tie of the season—a 13-13 deadlock. Hitting the winning ways once more the next Saturday, the Dukes wound up their home schedule with a 47-0 rout of the Wolfpack from North Carolina State as Tom Davis romped across the goal four times to lead the scoring procession.

For the season's finale, the Dukes headed south to Jacksonville, Florida, to tangle with the Naval Air Station which featured an all-time Duke great, George McAfee, in the spearhead of their attack. But Georgeous George proved a little too much for his old colleagues as the Skymen held the Devils to their only scoreless tilt, 13-0. Winding up the campaign with a total of five wins and tie against four losses, the Blue Devils placed men on several honorary elevens. With Bob Gantt, Tom Davis, and Tom Burns leading the way on the All-Southern, other Dukes were awarded posts on numerous other mythical gridiron powerhouses.

Although Duke, as many other collegiate elevens in the nation, was effected by the draft, Coach Cameron put a creditable squad on the gridiron which certainly disappointed no Duke fan. From start to finish, the entire schedule was packed full of excitement, up-sets, and good football. The year was not the glamorous one of years past with floats, visiting bands, and a jam-packed stadium for every game, but the student pep-rallies and the campus spirit was surely not secondary to any previous year. We had a good year, and the campus salutes the hard-hitting, fast-moving Iron Dukes which kept our University in the limelight.

FRESHMAN FOOTBALL

When the freshman football team trotted off the hardened turf of Duke Stadium last fall, following its crushing 41-6 triumph over the Chapel Hill Pre-Flight B squad, many who were in the stands at the time avowed unhesitatingly that the 1942 Blue Imps were one of the finest yearling football outfits ever seen at Duke. The record established by Coach Herschel Caldwell's charges speaks for itself, as the freshmen won three out of their four games.

Wake Forest's freshmen defeated the Blue and White yearlings in their first encounter, 13-6, as lack of a coordinated attack was very much in evidence. Howard Hartley registered the Duke touchdown, climaxing the only scoring drive his team could sustain. Bill Davis, third of his family to wear the Blue, stood out with his aggressive line play, along with Mac Duncan.

The Duke freshmen completely vindicated their previous performance as they ran roughshod over N. C. State, 44-7, in their next game. Wing-back Buddy Mulligan sparked the victor's offensive with two dazzling touchdown runs, each more than fifty yards in length, each on the same play, and each four minutes apart.

As the time for the Carolina game rolled around, it became apparent that the clash would not only be a continuance of the ancient rivalry between the two schools, but that it would probably decide the State championship. Going into the game as favorites, Carolina lost little time in punching over a quick touchdown, conversion, and safety to make the score, 9-0. However, what transpired thereafter is comparable to the noted blitzkrieg, for when the final whistle blew, the Imps were out in front and going away, 26-9. In what proved to be its final game, the Duke freshman eleven disposed of a Chapel Hill Pre-flight team in handy fashion, 41-6. It will be some time before Duke football followers see another freshman team like this year's squad, at this writing sixteen of them are now in the armed services, and almost all will be in the near future.

This a year to long remember.

BASKETBALL

Jerry Gerard, head coach of the 1943 basketball squad which won all but one of its conference games during the regular season.

ATTEMPTING TO OUTDO THE 1942 RECORD OF TWENTY-TWO GAMES won and only two lost proved to be a little too much for this year's Blue Devil basketball team, which lost the services of five of last year's squad. The 1943 team came close, though. They won eighteen games while losing only five. Perhaps the greatest change took place in the coaching department. Eddie Cameron, Duke's cage mentor since 1929, was relieved by Gerry Gerard this year. Gerard, in his ninth year as a member of the Duke athletic department, also has become known as a ranking football, basketball, and track official and a top-notch sports announcer. For most of the year Gerard used Gordon Carver and Bubber Seward at forwards, Bob Gantt at center, and Cedric and Garland Loftis at guards. Jack Coleman, sensational freshman from Kentucky, became the first yearling to see action on the Duke courts. These men were the nucleus of a team that led the Southern Conference during the regular season only to lose the tournament to George Washington in the final round.

SEASON 1942-1943

Gantt eludes Mock of State and hooks one in for Duke, as Seward stands poised under the basket, ready for a rebound shot.

The team got off to a slow start. First on the schedule was the North Carolina Pre-Flight outfit. With several former college stars on the Pre-Flight roster the Gerard-coached team lost its first game of the season, 46-41, in Duke's Indoor Stadium. The Pre-Flight boys proved too speedy and accurate for the Blue Devil quintet. Big Bob Gantt led the Duke scoring with seven field goals. Cedric Loftis accounted for six baskets.

Two days later Coach Gerard's cagemen lost to Tennessee's dribbling Vols, 51-33, in a game played at Knoxville. Duke was in the lead only once, with Cedric Loftis dropping in a goal to give the Blue Devils a 4-3 edge in the opening minutes. From then on Tennessee took over, posting a 25 to 14 half-time lead. Seward and Cedric Loftis accounted for 23 points between them to lead the Blue Devil scoring.

In a practice game the Blue Devils came out of their brief slump with a convincing 62-47 win over the Fort Bragg Reception Center on the Duke court. Facing Bones McKinney for the first time since he entered the Army, the Duke courtsters had too much height, accuracy, and all-around ability for the soldiers. Seward and Cedric Loftis again proved to be the high scorers—each scoring 15 points. Bob Gantt was close behind with seven baskets.

In perhaps one of the most exciting games of the season, the Duke dribblers managed to eke out a hair-raising 45-44 victory over Temple's Owls in Philadelphia's Convention Hall. The Blue Devils held a 25-23 lead at half-time and widened the gap during the second round until Temple staged a rally in the last four minutes of play with two long shots. Again, Seward and Cedric Loftis were the big guns for the boys in Blue, the former registering thirteen markers and the latter fifteen.

Gordon Carver turned in two field goals and a free throw in the last minute and a half to give the Blue Devils a 51-48 win over the North Carolina Pre-Flight cagers in a return game at Chapel Hill. Carver paced Duke's attack with thirteen points, one tally more than Bob Gantt, and Bubber Seward. The game was a nip-and-tuck affair throughout with the score tied at 26-all at half time.

Traveling to Winston-Salem, the Blue Devils, shoving out on two scoring sprees in the second half, defeated a scrappy Davidson college five, 60-50. The Wildcats had a one-man team, Tommy Peters, who scored an amazing total of 29 points. Glenn Stough, reserve center playing in place of the injured Bob Gantt, came through with fifteen points. The Devils returned to their home court to ring up a close 54-43 decision over the V. M. I. Keydets. It was their second consecutive Southern Conference win. Art McGrane and Cedric Loftis paced the Duke attack with fourteen markers apiece.

In a free scoring game the Blue Devils bumped into some real opposition and lost to George Washington, 66-53. Gantt, his ankle still in a cast, watched the game from the bench. Carver and Cedric Loftis, with 19 and 14 points respectively, shared the scoring honors for the Devils. With six minutes remaining, Seward shot a field goal to cut the lead of the visitors to 51-50. But the Colonials turned on the steam to draw away. The Devils lost its second consecutive game to a strong Norfolk Naval Training Station, 60-53. Carver and Loftis again led the local scoring attack, but they could not match the star-studded service club.

One of the highest scoring games of the season came next, as Coach Gerard's courtsters regained their winning ways by outscoring V. P. I., 78-70. It was the first game of the season for Garland Loftis and the first contest in several for Bob Gantt, who has been on the sidelines with an injured foot. Cedric Loftis chalked up 23 points in the game. In another free-scoring affair the Blue Devils whipped Wake Forest, 63-41, with Cedric Loftis again turning in a one-man offensive show—this time 18 points. In a double-header in the Indoor stadium, the first of its kind in this section of the country, the Devils scored a convincing 60-47 win over the Red Terrors from North Carolina State. Carver and Gantt led the Duke scoring.

The next three games saw the Devils score easy wins over N. C. Pre-Flight Officers, 59-33, North Carolina's Tar Heels, 51-39, and Washington and Lee, 71-44. In a featured intersectional game in the Indoor stadium the Devils upset a favored Duquesne five, 55-41, with Seward scoring 15 points. The Gerard-coached club next eked out a 46-43 win over Maryland at College Park. A free throw cost the following game—Pennsylvania nipping the Devils, 49-48, at the Palestra in Philadelphia. In the next three games the Blue Devils rolled up convincing victories, over Wake Forest by 59-40, over N. C. State, 53-32, and over Navy at Annapolis, 58-48. The Devils then got revenge from a previous licking by nipping George Washington, 64-61, at Washington—the Devils forging into the Conference lead. The Devils completed their regular season by repeating over their arch rivals, the Heels from Carolina, by a score of 43-24.

Duke won its first-round game in the tournament at Raleigh by licking V. M. I., 57-41. The Devils beat The Citadel in the second round, 56-37, but lost the championship to George Washington, 55-40, in the finals. Gantt, Seward, and Cedric Loftis made the All-tournament first team.

Coach Gerard led his tip-top team through a tough season, and the results were good. Once again Duke shone brightly on the basketball court.

Bubber Seward, Cedric Loftis, and Bob Gantt, Duke's three juniors who were awarded places on the All-Southern Tournament first team.

FRESHMAN BASKETBALL

BEGINNING THE 1942-43 SEASON WITH A SENSATIONAL BUNCH OF good pre-college basketball players, Coach Hershell Caldwell's Blue Imps jumped off to, what looked like, a very successful year. By the middle of the season, however, the draft, spring football, and graduation to the varsity of three outstanding performers knocked the foundations from Coach Caldwell's high-scoring aggregation. This was the first year in which freshman basketballers were considered eligible for varsity participation, and the team was seriously handicapped by the loss of Jack Coleman, Kenny Turner, and Doug Ausbon.

Even with all the difficulties that seemed to present themselves during the season, the Blue Imps raked up seven straight wins before the Tar Heel Babies could manage to stop the streak with a 45 to 42 verdict. Working with the Imps for only the first six games, Turner accumulated a score tally of 65 points, and Jack Coleman ranked second with 55 points.

After the varsity had taken their pick of the freshman group, Miller and Hartley were lost to spring football, and Yetter, Lewis, Fleming, Deibler and Stoebe were called by the draft. With these fellows missing from the line-up, Coach Caldwell's Imps went through the remainder of the schedule with only a sprinkling of success. The Imps split series with the State Frosh, Durham High School, lost three tilts with the Carolina Tar Babies, and beat the 312 Ordnance Champions of Camp Butner in two games. In the latter half of the season, the outstanding performers, who sparked the small team when they went onto the court, were Buddy Lauffer, Captain Clarke Jones, "Spider" Clark, Ben Collins, Carl Hounsell, Ted Thoniades, Turner Bright, and Bob Stone. Max Ferree was the manager for the season, and Hal Gordon worked as the assistant manager.

TRACK

OPENING UP THE ABBREVIATED 1942 CAMPAIGN IN THE THIRteenth annual running of the Southern conference indoor meet the Blue Devil track artists of Coach Bob Chambers grabbed second place honors in the last-for-the-duration meeting of the Chapel Hill classic. Although big Steve Lach set a new mark of 47 feet, 6½ inches in the shot put and Werner Brown came through with a record-breaking 50.9 time in the 440, the Dukes were handicapped by the lack of men to take the third and fourth place honors. Less than a week later Windy Lockwood, Hank Profenius, Brown, and Lach were invited to participate in Washington's famed Catholic university games. Hitting the outdoor cinders early in April, the Dukes again made the twelve mile jaunt to the Hill for the first annual running of the Carolina relays. Strictly an individual affair with team scoring, the Dukes came home with four firsts and a handful of incidental places. The Devils made a clean sweep of the javelin as Lach garnered a first, Len Palumbo a second, and Bob Gantt a third. In the mile Lockwood nosed out Profenius to add another one-two placing to the Duke honors. In their only home dual start of the season, the Dukes dropped a close affair to Carolina, 66-60, in a meet that was not decided until the last event. The Devils piled up the majority of their points by taking nine of the fourteen first places. The following weekend Chambers sent his seven leading point getters to Philadelphia's Franklin field for the Penn Relays to defend the quarter-mile relay crown copped the year before and to rake in points in individual track and field events. The remainder of the squad moved to Chapel Hill, where weakened by the loss of the top men, the thinly-clads had to content themselves with third place in the Carolina's A.A.U. meet. The Dukes wound up their dual meet season by coming home with one win and one loss from two invasions of the Maryland cinderpaths. Taking the University's Old Liners into camp, 69-57, in the first meet, the Dukes moved over to Annapolis to drop an 85.5-40.5 decision to the Middies of the Naval academy. Winding up their campaign, the Devils returned to Duke stadium for the annual Southern conference tournament. The Chambers-coached crew scored 61.5 points to capture second place honors, 3.5 markers behind Carolina's winning total.

Coach Bob Chambers faced a hectic season this year when he called forth his team to find only three lettermen out for the sport. However, with Cap-

Shaping up his team, the coach secured and placed Tieche and Witzell under training for the high hurdles, and Storer joined in with the crew to start with Tieche in the 220 lows.

In the dashes freshman McClelland and Storer were trained as starters, with Ambrose coming through as an aid for the 220. Carl Seman was the number one middle distance man, backed by Ambrose and Marshall in the quarter and by Moss and McLaughlin in the half mile. Palmer, Graham, Potter, and Morton were the milers and the two-milers.

In the field events Duke had many untested men for the most part. Gantt threw the javelin, shot, and discus, backed up by Irwin and Witzel, while Chuck Burrows specialized on the javelin, Irwin, Gilbert, and Murdaugh competed in the broad jump, with Gilbert, Tieche, and McClelland coming in on the high jump. Ken McCormick did an excellent job on the pole vault.

At the start, the season looked a bit gloomy, but the squad was a good one, and their performance proved itself a creditable one.

CHEER LEADERS

BEYOND THE RECORD OF PAST YEAR DUKE SPIRIT, THIS YEAR student spirit rose to new heights under the inspired leadership of head cheerleader Steve Rusk and his able crew of assistants. Student spirit was more enthusiastic than ever before despite the hot and cold record of the Duke team.

Each pre-game pep rally this year was, as far as possible, different from the others. For instance, the first major rally of the year featured the introduction of the team to the student body. The next saw the presentation of Duke's new coed cheerleaders by campus humorist Harvey Bullock. The giant Homecoming rally held before the Georgia Tech game reached a new high in student support as hundreds of students went first to Page Auditorium to see the Freshmen put on a series of short skits, then marched to East Campus in a mass torch parade that rivalled the Rose Bowl parades of yesteryear.

Climax of the season was, as always, the huge bonfire and pep rally before the game of games with Carolina. This year the cheer leaders contrived to add new effects to the traditional bonfire. With the aid of an interested administration whose ideas and cooperation helped the cheer leaders all during the year, the pep rally was one of the most successful in years.

All credit for this show of spirit is due to the cheerleading crew headed by Steve Rusk. Cheer leader Bus Miller, now in the Coast Guard, and coed Cheer Leader Vivian Driver failed to return this year. The squad therefore was made up of Rusk and Ted Holmes, seniors; junior Eddie Moppert; and sophomores Dick Sanborn and Joe DiMona. Junior Toni Salley returned this year to act as a nucleus for the coed portion of the cheer-leading squad. Out of a vast number of candidates, Ann Fouch and Merthel Greenwell were chosen to round out the staff of perfection Duke cheer leaders.

BASE

BASEBALL AT DUKE SAW THE RISE OF ANOTHER GREAT TEAM under the tutelage of Coach Jack Coombs during the 1942 season. The Coombsmen ran up a string of eight consecutive wins before being downed. At the completion of the campaign the Blue Devils won fourteen while losing only six contests.

The Coombsmen started off by walloping the University of South Carolina's Gamecocks in two games, 10-0 and 9-4, at Columbia. Tom Burns, sensational third sacker, got seven hits in the two-game series. Continuing on their trip Southward, the Devils beat Clemson in a two-game series, 5-2 and 14-3. The latter game saw four Duke home runs—one by Rowland Sailer, one by Grady Stott, and two by George Byam. The Southern trip concluded when Duke beat Furman, 19-13, in a slugfest at Greenville, S. C. Byam and Stott hit for the circuit.

Returning to their home grounds for their sixth game, the Coombsmen, with Cy Simonds, Harry Underwood, and Bill McCahan dividing the pitching chores, beat Cornell, 7-3, with the visiting Ithicans getting but five scattered hits. The Devils made it eight straight by winning an Easter Monday doubleheader from Maryland, 8-5 and 5-3, at Coombs Park. McCahan went the route for the Devils in the first game, in which he allowed but seven scattered hits. Simonds went all the way in the nightcap, but was touched for eleven hits.

The Devils' first loss came at the hands of a surprisingly strong V. P. I. squad, 10-6. The heretofore slugging Coombsmen could only get nine bingles off the Gobblers' pitcher. Bill McCahan turned in an artistic 6-hit pitching job to gain his fourth victory of the season when the Devils trampled the South Carolina Gamecocks, 13-0, in Coombs Park. McCahan set down eleven opposing batters on strikes. Bobby Rute hit a home run in the eighth inning.

Traveling to Davidson, the Duke batters rallied for three runs in the eighth inning to gain a 9-3 victory over the Wildcats. It was the Blue Devils' ninth victory in the Southern Conference. Byam led the Duke attack with three hits, a double and two singles. In their next game the Coombsmen returned to their home grounds to nip Wake Forest, 6-4, in a game that saw the home forces score four big runs in the eighth frame. In another nip-and-tuck struggle Duke beat N. C. State, 5-4, with McCahan extending his winning streak to six games. Sailer, Stott, and Byam led the hitters in the game.

The Devils were nipped by Wake Forest, 9-8, in the next game. Although the Coombsmen scored four runs in the ninth inning, they fell one marker short of tying the game. The defeat knocked Duke off the top of the Southern Conference race. Captain Byam's three home runs and a single led the way for a Devil victory over Davidson, 10-3, in Coombs Park. record for individual batting performances in the Blue Devil ball yard. He batted in no less than six runs. Harry Palmer went the route for Duke.

Tom Davis sent a home run over the leftfield fence in the eighth inning to give the Blue Devils a 3-2 victory over N. C. State at Raleigh. The circuit clout broke a 2-2 tie and enabled the Blue Devils to move into first place in the Conference. In a free-scoring game the Hanes Knitters nipped the Devils, 13-10, at Winston-Salem. For the fifth time in his three-year college career and for the first time in the 1942 season, defeat came to Bill McCahan, right-handed pitching ace for Duke, when Wake Forest outscored the Coombsmen, 6-2. Grady Stott hit for the circuit for one of Duke's two runs.

The Devils lost their last two games of the season, both to the University of North Carolina. The Heels nipped the Devils in the first game, 5-4 at Greensboro, with McCahan allowing only nine hits while losing. The second game of the series saw Carolina again nip the Coombsmen, 3-2, with Red Benton outpitching McCahan. The final game with Carolina at Coombs Park was called at the end of the third inning because of rain.

The batter tries to slap one out for a hit as the pitcher lets go with a fast ball and the infield and outfield snap into position.

FRESHMAN BASEBALL

WINNING SIX AND LOSING SEVEN IN A THIRTEEN-GAME SCHEDULE, the Duke freshman baseball team of 1942 had a fair season. The Blue Imps opened the season at Coombs Park by licking the Durham High School Bulldogs, 8-5. Stevens and Damnar divided the pitching for the Imps, with Yautz behind the plate. A week later the freshman repeated with another win over the Durham club, 11-7. Stephan, Dameron, and Parry divided the pitching for the Caldwell-coached club. The freshman, in their third game of the season, traveled to Louisburg to whitewash Louisburg Junior College, 27-0.

A walk to first base by John Little, with two men out and the bases loaded in the last half of the 10th inning, forced in Ed Stephan with the winning run to give the Duke freshmen an 8 to 7 victory over Greensboro High School at Coombs Park. Stephan, a strong right-hander with a blazing fast ball, blanked the visitors with three safeties in the final four innings to receive credit for the victory. Traveling to Raleigh, the Imps lost to State, 4-3, with the Techlets scoring their winning run in the last half of the eighth.

Piling up a 7-0 lead in the first five innings, the 134th Medical Regiment of Fort Bragg coasted to a 7-4 win over the Duke freshman. Capitalizing on five Blue Imp errors, the Oak Ridge Military Institute overcame a four-run lead to down the Duke freshmen, 8-5, in the Imps' next game. Ed Stephan, Duke's starting pitcher, was charged with the loss. North Carolina romped over the Imps in their next game, 11-4, at Coombs Park. The home forces were limited to four measly hits. The Imps started winning again when Bob Parry's second hit of the ball game, a line single to centerfield, scored Bud Luper from second base and gave the Caldwell-coached outfit a 6-5 victory over Charlotte Central High School in a nip-and-tuck battle.

State's ten hits blasted the Imps in their next game, 10-2. The Blue Imps were able to gather but six scattered hits. The Imps mixed 15 base hits with 16 bases on balls to tally in every inning to smother Louisburg Junior College, 27-1, in the 11th game of their season. North Carolina defeated the Imps at Chapel Hill, 10-8, in a hard-fought decision. The freshmen closed their season by dropping a close 9-8 contest to Oak Ridge Military Academy in a tough game.

GOLF

WITH FIVE WINS AND ONE TIE, THE DUKE LINKSTERS CLOSED THE 1942 golf season by capturing the Southern Conference title for the eighth consecutive time. In the Southern Intercollegiates the Blue Devils placed second to L.S.U., being nosed out by one point (597-598).

Duke opened the season at Hope Valley by trouncing the Georgetown quartet, 22-5. Next to succumb to the Blue Devils was Pennsylvania by the score of 24-3, followed by Carolina who also fell, 16-11.

In the Southern Intercollegiates, Bill Goldthorp was runner-up for the medal, but Grover Poole, proving his golfing ability, waled off with individual honors. Returning to their home links, the Blue Devils scored another overwhelming victory over the Tarheels from Carolina by trouncing them, 21-6. Taking Davidson in stride, the varsity beat the Wildcats, 11-7. The linksters then moved to Winston-Salem, playing Washington and Lee to a 9-9 tie.

In concluding the 1942 Intercollegiate golf season, Duke's Blue Devils led a fast field in the Southern Conference Championship. Grover Poole was again the spearhead for Duke's varsity. Pacing his team from start to finish, he succeeded in retaining individual honors for the second consecutive year, and ended his college career with an undefeated record.

In the past ten years, Duke's varsity golf team has turned out such "golfing greats" as Skip Alexander, Bob Brownell, Bill Goldthorp, and Grover Poole, leaving us a fine record to look back on in this first year of inactivity on the golf links. May the future be as generous as the past.

TENNIS TEAM, 1942

CONCLUDING 1942 SUCCESSFUL SEASON UNDER THE DIRECTION OF COACH Harry Fogelman, the Blue Devil netmen compiled a record of eleven victories in fourteen matches.

The team opened their season with two matches on the home courts against Elon and N. C. State, and the Devils had little trouble in disposing of them, 6-1 and 9-0. Exhibiting great strength in the top spots, Kalamazoo eked out a 5-4 win. In the four home engagements that followed, the team resumed their victorious course, turning back St. Johns College of New York, 6-3. Virginia provided little opposition, as they bowed, 9-0. An 8-1 defeat of William and Mary followed, as the Devils began to hit their stride. The competent court crew from The Citadel also suffered defeat, 5-4, but evidenced doubles superiority, sweeping all three of the doubles matches. Weakened by the temporary loss of Captain Bob Wilson and veteran Ray Nasher, the Devils traveled to Raleigh to repeat an early season win over N. C. State, this time, 6-3. In the traditional Carolina match, the Tar Heels once again proved their court superiority, and turned in an 8-1 victory over the Duke netmen.

The Northern invasion began disastrously for the Duke outfit, for they suffered their third defeat of the year to the Midshipment of the Naval Academy. The match with Maryland was one of the most unusual ever played by the Duke boys; because of weather and court conditions, some of the matches were played in Washington, D. C., and the remainder at College Park, Md. By late afternoon, the matches were tied at 4-all, with Ray Nasher waiting to play his singles match. After losing the first set, Nasher came back to defeat his opponent, and give Duke the match, 5-4. Rounding out their trip, the Southerners overcame Georgetown, 7-2, and Roanoke Country Club by the same score. The defeat of Guilford on the home courts, 7-0, completed the 1942 tennis season for the Duke netmen.

Coaching duties are now in the able hands of Coach Bob Cox, and returning from the 1942 team are Ray Nasher, Captain, and Fred Bynum, with Dick Paige, Hal Landesberg, George Himadi, Emory Green, and John Keye leading a promising group of players. The team was managed this year by Jerry Miller.

WRESTLING

LED BY COACH POTTER THIS YEAR'S WRESTLING TEAM DID NOT HAVE THE results it had expected because of losses due to armed forces and injuries. Nevertheless, the team enjoyed one of the best seasons in the past few years. The competition offered by the six teams on the schedule was probably the best to be found in the South.

Captain Weddie Huffman took his second Southern Conference crown in three years in the 175 pound class as the climax to an undefeated season in conference competition. Huffman is one of the best wrestlers Duke has ever turned out and lost only two matches while on the varsity squad—one in the finals of the Southern Conference Tournament in 1942 and the other to the Carolina Pre-Flight School champion. In the second match with the Pre-Flight School, however, Huffman defeated this opponent by a fall.

The first match of the 1943 season was a 14-14 deadlock with V. P. I. Haines fought one of the best matches of the season and won by a decision. Phelps, sensational freshman 145 pounder, won by a fall, and Huffman and Stroupe furnished the other points for Duke. The next dual match was with the 1942 conference champions of North Carolina in Chapel Hill. Huffman was the only Duke wrestler to win his match, but all the fights were well fought and only one was lost by a fall.

In the following matches, the Duke wrestlers took on the Carolina Pre-Flight School twice. The Pre-Flight matmen boasted some of the best known names in intercollegiate wrestling including one former Duke man. Smith and Richardson were the only Duke winners in the first match. In the second meeting of the two teams, Duke put on a good show with Huffman, Gulledge, and Beamer getting the points. However Duke lost the match 11-21.

The wrestlers traveled to Lexington for dual meets with W. and L. and V. M. I. on February 13. The first of these two meets was the most disastrous of the year for the Devils as they came out on the short end of a 33-3 score. Huffman was the only winner. Against W. and L. the matmen fought probably their best match of the year with a weakened squad. Beamer, Smart, and Huffman won their matches and the other members of the squad all fought well. The last dual meet of the season was with North Carolina State. The Devils lost this 19-11 with Phelps, Huffman, and Richardson winning.

Duke entered five men in the annual Southern Conference Tournament which was held this year in Waynesboro, Va. This team placed fifth in conference competition. The five men were Smart, Huffman, Phelps, Scott, and Stroupe. Huffman won the 175 pound title after being seeded number one in that weight. Stroupe was runner-up in the 121 pound class while Smart and Phelps placed fourth in the 128 and 145 pound classes respectively. The team fought hard and clean; the performance was creditable to Duke.

SWIMMING

ALTHOUGH THERE WAS A LOSS OF SEVERAL OF LAST YEAR'S OUTSTANDING men by graduation and of still more swimmers to the armed forces, this year's squad turned in a good performance, winning four out of seven dual meets and placing third in the Southern Conference Meet.

Duke opened the season against V. P. I. in the home pool. Weakened by a lack of divers, the team had to come from behind to win, 40-35. Following up the opening dual meet, the swimmers placed second in the Carolinas A.A.U. meet behind the University of North Carolina.

Hitting their mid-season stride, the team journeyed to Atlanta to meet Emory and Georgia Tech. After swamping Emory, 49-26, the tankmen lost to Tech., 50-25. Returning to Durham, they defeated V. M. I. in a close meet, 42-33, and followed this up with a 47-28 win over North Carolina State. In this meet, Captain Bill Marshall set a new pool record for the 50 yard free-style, doing the distance in 24.5 seconds. In their last dual meet before the Conference championships, the Duke team met their arch-rivals, North Carolina, but the powerful Blue Dolphins sank the Devils by a 56-19 score.

With Carolina already crowned Conference champs, Duke went to Lexington, Virginia for the Southern Conference meet. Due to recent losses and sickness the squad was not in top shape but managed to take third place, being nosed out of second by V. M. I. by a one-point margin.

Closing the season, the Duke squad met the Georgia Tech team in the home pool in a return meet. Fighting hard, but again handicapped by the inadequacy of its diving department, the Duke squad succumbed, 39-36.

The outstanding feature of the 1943 swimming team was the large number of competent freshmen who participated for Duke. Bill Alexander consistently took first place honors in the 440, Ken Saturday and Fred Hennighausen battled it out for the top spot in the breaststroke, and Bill Miller starred in the backstroke event. However, credit should also be given to Captain Bill Marshall and other dependable upperclassmen who carried the team along by virtue of their experience and hard work.

SOCCER

WITH THEIR SCHEDULE WHITTLED TO BUT THREE GAMES, COACH JERRY Gerard's soccer squad experineced their first wartime campaign last fall. Transportation difficulties made necessary the sharp reduction in the number of contests. The schedule was an "all-Navy" in nature. Vastly different from normal times, it consisted of two engagements with the Chapel Hill Naval Pre-Flight booters and one with the U. S. Naval Academy team.

Led by Captain Frank Bond, the entire squad of twenty-six men journeyed to nearby Chapel Hill to open their season against the Pre-Flighters. Playing on an extremely muddy field, the Duke team was shut out, 3-0. Duke held on gamely in the first half of the contest staving off all potential scoring thrusts. A lack of adequate reserve strength in the second half, however, proved to be its undoing as a barrage of goalward boots netted three goals for the Navy athletes.

In their next encounter the Blue Devils played the perfect host by presenting the Annapolis Middies with a 2-0 victory, but only after a stubborn battle. Goalie Landesberg stood out for Duke and Captain Bond, Bob Ing, and Bob Metzler also contributed noteworthy performances.

The last contest of the year was with the Pre-Flighters from Chapel Hill. Since their initial meeting, the Chapel Hill middies had established an impressive record. They had held all their opponents scoreless. Captain Bond, playing his final game for Duke after three brilliant years of service, put his team ahead in the initial period when he fired the ball past Goalie Hoffman for Duke's lone tally. D. R. Robertson, however, tied things up for Navy by scoring late in the same period, and All-American Fletcher broke the stalemate early in the second half by booting one through the uprights to put the Pre-Flighters ahead for good, the final score being 4-1. Despite the loss, the game was a hard scrap and the Dukes exhibited a creditable performance.

LACROSSE

LOSING MANY PLAYERS TO THE ARMED FORCES BEFORE THE SEASON STARTED, the Duke lacrosse team went into action this year weaker than it has been since the sport was recognized by the University.

Lost to the squad this year were co-captains Dick Smith and Lucky McGrane. Smith is in the Marines, while McGrane is in the Army Air Corps. Bud Ketcham was called by the Air Corps; Tom Green by the Army. Bob Hillier was out of action all season because of illness.

Built around three returning lettermen, Bud Hill Murray Brandt, and Bill Lane, the team had to rely on unexperienced men for replacements. Outstanding among the freshman players were a quartet from Baltimore: Jack Hebb, Larry Phelps, Ray Tompkins, and Bob Beer.

The team played only four games—all away from home. Duke was forced to do this, for the schools in this section of the country, which had teams last year, have dropped the sport for the duration.

Opening against Navy, the Duke squad fell before the slashing attack of the Middies. The squad's defensive play was ruined by the lack of a good goalie, and the Academy ran the score up to 18-9.

In its second game of the season, the Blue Devils tackled the Swarthmore squad. The game was slow, for both teams were slowed down by a very muddy field. Sparked by a strong offensive, the Quakers stopped the Duke attack but managed to put in several goals to beat the Devil stickmen, 11-4.

The bad weather further shortened the season when it made it impossible to play the Maryland game at College Park.

The season came to an end when the Duke squad played Johns Hopkins in Baltimore. There the Devils the worst beating of the trip. The Jays defeated the Dukes 26-5. Paced by a set of All-Americans, the Jays peppered the inexperienced Duke goalies with shots from every angle.

Outstanding on this year's squad were two freshman midfielders, Jack Hebb and Ray Tompkins. Along with veteran Murray Brandt, they gave the attack much of the spark that it had. On the defense, that trio and defense man Terry Brenner fought a failing battle against their opponents.

Second row: Fisher, McWilliams, Cuff, Davis. Bond, Goldhill, Johnston, Beer. Manor, Sales.

All-Intramural vs. Jayvees, keen scrap, but Jayvees won.

The Intramural Heads: Bello, Coach Gerard, and Edelman.

INTRAMURALS

ATHLETICS, IN THE DEPARTMENT OF INTRAMURALS UNDER THE guiding hand of Coach Gerry Gerard, enjoyed the greatest season in its thirteen year history during the past academic year. Senior Manager Irving J. Edelman, with the aid of his capable staff of officials, built the department up to the point where it reached a greater percentage of the university's male enrollment and produced a much higher caliber of play than had ever been acieved before. As a result of the department's development in the past few years, its program was named by a New York intramural study as one of the finest in the South.

The touch-football season produced an unusually high quality of competition as twenty-nine teams, divided into four graded leagues, went through gruelling ten- and twelve-game schedules. Southgate, the Independent A.C., Lambda Chi Alpha, and the Southgate Frosh emerged as the winners of their respective divisions, with the university championship going to Southgate grid machine. All-Intramural honors went to the following eighteen men: First Team: Ausbon, House M, Gross, Sigma Chi, ends; Kurtz, KA, Kingery, Ind. A.C., tackles; Young, KA, center; Kale, KA, Sailer, Ind. A.C., Willets, Phi Delt., Zwerblis, Sthg., backs. Second Team—Johnson, Sthg., Vehe, Ind. A.C., ends; Izlar, ATO, Welton, Lambda Chi, tackles; Fisher, Sigma Chi, center; Wakeling, Kappa Sigma, McGrane, Sigma Chi, Rocap, Lambda Chi, Honeycutt, Sigma Chi, backs.

As an added feature, during the football campaigns, the Intramural department aided the B.O.S. in inaugurating their first field day by staging a first-class All-Star game between selected freshman and sophomore All-Star teams, coached by Irv Edelman and Rowland Sailer respectively. The flashy-uniformed frosh, sporting a T-formation, defeated their arch rivals, 6-0.

Dick Paige, PiKA, and last year's runner-up, came through this year to take the fall tennis singles and doubles (with Ben Smith) crowns. In handball, Ken Boehm, Sigma Chi, successfully defended his last year's singles title, and with Art McGrane, continued to dominate the doubles play.

The 1942 wrestling tournament provided much competitive and spectator interest as Southgate came through with the team title.

As in the past, however, basketball provided the greatest number of enthusiastic participants as fifty-eight teams entered competition in eight graded divisions. After a long season in which every team played a spirited fourteen game schedule, Phi Delta Theta, Sigma Chi, Kappa Alpha, Zeta Beta Tau, Naval R.O.T.C., Phi Kappa Sigma, House J, and the Epworth Frosh won their respective divisions. At this point, may teams were hard hit by losses to the Air Corps which called up their reserves, but a lively championship double-elimination tournament ensued, regardless, with Kappa Alpha snaring the university championship. Much credit for the success of the 1942-43 basketball season must go to

The 1943 edition of the Intramural All-Star basketball team, coached by Irv Edelman, again turned in a victory over the Duke Junior Varsity in their second annual exhibition game. The score of this thrilling encounter was 38-33, the All-Stars on top. Conprising this year's All-Star squad were the following: Storer, ATO; Boehm, Sigma Chi; Hambright, Phi Kappa Sigma; Stephan, Phi Delt; Cittadino, PiKA (capt.); Pettit, Kappa Sigma; Davis, Kappa Sigma; Vining, KA; Carlton, KA; Borbeley, PiKA; Dale, Phi Psi; Hill, Draft Dodgers; Brenner, ZBT; Elliott, Divinity.

The crowning point of achievement, however, came with the staging of the first annual Intramural Basketball Jamboree on February 20. The brainchild of Sophomore Manager Harold Landesberg, this Jamboree saw nearly fifty teams competing on five courts in an all-day affair. The participants numbered over four hundred.

SAE swam away with the 1943 swimming meet by rolling up 77 points to their nearest competitor's 26. Probably the most successful single sport undertaken this year, from a spectator's point of view, was the revival of Intramural boxing as a wartime physical fitness measure. After almost a week of preliminaries in which the spectator interest mounted steadily from night to night, over 500 avid, leather-lunged fans packed the old gym for the finals. Most of the bouts were exceedingly close, as ATO took the team title with four championships and one runner-up.

Although many organizations began to feel sharply their constantly increasing losses to the armed forces, interest in the Spring sports, softball, track, volleyball, badminton, tennis, handball, golf, and horseshoes was high and the competition was close throughout. A series of field days was inaugurated with Intramural squads competing against Army Finance School teams in all sports, thus bringing the army in closer contact with student activities on the campus.

A great deal of the credit for the unprecedented success of this year's program, however, must be given to the hard-working, uncomplaining staff of intramural officials and workers: Senior Manager, Irv Edelman, Junior Manager Lou Bello, Sophomore Manager Hal Landesberg, Bob Hessler, Rowland Sailer, Chuck Young, Ed Little, Ken Turner, Doug Ausbon, Ed Woelfle, and Dick Lenox.

DELTA PHI RHO ALPHA

East Campus' Athletic Honorary carried on an active program this year under the leadership of Nancy Wrenn, president; Ruth Barnwell, vice president; Connie Campbell, secretary; and Mary Coggin, treasurer.

When Delta Phi Rho Alpha, local honorary athletic sorority, was founded in 1921 by a group of girls, its members wished to give recognition to those who had excelled in leadership in sports. This sorority was created as a sister organization to Tombs, honorary athletic fraternity for men, as an answer to a demand for better organization of athletic activities and for the purpose of creating a greater and more active participation in intramural athletics. This purpose was well carried out this year under the leadership of president Nancy Wrenn. Other officers of the organization were Ruth Barnwell, vice president; Connie Campbell, secretary; and Mary Coggin, treasurer.

Admission to new girls is limited to two juniors and seven sophomores. The initiation in March is similar to that of Tombs. The initiates are stationed anywhere on East Campus from the Washington Duke statue to the steps of Southgate. Each future member is garbed in the traditional "goat costume" of heavy black stockings, one black and one white shoe, a middy blouse, and a short black skirt, and is made to carry a rolling pin, a paddle, a bucket, and various other articles with the Greek letters of the sorority on it.

To accomplish its aim of wider intramural activity, Delta Phi Rho Alpha sponsored an intramural basketball tournament in the winter and a tennis tournament in the spring. To encourage athletic participation and the perfection of one's abilities, a key is awarded each year to the senior who by her leadership, sportsmanship, and athletic ability throughout her four years at Duke is considered the most outstanding athlete.

Having been chosen for membership because of outstanding ability and interest in athletics, the members of Delta Phi Rho Alpha are conscientious workers and planners. This year the sorority cooperated whole-heartedly with the W.S.A.B. and provided the Campus with entertainment by holding complementary open houses in Women's Gym.

NEREIDIAN

Officers who directed the Nereidian Club this year were Dale Driscoll, president; Ruth Barnwell, vice president; Margaret Mercer, secretary; Mary Neel, treasurer; and Miss Natialie Smith, adviser.

ORGANIZED AS A SWIMMING HONORARY FOR COEDS, THE NEREIdian Club functions to stimulate interest and increase proficiency in water sports among the women of Duke University. Its members are chosen for their form and speed in swimming, and for their grace in diving. In addition to its athletic activities, the group is also noted for its social affairs.

The Nereidian has gained recognition on both campuses for the pageant which is given each year during the spring. This year the pageant was especially successful and appropriate in that it portrayed a patriotic theme throughout. Although a great deal of time and effort is spent in planning and performing this annual pageant, the finished product is always worth while for both the audience and those participating in the program.

Another of the outstanding annual occasions is the national telegraphic swimming meet, which is sponsored by the Women's Athletic Association. The competition is purely for speed and the results are determined by comparative times.

Recently a Junior Nereidian Club was formed under the guidance of the active Nereidians. This organization's purpose is to instill an interest in the Nereidian Club in underclass girls and to improve their strokes, speed, and diving ability so that they will be eligible for membership in the senior club.

Through its very nature, Nereidian is a healthful organization. Another purpose, however, is to provide social life. In addition to open houses, held in conjunction with the Women's Athletic Association, it has frequent afternoon swims which are followed by dinner and a meeting in the club room.

In conclusion, it may be said that the achievements of the Nereidian Club are evidenced by the athletic proficiency and the well-rounded personality of its members, not only in athletics, but in general campus life.

Women's Athletic Association

W.A.A. participated in an extremely active program this year under the guidance of Nancy Wrenn, president; Mary Jane Clark, vice president; Marjorie Wyman, secretary; and Connie Campbell, treasurer.

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS ON EAST UNDER THE DIRECTION OF THE W.A.A., fulfill much the same purpose as the intramural program on West. The purpose of the Association is to offer recreation to everyone. The aims are to promote athletics in a rational and wholesome way, to establish educational leadership, and to build up public support of athletics. This is accomplished through the organization of the sports into clubs which encourage particular interest in such sports as golf, riding, tennis, outing, fencing, badminton, hockey, swimming, softball, archery, and modern dancing.

The Association is governed by a board of eighteen members, including the presidents of the various clubs, a freshman representative, the Executive Committee, and a Faculty adviser. President Nancy Wrenn, Vice President Mary Jane Clark, Secretary Marjorie Wyman, and Treasurer Connie Campbell serve on the Executive Committee. The Physical Education staff cooperates with the board in conducting plans for the activities of the various clubs. Emphasis has been placed upon participation in athletics for the enjoyment of the sport as well as for improvement of skill and technique.

This year, under the direction of seven officers from the Army Finance School, the W.A.A. sponsored a series of military drills, held each Friday afternoon on Haines Field. These drills were concerned with simple military procedure and were enjoyed by a large number of students. Their purpose was to offer training and experience to those members of the student body who might be entering women's military services in the future, and also to give the girls a taste of the kind of training their brothers and friends were going through in military camps.

Also associated with the W.A.A. was the Nereidian Club, which is the honorary swimming organization to which the best campus swimmers belong.

Helen Brooks awaits partner Mary Burchett's serve in their doubles game on the tennis court. Tennis is girls' favorite outdoor sport.

These swimmers present an annual pageant which is attended by the University community. Another popular organization was the Modern Dance Group which is composed of students more advanced in modern dancing techniques.

Delta Phi Rho Alpha, the honorary athletic sorority, is the goal to be attained for those girls who are outstanding in athletics. It selects to membership women who have shown continued interest in sports and is a means whereby their ability may be recognized.

Jean Moore and Edna Sprunt chat in the dressing room as they don their soccer equipment for a game on Haines Field with their gym class.

Thus it is that the W.A.A. stands as one of the most active organizations on the East Campus, serving as a group to sponsor extra-curricular activities in the line of women's athletics. Every year it has grown in both strength and popularity, with more and more coeds taking advantage of the extensive program offered. To the women and student instructors who guide and encourage the work, a great deal of credit is due; and it is hoped that next year they will bring even greater student interest and increasing popularity to women's athletics.

Nereidian coeds form a star as they practice for their annual spring pageant, which is one of season's highlights.

HIGHLIGHTS IN THE LIFE AT DUKE

Duke Welcomes Army Finance School; COGS Organized; WSAB Manages Duke's Social Program.

SEPT.

Freshman Advisory Council and Union help swore, but arrived on a sweltering campus a week early. Bewildered freshmen and baffled upperclassmen lived through the confusion of the first two weeks to settle down to the steady grind of studying—almost. The HUP-two-three-four of the Army Finance School echoed over the West Campus, and a path was gradually worn in the grassy quadrangle where many marching feet formed at retreat.

OCT.

Somehow, there is always something to upset the beautiful routine of study. Worried freshmen confided to friendly (pledge-hunting) upperclassmen. Not the least of the "upsetters" was the arrival of the football season. Homecoming, minus floats and bands, but sporting fraternity decorations, flowed in and out of the season. Dukesters huddled in the corner when the Duke-Wake Forest game was mentioned, but crowed proudly over the Duke-Colgate score. Pan Hel's Hob-Goblin Hop was a pip. Conspicuously missing from the football season, however, was football veteran, Wallace Wade, now showing the Army how to "hold that line."

NOV.

November is next to December, December is next to Christmas, and Christmas is when I go home, so ran the chant of the homesick (or lovesick) freshmen. Before we left, however, we enjoyed the Co-ed Ball and applauded Freshman Beauty Queen Mary Bradley; had a taste of Southern turkey á la Union; and jitter-bugged at the SGA Sweater-Skirt Stomp.

DEC.

December marked the month which shook the students in the "Ivory Tower" to their senses a year previous. Students, who had time to look around during the race of last minute term papers and hour exams, found that many familiar faces were missing. Lucky girls with Navy men attended the Navy Ball. Rumors were rife about the length of vacation—if any—and everyone was jubilant about the ten days, minus triple cuts. Crowded trains, buses, subways, and taxis saw the students home and back. Those fortunate(?) enough to arrive before the thirty-first could attend the Black and White New Year's Ball. The next three days saw everyone back, now to look forward only to finals.

JAN.

January saw more jubilant faces, more downcast looks, more circles under the eyes, more ammonia dopes, and more midnight oil burned. Nuf said about exam week. The ERC boys pulled out, and we started another semester. Plenty of never-before-made New Year's Resolutions were sworn over two-pronged monsters and "D's."

FEB.

All New Year's Resolutions forgotten, the school turned out en masse for the southern premiere of Hayfoot Strawfoot. Rushing went into third gear as everyone got in that last minute dirty rushing and began tapping every section's telephone. Sororities ended up their week—some happy, some hot under the collar. New basketball coach Jerry Gerard kept his squad in tip-top shape and kept 'em winning. On East Babbie Jardan organized the COGS, co-eds' active contribution to the war effort.

MAR.

New Year's Resolutions now completely forgotten, Dukes and Duchesses went dancing at the spring Co-ed Ball and welcomed another beautiful Duke May Queen. Duke Players came through again with an excellent production and kept everyone in the aisles with The Man Who Came to Dinner. The basketball team continued their game-winning to enter the Southern Conference finals—and they gave G.W. a good scrap. Mid-semester grades for freshman caused a few warning shivers and cut allowances. The Nereidian pageant was interrupted by an unannounced blackout . . . nuf said.

APR.

The debate team went to Charlotte; many others just went home. The Engineers had a Ball and graduated. Politics got dirty, everyone voted, and there was no complete satisfaction. Pan Hellenic Sings left the A T O's and Zetas on top, and all the freshmen turned out for the Bunny-Hop.

MAY

This month of cramming, finals, sunbathing, and vacation got off to a good start with Duke Players' presentation of My Sister Eileen. The Pan-Hal series was a terrific success, and Nancy Wrenn and her May Court met with great approval. All the underclassmen looked forward to school's early start under the Navy on July 1; co-eds decided to come to summer school; and seniors left the "Ivory Tower" and its wonderful life behind them.

WE SALUTE:→

The Army Finance School at Duke, which came to the campus in the summer of '42. These men have gained the respect of every student on the campus in their strict routine of OCS training. Swell fellows, gentlemen, and darn good soldiers, we welcome you to Duke. We hope you can find a portion of the love we have for our Alma Mater.

The newly-arrived freshmen seem happy about the whole experience as they are met at train by Y.W.C.A. members. . . . Misplaced or lost luggage added much to the confusion of the Southern Railway's already disgusted passengers.

LIFE BEGINS FOR

The summer before they leave home, the eager freshmen conjure up ideas of just what college will be like. They see movies, hear their older friends talk about it, and finally they find themselves in the station—a college student. Immediately, they are thrown into a bewildering amount of confusion, far different from their imagined calm college life, of which comes the pleasant feeling that they are meeting a lot of very friendly people, both students and administration officials. They are kept very busy, and this first week, in spite of an occasional twinge of fright at being at a big university with so many new faces around, is a great deal of fun.

Freshmen plan their week's schedule with their advisers on their first day at school, and from then on, the week is a matter of taking numerous placement exams, buying a postoffice box with hopes of getting some mail, learning to say "dope shop," unpacking at odd moments, and trying to remember which building is which.

At the first assembly a freshman feels more keenly than ever before that he is now a part of something bigger than he has ever belonged to before. He realizes that in all probability he will be meeting in assembly with these same classmates for the next four years. It is something very new and exciting. Freshmen begin to understand that there is something very fine—though it is intangible and unexpressed in their minds—in being a member, no matter how small, of our large University Community.

And then suddenly the upperclassmen are back—with their sure ways and screams of delight at seeing each other again. The college tempo quickens and swings again into its normal routine. The college career of the freshman is opening before him.

On Stunt Night, freshman girls clad in blue jeans and plaid shirts do a feeble imitation of the Rockettes in the Woman's College gym to entertain the on-lookers and to vie for the best performance among dormitories.

Patiently waiting on the lawn in back of Page Auditorium for their turn to matriculate, these freshman boys get acquainted.

Before classes start, pranks begin; and so a freshman boy cleans up his room while the maranders leer at him from the windows.

Freshman boys with their dinks grin happily through the wire cage at the gym as they register for gymsuits, lockers, get physicals.

Freshmen boys meet freshmen girls at one of the "get acquainted" open houses held in the girls' dormitories during Freshman Week.

BOS sponsored skits start the big pre-game homecoming celebration. . . . Freshmen bemoan and give benediction to fallen Georgia wreck. . . . Joe College and his hep, little co-ed take over the limelight. . . . Cheer Leaders Dick Sanborn and Joe DiMona present Doc Wolfe of House J with bushel of apples for best skit. BOS Neitman watches.

THE DAY BEFORE THE GAME

The day before the homecoming game, which was played against Georgia Tech this year, was full of activity. Inside each quadrangle, in front of each house, students rushed madly to get their display arranged for the forthcoming event. It is the ambition of each house to have a better display than any of the others, and the ensuing contest is hot with anxiety. The BOS chooses two winners each year. One prize goes to the fraternity with the best display, and the other goes to the best display of the freshmen dormitories. Needless to say, the fraternities turn out more elaborate displays than the freshmen, but the spirit and originality of the freshmen for this event cannot be equaled.

For at least a week before the game on Saturday afternoon, plans were well underway for the activities.

WELCOME ALUMNI

Washington Duke's statue receives its covering before the Carolina game to prevent sabotage by the Tar Heels. . . . The cheering crowd of students line up before the hill overlooking the freshman athletic fields for some rousing cheers, as the bonfire now becomes mere embers. . . . In the center, pajama-clad Duke Engineers, long famous in Duke history for their football spirit, parade around East Campus on night before the game.

decorations, and displays for the week-end. The celebration this year was greatly blanketed without the annual homecoming-day parade of floats and bands, in which all the fraternities, students, and the community, in and around, Durham participate. It was agreed by everyone that such activity was not in keeping with the war effort, so the idea of a parade was abandoned for the duration.

During this week preceding the game, the spirit attained such heights that all desire to study seemed to cease. By Friday all books were shelved for the week-end, and each house was "all out" in the attempt to decorate the campus. The gala homecoming week-end of past years which attracted record crowds of alumni, parents, and guests, was not expected this year, because of transportation difficulties and the tire and gasoline rationing. However the spirit of the students was not lessened, and everyone was determined to make it the biggest and best week-end possible under the circumstances. Nightfall had no affect on the eager students, who dressed up their displays even more after seeing their neighbors'. Work continued late into the night while everyone awaited the result of the Blue Devil-Yellow Jack scrap on the morrow.

Each year these pre-game celebrations seem the greatest, and this year of years decided that this probable last season of rallies would make the parting shot a good one. Coöperation reached its height, and it was pleasant to see the students and administration leaders coördinate their plans so well with the team. Consequently, every effort was made to spiritually help the team as they had never been helped before. It was a good rally year, and much credit belongs to a versatile freshman class and one of the best BOS organizations in years.

The climax of the homecoming pep meeting is reached as victory bonfire is touched off and freshmen, with satisfaction, watch their days of work blaze.

Coach Coombs, Dean Manchester, and Dr. Rankin talk over the various homecoming decorations and try to decide on a winner. . . . House O typifies freshman dorm decorations on the campus. . . . # SATURDAY FOOTBALL

Saturday is THE day during the football season which is looked forward to by every student on the campus. It is the time when King Pigskin raises his head over Duke, and two and a half thousand students paid him tribute.

This year week-end activities were naturally curtailed, but there was plenty of spirit, and it was willing. The mental and physical beating which makes the football season was present with its customary vigor, and the students loved it.

After preparation has been made for decorations, dates, parties and open houses, and when Friday had rolled around, all books were chucked into the corner until Monday morning. Celebration was in order, and we celebrated.

The season was a thrilling one; it was impossible to predict winners until the final shot of the gun had been heard. Many

On to the game! In spite of curtailed transportation, crowds of Blue Devil fans mill past indoor stadium toward playing field. . . . Cheer Leaders clear the way for guest band as they march onto the field for their exhibition at the half-time.

Spectacular moment of any game is entrance of the team. Led by Captain Smith, Gantt, and Burns, the team races from tunnel onto the gridiron for the fray.

Another Touchdown! Teammates rise from bench to congratulate players, cheer leaders yell, and band plays "Blue and White" once again.

"Come on, smear 'em! Murder 'em!" shout anxious fans as they spiritually fight with Big Blues.

Sigma Chi's Bongo Tailer and wheel join in to help with entertainment at half-time celebration.

a Duke had a sure pool win, but there never failed to be an upset, and pool sponsors continued to make their small fortunes.

Duke added its ingredients to America's fall classic with all the Blue Devil vigor it had. The thrill, as a perfect pass from Davis to Rute . . . the roar, as Troxell, downed a runner from behind the line . . . the hush, as Gant went back to convert . . . the swell of the crowd, as Luper swept around end . . . these are Duke's football emotions which will not be forgotten.

Many of the boys who would have worn the Blue Devil blue this year were wearing another type of uniform, and they were missed on the gridiron. Coach Wade, too, had gone, but there was another versatile coach to take over immediately. Coach Cameron built his team, strong and solid, and we fought with them from the stands; for it was Saturday, and Saturday is Football.

Players eagerly watch from bench as game progresses. In background cheer leaders coördinate cheering of students on right and Army Finance School on left.

Fans watch tensely as Blue Devils fight tough Ga. Tech at Homecoming. . . . After game, crowds move back to dorms for open houses, bull sessions. This was first year for campus-wide dances after every home game.

Weezie Merritt and two co-eds put in their COG hours by rolling bandages under the guidance of the Red Cross Volunteer superviser. Most all co-eds roll bandages at least once during each week.

First Aid courses are popular part of COG training program. Faculty instructors cheerfully give time and experience to teach girls the fundamental techniques of first aid and home nursing.

COGS ORIGINATE AT DUKE

One February day in 1943, an attractive, dark-haired girl could be seen in the Brown House office, talking with a House Councilor. The girl was Babbie Jarden. the Councilor, Miss Wilson—and they were discusisng the plans for an organization which would bring Duke co-eds into closer touch with the war effort. You have it—they were talking about the now-familiar COGS. And how did this idea become a part of the student life?

Two words are needed in answering: Babbie Jarden. She set up a steering committee of thirty-eight girls. These girls, who represent every dormitory, the town girls, and the graduate students, meet once a week to discuss specific ways in which the Duke girls can be of service. From these meetings, entirely student conducted, come the plans that are brought back to the students as a whole. Yes, students as a whole; for every Duke Co-ed is a member of the COGS, and, as a member, is expected to put in her "Cog" hours each week. How many "Cog" hours a student works is no secret to the East Campus, or the visitor from West; for each girl records her time on a chart in the House office.

From where do the "Cog" hours on these charts come? First, Susie Cog may roll those vitally-needed bandages at the Red Cross Room. Proof of the COGS effectiveness is the fact that attendance jumped from 4 to 96 during the first week of the COGS' drive. Susie Cog is also of service when she knits sweaters and socks. She marks down "Cog" hours, as well, for acting as hostess at the USO center, attending dances at Camp Butner, and the Army Finance Officer's Candidate School, and working in the United Nations War Relief Shop. She is also of service in these trying times by extending aid at the hospitals, Edgemont Center, Wright's Refuge, and the Girl Scouts. Susie Cog shivered a little, but she bore up bravely and gave blood to the Duke Hospital Blood Bank. Less exciting, but as important, she helped with the Campus Salvage Collection and contributed to Co-eds learn practical subjects which give them technical knowledge to help with war effort. Miss Addoms instructs. . . . Cartography becomes interesting and fun as co-eds find war broadening activities.

Music swings out in the Ark Saturday night at the OCS dance. Co-eds are eager to participate in this COG activity which helps them to become acquainted with Finance School officers.

Hup, 2, 3, 4, In sweaters, dresses, and zoot-suit shirts, the co-eds and their instructors are getting fit. Their "column right's" are made snappy by Finance Officers' expert drilling.

This soldier turned the tables on the entertainment committee at the Brown House party for soldiers. Peppy guitar playing livened up the party; Sarah and Tony listen attentively.

the Red Cross, War Bond, and Community Fund drives. First Aid, Home Nursing, and work on the Alumni War files also help her to feel of use in the war effort.

Co-eds participate in surveying course on engineering campus as the trend moves toward Co-eds' taking more active part in technical courses. Senior engineers coöperate by assisting professors.

The College Organization for General Service is in its infancy, but already it has embraced itself with a tremendous following of the entire student body of Woman's College which has given the movement its unconditioned and whole-hearted support. Girls have enjoyed the feeling of actively helping in the war effort, although the activities may seem somewhat local and a trifle on the small-scale side. House Councilors and Faculty alike have joined in with the girls to give up their time and training to assist and to promote the Duke Co-eds in their program. Many teachers are conducting courses in first aid, gymnastics, and home nursing. Not to be forgotten is the intensive air raid warden course in which a select group of girls have been trained for blackout emergencies and any emergency arising from a possible bombing of Duke and Durham. Faculty members of Woman's College have given unsparingly of their time in equipping the co-eds with the best and latest training.

The COGS have ended their first year, which was definitely a successful and a progressive one. Dottie Chorpening was elected in a campus-wide election to succeed the COG founder, Babbie Jarden, and already plans have been executed to carry on an elaborate and an expanding program for the next year. In order not to waste any time, the new COG leaders have carried on a campaign in the last month of school to assist with the labor shortages in the janitorial staff. Every COG member took it upon herself to volunteer in an East Campus-wide window washing campaign. Girls in every dorm for about a week could be seen moving around the campus, clad in blue jeans and plaid shirts, carrying a bucket full of water and an armful of window washing cloths. Another activity recently executed was the interested volunteering for help with the alumni files on the West Campus. Girls practically took over the Alumni Office, searched through the files, corrected them, and made sure that Duke Alumni in the service all over the world were going to receive Duke news quickly and officially.

The COGS is in a true sense, an infant, but it is the hope of the group that its ideas will spread to help many another school organize itself in war work.

"Buy a Bond, sir?" Duke co-eds had a lot of fun this fall helping with a Durham Bond Rally at downtown Five Points. Jane Wyman and John Payne were just in from Hollywood.

LUNCH

CONCERT-LECTURE SERIES

Duke University enjoyed a Lecture and Concert Series this year which was beyond comparison, considering the restrictions of wartime and the interruption of the general way of life. "Basso" Baccaloni of the Metropolitan Opera humorously delighted his audience; Jascha Heifetz filled every seat at his concert; soprano Astrid Varnay sang beautifully; Arrau expertly thrilled with his piano; and the Ballet Theater swept everyone off his feet. In the field of lectures, there was Wendell Willkie who lectured on his world-wide tour as the personal ambassador of President Roosevelt to the Allied Countries. Both Robert Frost and Carl Sandberg drew attentive audiences to Page when they lectured on American literature and read us samples of their poems. Nadia Boulanger carried on a few days of interviews for music students and participated as a guest conductor at a symphony concert. F. P. Adams kept his audience in chuckles as he told about portions of his book and experiences on the radio.

Baccaloni, comic Metropolitan basso, proves himself a clown both on and off stage as he illustrates story to "Bishop" Barnes when leaving after concert.

Jascha Heifetz, number one concert drawing card, pauses a few moments with J. Foster Barnes to look over some pictorial views of Duke before his Page concert.

Slavonnika finale thrilled capacity Duke audience with the beautiful costuming and dancing of series' popular Ballet Theater.

DUKE ON THE AIR

Campus Time, the all-Duke radio program, was broadcast each Tuesday evening over station WDNC. Producer of the program was "Cubby" Bear, and director and script-writer was Harvey Bullock. Because of the accelerated program, and the loss of students in the armed forces, the program was abandoned in early spring, but the program was a huge success in spite of its short life. The weekly broadcast featured comical original skits, the Glee Club, campus bands, sportscasts, and previews of the various campus productions. The Hayfoot Strawfoot preview was broadcast over CBS national hook-up.

Super Sleuths Bullock and Moss present their spine-tingling radio drama. . . . "Arsenic and Old Lace" is previewed for an eagerly listening public.

We're on the air! Thirty minutes of fun from Duke Univers with Bullock, Moss, and stooges. Kampus Klubmen, Duk campus band, await their cue in background.

SUNDAY NIGHT SINGS

This year, because of the wartime restrictions and the lack of adequate entertainment, the Sunday evening Sings have become an essential part of campus functions. Attendance this year has been unusually high, and the students literally flocked to the auditorium on Sunday at eight. The Sings have been entirely student run, with student talent; for the most part, and an occasional guest specialty. Much credit is due Miss Mary Grace Wilson, Sing originator, for keeping her "protègè" popular with the students and well in the campus limelight. The Sings have become a popular refuge from the confusion of downtown Durham on Sunday evenings, and with the student entertainment full of unexpected variety and new faces, the seats of Woman's Auditorium are always packed.

Duke Engineers present spook skit with some fraternity's coffin. Campus groups sponsor Sings on assigned Sunday dates.

Dale leads campus audience as they sing the "Hymn for the evening." Uplifted faces are for words on the movie screen.

The SGA Informal Ration-Romp was really something to remember. "Bishop" Barnes leads the students at intermission in singing some rousing songs.

Because of war restrictions, the May Queen was crowned at Spring Co-ed Ball. The boss is shown above as he took time off to crown Queen Nancy Wrenn.

DANCES—MAIN STANDBY

War or no war, dances remained the chief mode of recreation for students on the Duke Campus. Of course, all the influences of rationing, labor shortages, etc., had its effects upon the hops, gym-jams, and formals, but the spirit was not lacking. Because over-crowded Durham became unofficially "taboo" for week-end recreation, the WSAB sanctioned a schedule of more dances than ever before—and they were good.

Variety was the keynote, and every organization of any size or type felt that it was its religious duty to

Kampus Klubmen furnish music for Pan Hel.—surprise by introducing strings.

"Colonna" Moss "why dance's" to slow number as Edie Whitson enjoys his energetic singing and the dance. . . . E. P. Bethune jitters "out of this world" with LaFouch. Spot on cheek is gridiron bruise, not beauty mark. . . . Bobbie Main seems to be wistfully deciding whether to say "yes" or "no" as date eagerly awaits the verdict. . . . Evelyn Keyes and Frank Norris share enjoyment of dance with CHANTICLEER photographer. . . . May Queen Nancy Wrenn dances with her Carolina import. Who says Blue Devils and Tar Heels don't click? . . . Phil Dibble, snappy in his NROTC uniform, is really enjoying his dance with Jeannie Fetherston.

trouse Campbell, Publication Row's own super-play-boy, takes time off rom balancing the books to escore Julie Hedrick in the Co-ed Ball figure.

sponsor some kind of a dance. The results were gratifying and original. We hopped, stomped, romped, dragged, and just danced.

There was an abundance of good music on the Campus with its two bands, the Kampus Klubmen and the Duke Ambassadors. The Ambassadors were out of commission for a few months, but they reorganized and came back as strong as ever. With the two bands, we were able to have plenty of good music at usually reasonable prices.

The University Social Committee dictated that we would have no "name bands," and we didn't. But we had a good time, and the season is one that won't be forgotten.

Margaret Little flashes the cameraman a smile, seemingly quite unconcerned with dance or Nick's line. . . . while Jean Horsley and Windy Lockwood are too wrapped up in their gab-fest to notice photographer. . . . Herter may be tired, trying a psych experiment, or watching a blonde. Smith, however, is really hoofing. . . . Vivacious Beth Holcombe is conscious of the cameraman, but big smile is definitely for Jim Buckle. . . . Pan-Hel. Prexy Kefauver gives a camera-shy, sheepish smile to imported fiancée while dancing at May Day Formal. . . . Bobbie Axton and Fran Dale are quite unconcerned, and dance on "seemingly out of this world." Duke dances this year were plentiful and well-attended.

NURSES LEARN BY DOING

Life as a student nurse at Duke University is an all-encompassing experience. The freshman year—that crossword puzzle existence, not knowing which line is horizontal and which one is vertical—only knowing that life is one long line—physicals, interviews, lunch, books, classes. Not to go unmentioned are the hectic anatomy labs, nerve-wracking nursing arts, practicals, and, finally, the first trip to the wards, armed with a little gray basin.

Capping! A word to hearten any nurse and a thrill never to be forgotten as the white cap, symbol of the profession, is placed on the nurse's head.

With the passing of summer comes the junior year—the more definite realization of the final goal. Night duty is the experience never forgotten—the early hours of the "Morning Circle"—the ward staff learns condition of each patient from night nurse and receives assignments. . . . Acutely ill patients receive constant care; nurses must be vigilant to watch for condition changes.

In applying surgical dressing a nurse must learn to assist the doctor. Thus sterile technique protects the patient from infection and prevents the contamination of the surgical carriage.

"Watch it, Anabel!" neatness is one of the goals toward which a nurse strives, regardless of the difficulties an orthopedic bed presents. Obivously this patient is amused as well as skeptical.

Not only must the nurse be dependable in carrying out doctors' orders, but also, like the secretary and the executive, she must be accurate in charting and in compiling reports.

morning when objects assume their true stature and life itself takes on a new meaning. Then comes the dawn—the hospital begins to take on the atmosphere of activity very quickly, and the nurse's mind leaves the philosophical for the everyday, but not humdrum, existence. There are many other special services, each with its own opportunity for learning and experience. After work—play, making for well-balanced personalities and healthy nurses.

Without the conscious realization that time is passing, the senior year has begun, and there is the fuller appreciation of that which has gone before. Now in wartime there is added responsibility for the seniors, who assist as well as learn; and finally, the long-anticipated diploma and "whites"!

Duke Nurses step ahead with confidence, because they have been taught to do the job and do it well. Therein lies a nurse's true happiness.

The time honored alcohol rub is a refreshment which no patient refuses. This nursing procedure is one of the first learned by student nurses. . . . At the sterilizer; "Keep 'em sterile, O'Briant, steam burns, too."

Blood per transfusion—behind every blood transfusion lies the fascinating history of scientific discovery, but ahead lie even more fascinating possibilities in saving many human lives.

Going home? . . . Going to work . . . or . . . Going to class? Perhaps it's to lunch? Many miles of hospital corridors are traversed by student nurses every day in their snappy, practical uniforms.

January . . . Student Government Dance . . . the time Duke Student Nurses really go social . . . as usual they say, "It's the best we ever had!" Well-rounded life enable a nurse to give her best to her profession.

DUKE UNIVERSITY

On these two pages are shown two air views of the campuses of Duke University. Some students have seen them before; but through the request of many, the staff presents them again, for they are a means for recalling he happy days spent at Duke University. On the left, is a view of the West r Men's Campus, home of Trinity College, the Graduate Schools, and the uke Hospital. At the right is a view of the East or Women's Campus, which is the home of the Women's College. These two campuses are separate by a mile and a half of campus roadway, giving Duke both the advantage of having a co-ed university and men's or women's college.

ALPHA SIGMA SIGMA

In every University there are those among the student body who possess characteristics of a censorable nature, but characteristics known to everyone who has ever been to classes, at dances, or in the dormitories with them. This year the Chanticleer chose these people for recognition in Alpha Sigma Sigma through a poll of the average student on the campus. The tradition of camouflaging the fraternity membership with Campus BMOC's has been discarded, in order to give absolute and unquestioned recognition to these individuals who have devoted their energies to this end. Herein the Campus presents the 1943 election of students to Alpha Sigma Sigma, Campus Honorary.

BUILDERS of DREAMS

VISIONS created by the imagination precede the achievement of any really great accomplishment. The ability to weave the threads of imagination into the finished fabric is equally important.

It has been the privilege of the EDWARDS & BROUGHTON COMPANY to cooperate with the Chanticleer staff in creating their vision into material form.

Such cooperation is one of the "visions" which precede the building of a successful business, and is a part of the working policy of the EDWARDS & BROUGHTON COMPANY.

To those Staffs desiring complete cooperation, we offer unexcelled service.

You, too, may be proud of your annual.
